U. S. SEA PACTS BASIS OF DRAFT TO CURB NAVIES

Geneva Group Draws on Treaties of London and Washington.

SMALL POWERS URGE TONNAGE LIMITATION

Italy Once More Makes Demand for Equality With Her Rivals.

AMERICAN DELEGATE SPEEDS DISCUSSIONS

Full Commission to Sit Twice Daily, and Hold Debate in Public.

Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Principles embodied in the Washington and London Naval Treaties were taken by the disarmament commission today as a basis in its efforts to draft a general agreement on a method of limiting and reducing the fleets of all nations.

Representatives of small naval states were given an opportunity to explain their views regarding a general application of the methods already accepted by the great powers signing the London and Washington agreements.

In general, the smaller sea powers—for example Spain, Roumania and Poland—announced in favor of total tonnage limitation, or declared if limitation by categories was decided upon, a greater freedom of transfer must be granted them.

Italy Demands Equality.

Gen. De Marinis, the Italian delegate, took occasion to restate Italy's position regarding a naval agreement.

He said Italy's demand for equality with any continental power was still her primary concern, and until this question of ratios was settled she was not in a position to express a preference between the total and category methods of limitation. He said, however, Italy is of the opinion that the total method is the fairer.

A move by Maxim Litvinoff, the Russian delegate, to commit the commission to a reduction of fleets by percentages, which would be fixed individually for all states at the general conference, was rejected.

Percentage Plan Rejected.

Hugh S. Gibson, the American delegate, pointed out that the Soviet proposal for "proportional" reduction had been definitely turned down in 1929, but Litvinoff contended the percentage system was an entirely new scheme. However, no support was given the Soviet plan.

During today's sessions Lord Cecil proposed an amendment providing budgetary limitation for naval armaments.

After spokesmen for the small naval states declared their requirements for vessels of small tonnage, such as submarines and destroyers, must be provided for, the commission adjourned to resume the debate tomorrow.

High Points in Draft.

The results of the London Naval Conference and the Washington Treaty as presented by the great naval powers in draft from designed for consideration by all the naval powers provided chiefly:

(a) A total global limitation of war vessel tonnage.

(b) A table for limitation by categories.

(c) Provision for the transfer of some tonnage from category to category.

(d) Capital ships limited to 35,000 tons with a gun caliber maximum 16 inches.

(e) Limit aircraft carriers to 27,000 tons.

In taking up the naval problem,

Calvin Coolidge

Says: At the recent British imperial conference the dominions tried to eat their cake and have it, too. They asked for equality with Britain and more local self-government, which they got. They wanted preferential tariffs within the empire, which they did not get. They sought greater political freedom for themselves and less economic freedom for Britain. They wished to share the British markets but not the British responsibility.

Economic unity and political unity usually go together. For that reason the Briand proposal for a federated Europe is a rational plan for closer economic relations. Our own Union was founded on the necessity for economic unity. Business advantages came from a common law and common governmental responsibilities. If local spirit and diverse interests keep Britain and her dominions from having a real federal government the same forces will prevent closer economic ties.

At a time when the tendency in the United States is for more centralization in our Government the British Empire is dispersing its authority. The result will be that the different dominions of the empire will form their own outside business connections while our States will be drawn into closer commercial harmony.

RACKETEERS HUNTED AS MILK "SPOILERS"

Two Dairies Offer Rewards of $100 for Arrest of Men With Acid.

BLAME LABOR TROUBLES

The arrest of the men who poured a strong solution, believed to be poison, over milk in two delivery wagons early Sunday was predicted yesterday by Inspector William S. Shelby.

Dairy owners joined the police yesterday in pressing the search for the perpetrators by offering rewards. The Chestnut Farms Dairy and Thompson's Dairy, each of which was the target of the episode, offered rewards of $100 each for information that would lead to the arrest of the men. Other dairies are expected to follow suit.

Samples of the fluid, which were gathered from empty bottles in the wagon, were submitted yesterday to the Health Department for analysis. No report is expected until today. Inspector Shelby and Detective Sergt. Thomas Tally, wish to know whether the solution may be purchased as a whole, or whether it is a combination of several fluids.

Through this analysis the police believe that they may be able to trace the purchasers. The three men who were seen near the delivery wagons at Connecticut and Cathedral avenues, carried the container with them.

If more of such acts occur the dairies said they would place guards on the delivery wagons.

If the report of the health department chemist proves that the solution is poisonous, District Attorney Leo A. Rover's office said that the men, if arrested, will be charged with assault with intent to kill. If it is not poisonous, the charge will be destroying private property.

Apoplexy Kills McCabe, Athletic Union Leader

(Associated Press.)

Joseph B. McCabe, of Boston, a former president of the National Amateur Athletic Union, died last night a few minutes after being stricken with apoplexy, while attending this year's A. A. U. convention.

He was stricken while attending a caucus to discuss nominations for the next A. A. U. president. Two physicians were summoned and after a brief consultation pronounced him dead.

Lowry Will Be Buried In Arlington Cemetery

Mexico City, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The body of Edward P. Lowry, American diplomat, who was killed in a fall last Wednesday, will leave by way of Laredo, Tex., Thursday for burial in Arlington Cemetery at Washington. The widow and two sons will be on the same train.

Mr. Lowry, who was second secretary of the American Embassy here, was buried temporarily in the American cemetery in Mexico City last week.

DAVIS IS MENTIONED FOR DISTRICT GROUP

Appointment of Morrow Also Expected on Committee Ruling Capital.

CARY ALSO POSSIBILITY

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis and Dwight W. Morrow may be named members of the Senate District committee when Congress convenes next month and the Secretary takes office as senator from Pennsylvania and Mr. Morrow takes up his duties as senator from New Jersey.

There will be two vacancies in the Republican membership on the committee due to the immediate retirement from the Senate of Senator Robsion, of Kentucky, and Senator David Baird, of New Jersey.

Three new Republican senators will take their seats this session, Senators-elect Morrow, Davis, and Cary, of Wyoming, who will take the place of Senator Pat Sullivan, and it has been the custom to fill District committee vacancies from among new members. There is nothing inviolable about this custom, however, and there has been no decision on the subject, but if the practice is followed then either Morrow or Davis, and possibly both, may be named to the District committee, with Senator-elect Cary a possibility.

Undoubtedly the wishes of Mr. Morrow will be consulted and it is expected that he will be given assignments to nationally important committees, including the foreign relations committee, because of his prominence as a national figure in Republican politics.

On the other hand Mr. Morrow is

Kidnaping in Tulsa Veiled in Mystery

Caretaker Says Sportsman Victim; Police, Sheriff Not Notified.

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The Tulsa World says George H. Hurford, Tulsa sportsman, was kidnaped last night and is being held for ransom.

Sheriff Charles Price and Chief of Police Garland Marce said they had received no reports of the affair.

The World says Mrs. Hurford and J. F. Funk, caretaker at the Hurford estate, 8 miles east of Tulsa, witnessed the kidnaping. Funk told an investigator he saw two men leap upon the running boards of Hurford's automobile as Hurford and his wife returned home last night from a fishing trip and force Hurford to get into another car in which they drove away.

"I'll talk when the proper time comes," was all Mrs. Hurford would say.

FEDERAL ROLE IN GRAIN SALES BOOSTS PRICES

ONE GRADE OF WHEAT GOES UP 3⅜ CENTS

Stabilization Corporation Holding 100,000,000 Bushels, Report.

PURCHASES AVERTED PANIC, LEGGE STATES

McNary to Call Conference Monday on Legislation Affecting Selling.

News that the Grain Stabilization Corporation, a Government agency, had under its control what appears to be the majority of this country's visible wheat supply yesterday shot wheat prices up by margins between ¼ cent per bushel and 3⅜ cents per bushel.

It was reported from various sources that the Government buying organization now holds as much as 100,000,000 bushels of wheat out of a present visible supply of 198,000,000 bushels. It was admitted yesterday by Chairman Alexander Legge, of the Federal Farm Board, according to the Associated Press, that the Government now owns more than 70,00,000 bushels of the grain.

Transactions Are Secret.

Government purchases of wheat have ben carried out with the greatest secrecy, reports from leading grain markets indicate, and their discovery yesterday lent a strongly bullish trend to the grain market. In Canada, as well as in the United States, the wheat market felt the effect of the Government's action, the market in Winnipeg, Canada, bounding upward from record low prices from the very opening of business yesterday morning. Winnipeg prices closed last night at 63⅝ cents a bushel for November wheat, 62¼ to 62¾ for December; 67¼ to 67⅞ for May, and 69¼ to 69⅛ for July, the Associated Press reported.

No. 1 Northern wheat finished last night at 3⅛ cents a bushel above its Saturday price, closing at 63⅝ cents per bushel as against 60⅛ cents for Saturday.

Comment by Legge.

Commenting on the activity of the United States Government in the grain market, Chairman Legge said yesterday that the Federal Farm Board, under which the Grain Stabilization Corporation operates, intends to stay in the market "as long as it is necessary to protect domestic prices from the demoralization of the world wheat situation," and that no limit has been set on the quantity of wheat which it may be expected to buy or the price which it will pay. Within the last few days it is said that the board has purchased more than 10,000,000 bush-

ANNOUNCES FILMS AS "EDUCATIONAL"

Retirement Climaxes Brilliant Career Started as Boy of 14; Now Is 28.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—With a gesture of sportsmanship as dramatic as anything he ever achieved on the links, Robert T. Jones, jr., today walked from the throne room of golf. King of all he surveys in his royal realm at the age of only 28, the one and only world conqueror of golfdom has decided to retire from all championship competition, renouncing his amateur standing at the same time, to fulfill a contract to make twelve one-reel motion pictures on educational golfing subjects.

Jones signed a contract four days ago, November 13, with Warner Bros. Pictures, after considerable negotiation, and in a statement of sweeping frankness today made known his intention to retire from all "golfing competition of a serious nature," after fourteen years of intense tournament play in this country and abroad.

His Career at Peak.

In short, business has taken the place of pleasure and recreation, so far as the Jones golf is concerned. King Bobby, after a year in which he made a record-breaking clean sweep of all the championships of Great Britain and the United States, has decided the opportunity to repair the family fortunes is not to be overlooked.

He intended to retire from title tournaments, anyway, he revealed, but had intended to "drop out quietly by neglecting to send in my entry to the open championship next spring." Now, however, and in view of the business venture he has undertaken, he felt it necessary that a "clear understanding" be had by the golfing public that has made the great Georgian its idol since as a youth of 14 he first crashed the barriers of national championship attention in 1916 at Philadelphia.

"Of course, the matter of monetary compensation enters into the discussion," his statement said. "And it is for numerous reasons that I wish to be perfectly understood on this score. The amateur status problem is one of the most serious with which the United States Golf Association has to deal for the good of the game as a whole.

REPUBLICANS TO FORM PERMANENT CAMPAIGN ORGANIZATION IN CITY

Parley Between Leaders and Hoover Reaches Decision on Plan.

LUCAS TO COMMAND NEW ORGANIZATION

Absence of Senator Fess Arouses Speculation on Retirement.

TREASURER REPORTS BALANCE OF $7,000

President Begins Writing Message to Congress Before Meeting.

(Associated Press.)

Republican party leaders at conferences with President Hoover yesterday determined to set up a permanent organization at the Capital to prepare for the campaigns two years hence.

The conferences included most of the officers of the Republican national committee except Senator Fess, of Ohio, the chairman, and his absence led to new speculation of his intention to retire.

Robert H. Lucas, of Kentucky, the chairman of the executive committee, will command the permanent headquarters and will have with him George de B. Keim, secretary of the national committee, and James L. West, director of publicity.

The business of yesterday's two conferences at the White House was reported by the participants as relating principally to the financial affairs of the national committee.

Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer of the national committee which supplied funds for the congressional and senatorial campaigns, reported a balance of approximately $7,000 without any outstanding debts or notes.

Others who attended the White House parleys included James Francis Burke, of Pittsburgh, counsel for the committee; Jeremiah Milbank, Eastern treasurer; Lucas and De B. Keim.

Reorganization Is Urged.

The establishment of a permanent headquarters fo rthe Republicans has been urged upon President Hoover by party leaders who have pointed to the Democratic organization here under Jouett Shouse and Charles Michelson. They put their please before the President with renewed vigor after the recent election. Some urged a reorganization of the national machine.

There have been intimations from friends of Senator Fess that he intended to turn over the chairmanship after steering the committee through the congressional election, but he has given notice that he will not resign while antiprohibitionists are demanding it.

President Hoover began writing his message to Congress earlier in the day. Work on the annual message was done in the seclusion of his executive office, and no indication came of either its nature or his progress upon it. He already has said he planned to call for an additional appropriation for public works to relieve the stress of unemployment.

Tariff Echoes Heard Again.

Meanwhile, echoes of the long tariff contest in Congress were heard again as Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, replied to the statement last week by Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, that it was questionable if the new tariff was high enough.

Through the Democratic national committee, Senator Barkley said: "It is conclusive evidence that Senator Smoot and others who think with him have learned nothing either from the depression from which the country has suffered for nearly two years, or from the recent election.

"If Senator Smoot's statement is meant as an invitation to reopen the tariff schedules contained in the Smoot-Hawley bill by the Congress which has been recently elected, we

Police and strikers fought bitterly in a half dozen clashes, with the mob applying the torch to certain places which had not closed in compliance with the strike order.

The disorder also took on a revolutionary tinge, for countless speakers mounted improvised rostrums and shouted for a republic. Others voiced fiery demands for a communistic regime and still others called for a separation of Catalonia from Spain—an old question.

Reed Protests Republicans' Threat Based on Chance of Extra Session.

BORAH LAUGHS AT PLAN

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The threat of some Senate Republican leaders to turn the organization of the Senate over to the Democrats in the event of an extra session met with both protest and ridicule yesterday.

Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, apparently misunderstanding the purpose of the threat, voiced a most feeling protest, saying that come what may the Republicans should not shirk their responsibility.

Senator Borah thought the threat rather funny and said something about wishing his going to heaven was as certain as the Republicans holding onto their committee chair-

Pabst Confirms Beer Plans; Raps Mrs. Boole

Dry Leader in Error, Says Brewer, When She Denies He Spent Big Sum to Prepare For Real Brew.

Houston, Tex., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Mrs. Ella E. Boole, national president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, told the annual convention today that her organization had "run to earth" and "branded as completely false" rumors that "the brewers of the country are getting their plans ready to resume brewing of intoxicating beer" in anticipation of modification of the eighteenth amendment.

"One specific statement printed widely was that the Pabst Brewery of Milwaukee was spending $1,000,000 in anticipation of early legislation permitting intoxcating beer," she said.

"Fred Pabst, of the famous beer family, when asked as to the accuracy of the statement, replied that he had no intention of spending any such sum for any such purpose, but that the free advertising was so good that he did not deny the story."

Two groups of delegates to the convention met about today preparing resolutions which probably will call upon the Democrats and Republicans to take firm positions on prohibition.

The activity got under way while the women still were thinking of a speech by Mrs. Mamie White Colvin, of New York, who had held up the possibility of a third party in 1931.

The delegates who were Republicans held informal conferences to draft their demands which will be placed before the convention, as did the Democratic women.

One of the day's high lights was the reading of a letter from Amos W. W. Woodcock, in which the national prohibition director said he "had no great hope" for the "direct success" of Federal prohibition enforcement against private violations.

Milwaukee, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Fred Pabst, sr., head of the Pabst Brewery Corporation, today reaffirmed previous statements that his concern had spent $800,000 for new brewery equipment because he believed the manufacture of beer again would be legally possible.

Shown the statement of Mrs. Ella E. Boole, president of the Woman's Chirstian Temperance Union, Pabst said she was in error."

"At no time, at no place and to nobody did I make a statement such as Mrs. Boole says I did," he said. "Nor did I say anything that would justify Mrs. Boole's statement."

"I don't know Mrs. Boole. Neither she nor any other member of the W. C. T. U. ever came to see me."

Pabst said that of the $800,000 spent for equipment only the $125,000 spent for filters would have been spent if it were not his belief in the return of beer. "And even for the filter expenditure I considered the probability of beer returning before I approved it," Pabst said.

Four Maryland Children Shot After Play With Gun

One of Party of Six Seriously Wounded Outside of Fairland Church Parish Hall When Weapon Is Accidentally Discharged by Youth.

Four children were shot, one seriously, when a shotgun owned by one of a party of six youths was accidentally discharged last night just outside the parish hall of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, in Fairland, Md., where the boys of the party had gone for basket ball practice.

Gordon Dodson, 15 years old, son of Hezekiah Dodson, of Fairland, is most seriously wounded. He is in Sibley Memorial Hospital with buckshot in his abdomen. Others wounded were Elmer Lechlider, 15 years old, son of Charles Lechlider, of Colesville, Md., five shots in the left forearm; Grace Duvall, 11 years old, daughter of Eugene Duvall, of Fairland, shots in the left side and left arm, and Frank Duvall, 15 years old, son of Oliver M. Duvall, of Fairland, shots in the right arm.

Daniel Roane, 15 years old son of Charles A. Roane, of Fairland, who police say owns the shotgun, has been released in custody of his father. Clarence Aubrey Stromberg, 13 years old, of Fairland, was the sixth member of the party.

En route to the basket ball practice, young Stromberg is said to have noticed the shotgun in the rear of the

Baker Detective On Mystery Trip

Flaherty Leaves Capital on Secret Mission in Murder Case.

A secret mission in connection with the Mary Baker murder was started last night by Detective Sergt. John A. Flaherty, who left the city under instructions from Capt. Edward J. Kelly.

All that Capt. Kelly and Inspector William S. Shelby would say is that Sergt. Flaherty would be away from the city in pursuit of two leads which have developed in the investigation of the celebrated mystery.

He is not expected to return until Wednesday night. This leads to the belief that the cities are within a radius of 200 miles. The officers would not reveal the nature of the new turns, but volunteered the information that they had developed as a result of a telephone call and investigation by detectives.

Neither Capt. Kelly nor Inspector Shelby were optimistic over the leads. They simply said that it was information which would have to be refuted to dissipate their suspicions.

District Grocer and Thug Fail to Score in Gun Duel

Shots of Max Ziegler, Held Up by Man Who Had Warned Him of Burglars, Finally Cause Pistol-Carrying Assailant to Flee.

A grocer last night answered the demands of a holdup man with bullets, the would-be robber replying in kind. The two fought a duel in an alley in the rear of 538 Twentieth street northwest, each firing five shots without any casualties resulting. The would-be thief escaped under cover of darkness after emptying his gun.

Max Ziegler was the grocer involved in the duel. He told police that about 8 o'clock last night a Negro came into the store and reported he had seen some one prowling in the yard at the rear of the store.

Mr. Ziegler went up on the roof of his establishment and peered down into the yard without being able to locate the alleged intruder. He climbed down over a rear porch and came along a high board fence in the alley next to his store.

As he regained a gate leading into the grocery, he said, the man who had given him the "warning" thrust a gun at him and commanded him to "stick 'em up!" Mr. Ziegler, who had his own gun in his hand, replied to the demand with a shot. Then the holdup man fired. The manships just as long as they possibly could.

BORAH RIDICULES REPUBLICAN THREAT

The threat which found its way to the public print last week is understood to have had as its basis the sacrificial mood of six or seven Republican senators. All of their identities are not known but their proposition is even understood to have been put up to President Hoover and he is understood to have agreed that it had its good points.

The purpose of the threat was presumably to frighten the Progressives who seem to be the most serious menace to the President's desire to avoid an extra session. If the plan should go through they would lose their attractive committee chairmanships and places, Senator Borah losing the chairmanship of the foreign relations committee, for example, and Senator Norris the chairmanship of the judiciary committee.

As a matter of fact, it is a perfectly good threat and one to which the Progressives would likely give serious consideration if the regulars showed a determination. It is believed that Senator Reed should have at least let the threat stand a while.

Senator Borah undoubtedly drew on his knowledge of senatorial human nature to laugh the threat off. He probably could not possibly bring himself to the picture of Senator Smoot relinquishing, martyr-like, the chairmanship of the finance committee, or Senator Watson, the post of majority leader.

In fact, Senator Reed said that the threat "perhaps should not be taken too seriously."

"I think it was made through pique," he said. At any rate, he would vote for Republican organization of the Senate even if he was the only man to do so, he said.

In the meantime, the extra session situation, so to speak, remained in a status quo. Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Montana, said there ought to be one for the passage of the debenture and other important legislation, including the adoption of the World Court adherence resolution.

The quite important question of Senator Borah's attitude toward an extra session remained undetermined. In the first place he has not had time to confer with his Progressive colleagues.

There is some ground for the belief that when he does meet with them he may counsel against a procedure that would lead to the extra session. There is an impression, maybe wrong but quite important if true, that he will advise that they try to put through their program at the short session, but if they fail, which they would, that they be content to leave the responsibility with Mr. Hoover.

There is no question that Mr. Hoover would be willing to accept this responsibility, be tickled to death to do so, in fact.

LINCOLN IS QUOTED IN APPEAL FOR INDIA

Federalization Is Urged by Hindu Potentate With Famous Passage.

FIRST BUSINESS SESSION

London, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Debate on whether India's future should be shaped along the lines of federalization or a powerfully centralized government opened at today's first business session of the Indian round table conference.

The Maharaja of Bikaner, Hindu potentate and ruler of his native state for 32 years, concluded an appeal for the federalization of India by quoting a famous passage from Abraham Lincoln's second inaugural address.

He said:

"With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in."

Urge Federal System.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and M. R. Jayaker, Indian leaders, who conducted negotiations with Mahatma Gandhi in India in an unsuccessful effort to find a settlement of the Indian problem, also addressed today's meeting.

Both Sir Tej and the Maharaja of Bikaner were strong for the federal system. Sir Tej described the present government of India as one of parliamentary sovereignty by a parliament of 600 placed 6,000 miles away, the majority of whose members had neither the knowledge or the capacity to understand India.

"Civil servants are good servants, but they are bad masters," Sir Tej said. "What then did India want?" he continued. "She wants," he added impressively, "and is determined to obtain, a status of equality—equality with the other three members of the British commonwealth; an equality which will give it a government not merely responsive to but responsible to the popular voice."

Princes Asked to Join.

To take a provincial view and offer provincial autonomy would be of no use unless it were coupled with a decided and clear change in the institution of the central government. The central government must be made responsible to the legislature. He urges that Indian princes join in such an all-India federation—"Remember they are Indians first and Indian princes second."

"I say we are one India," Sapru exclaimed. "Let them move forward with the vision of an India which will be one single whole, each part of which may be autonomous, and enjoy absolute independence within its own borders, regulated by proper relations the attainment of dominion status by with the rest."

The Maharaja of Bikaner declared India was inherent in the British declaration of policy of 1917, which had more recently been authoritatively indorsed.

Virginia to Place Presidents' Busts

Niches Set Aside to Honor Sons of State, Near Washington Statue.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Surrounding the Houdon statue of Washington under the State Capitol dome, busts of the seven other Virginia-born Presidents and Lafayette will be in their niches before the beginning of the Yorktown sesquicenial, Gov. John Garland Pollard said today.

The first bust placed will be that of Thomas Jefferson, which is being prepared as a gift to the State from French admirers. Gov. Pollard expects to unveil a bust each month between January and October, the month of Yorktown celebration.

Whatever the results of the farm meeting next week, it is expected to lead to decisive action in the Senate at the short session.

Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, has stated he will renew his fight for the export debenture. In the recent campaign Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, also charged a "betrayal" of the farmers by the administration.

The busts of Presidents Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Taylor, Harrison, Tyler and Wilson, the gifts of Virginians, citizens of other States in the Union, and France, will be placed in the niches overlooking the Washington statue.

said to be prepared to come to the Senate with no demands for preference at the moment, and to be willing to say, in substance, "I'll serve wherever the Senate wants me to." Secretary Davis has had a long residence in Washington as a member of the Cabinet and this may result in his selection to the committee. It is believed likely that there will be a disposition not seriously to disturb existing committee assignments for this short session in view of the existing doubt about the organization of the new Congress.

The present Congress dies on March 4, and with its end, two more members of the Senate District committee will depart. Senator Cole Blease (Democrat), of South Carolina, will be supplanted by Senator-elect James Byrnes, and Senator Arthur Gould (Republican), of Maine, will be replaced by Senator-elect Wallace H. White, jr., who goes to the Senate from the House.

It is not certain, however, that these four vacancies will be filled in the next Congress. The committee now has eight Republicans and five Democrats, and to make the party representation more nearly conform to membership in the Senate, some of the Republican vacancies may simply be left unfilled.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, chairman of the committee, is expected to arrive in Washington Friday and some more definite idea of what is to be done will be known then.

SENATE WILL STUDY FARM ACT RESULTS

Agricultural Leaders Asked to Tell Committee Marketing Views.

M'NARY CALLS ON HYDE

(Associated Press.)

The Senate agriculture committee is going to weigh the merits of the newly established farm marketing act next week and determine, with agricultural leaders, whether new legislation shall be sought at the approaching session.

Senator McNary (Republican), Oregon, chairman of the agriculture committee, yesterday called on Secretary Hyde and Chairman Legge of the Farm Board to meet with the committee next Monday to state their views and program.

He invited also the presidents of the three national farm organizations—L. J. Taber, of the National Grange; C. E. Huff, of the Farmers Union, and S. H. Thompson, of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The Oregon senator said he was calling the conference to get a complete picture of the agricultural situation before Congress meets. He said last fall that the new act should be given a thorough test before it is abandoned or modified.

Already there is a movement in the Senate to revive the export debenture principle of farm relief as a supplement to the farm marketing act. This was passed a year ago by the Senate over presidential objection, but defeated in the House.

Whatever the results of the farm meeting next week, it is expected to lead to decisive action in the Senate at the short session.

Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, has stated he will renew his fight for the export debenture. In the recent campaign Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, also charged a "betrayal" of the farmers by the administration.

ENGLE CHILD KILLED WHEN HIT BY AUTO

through The Post of the death of his son, is speeding north from Berclair, Tex., to attend the boy's funeral.

An inquest into the fatal accident will be held tomorrow morning at 11:30 o'clock in the District Morgue. Meanwhile Everett Keedy, Park road northwest near Seventeenth street, driver of the machine which struck young Engel, has been released in the custody of his attorney, pending action of the coroner's jury.

Mr. Keedy rushed the boy to Emergency Hospital immediately after the accident, but physicians there declared the youth dead upon arrival. He died as a result of a crushed skull and internal injuries.

Yesterday afternoon in District Supreme Court Mrs. Engel was granted a limited divorce decree by Justice William Hitz, giving her custody of Bryant and awarding her $27 monthly alimony.

After the decree had been signed at 4 o'clock, Mrs. Engel went home to her apartment, to prepare dinner for herself and Bryant. They ate and the youngster left the house to play with friends from the Henry D. Cooke School, where he was a pupil.

Persons on the ground floor of the apartment saw Bryant go into the street with several other boys. A moment later there was a scream, and an automobile screeched to a stop. Apartment employes rushed out to se Bryant's maimed and apparently lifeless body lying in the street.

Mother Collapses.

Before they could notify his mother, Mr. Keedy was on his way to Emergency Hospital, in a vain race with death. Mrs. Engel hurried to the hospital, unaware that her son was dead. When the news was broken to her at the hospital, she collapsed. After receiving medical treatment she returned to her home. Friends rushed to her side, to comfort her, but she was reported prostrated with grief.

Notified by The Post of the boy's death, President Clark Griffith of the Washington Club called Mr. Engel by long distance telephone at Berclair. The father was almost overcome with the shock and immediately made arrangements to reach Washington at the earliest possible moment.

Coroner J. Ramsey Nevitt and Assistant Traffic Director M. O. Eldridge visited the scene of the accident a few minutes after it occurred. The coroner reported that from what he could learn, the Engel boy darted into the street in front of Mr. Keedy's machine, apparently not having seen it, and that the motorist was unable to stop in time to avoid the child.

Street Was Dark.

Eyewitnesses of the accident reported that at the spot wheer the boy was struck it is unusually dark, street lamps furnishing little light for the sidewalks and practically none beyond the row of cars parked at the curb.

Clifton Stoner, 11 years old, of 1830 Fuller street northwest, boon companion of the Engel boy, who was with him when he was killed, broke down with grief after the accident, and last night was under the care of a physician.

Coroner Nevitt ordered the body of young Engel released to J. R. Wright, undertaker.

The Engels were married March 23, 1916, at Union City, Tenn., and came to Washington in September, 1925, according to the wife's petition.

Charges contained in the bill filed May 22, 1928, were based on alleged desertion on April 13, 1928, and the husband's reported persistence in calling her insulting names. At the time of the alleged desertion, the wife says, she asked him about the $50 a month allowance she had been receiving, and he is said to have told her to "try and collect." Mrs. Engel estimated that her husband's income was $10,000 a year.

Attorney Raymond Neudecker appeared for the wife.

Morganthau Sees New War Abroad With U. S. Involved

Former Envoy Probes War Debt Amoratorium As One Way America Might Check Aggression; Points Out Spots Where Danger Is Impending.

Battle Creek, Mich., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey, said today he believes another European war is imminent. If it happens, he said, the United States will be forced to take a hand, just as surely as it was in the World War.

War, he said, can be averted only by the United States.

He suggested that the United States propose a postponement of payments of war debts by various European countries to the United States, for possibly a five-year period, with the stipulation that any country which is the aggressor in a war shall sacrifice this right of deferment. France, the former ambassador said, is preparing to repel any attack, and is arranging alliances with Poland, Jugoslavia, Roumania and other countries.

Germany, he said, is not content without her colonies and territories and war talk is general.

In Italy, he said, Mussolini can hope to retain his personal domination only by some successful venture outside the country.

Mr. Morgenthau is a patient in a sanitarium here.

39 ARKANSAS BANKS SUSPEND PAYMENTS

HYSTERIA GETS BLAME

(Associated Press.)

Approximately 39 banks in Arkansas yesterday suspended payments to depositors for five days and two other small banks were closed for liquidation. Eight banks in Kentucky have been closed as a precautionary measure, while during the last two weeks four Tennessee banks have closed. Five Illinois banks have closed since Saturday. Four small banks in Missouri closed yesterday.

An optimistic view of the Tennessee situation was taken by D. D. Robertson, Tennessee superintendent of banks, who said "our banking troubles are over." Directors of the American Exchange Trust Co., of Little Rock, largest of the suspended Arkansas banks, said in their opinion the bank was solvent and with the "cooperation of our depositors a plan can be found to resume operations."

Most of the suspended Arkansas banks were affiliated with A. B. Banks & Co., which was associated with the American Exchange Trust Co. With the exception of three, all were comparatively small.

Directors of the American Exchange Trust Co. attributed the closing to public hysteria resulting from the Caldwell & Co., Nashville, Tenn., investment bankers, passing into receivership on November 7.

A director's statement said "the affairs of Caldwell & Co. are remote from Arkansas and nothing but an excited public mind could have forced the closing of this strong bank."

Re-Opening Permitted.

The American Exchange Trust Co. announced deposits of $15,014,589.41 on the date of the last bank call. The bank was capitalized at $1,000,000 and had a surplus of $500,000.

A. B. Banks is president of the institution.

The banks acted under an Arkansas State law which permits them, at the end of five days, to reopen or turn over their affairs to the State banking department.

Closing of the National Bank of Kentucky at Louisville, which had announced resources of $54,000,000 was followed by the closing of four smaller Louisville banks and the McElwain Meguiar Bank & Trust Co., of Franklin, Ky., and the Bank of St. Helens, a Louisville suburb.

Solvency Asserted.

Presidents of other Louisville banks issued statements asserting their institutions were solvent in every respect and would not be affected. At Paducah, Ky., the City National Bank of Paducah announced purchase of the First National Bank, of Paducah, and the Mechanics Trust & Savings Bank, of Paducah, after negotiations lasting some time.

The four banking houses which have closed in Tennessee during the last two weeks were the Bank of Tennessee, a subsidiary of Caldwell & Co.; the Holston Union National Bank, at Knoxville; the Liberty Bank & Trust Co., at Nashville, and the Campbell County Bank & Trust Co., at Jacksboro.

Attorney General L. D. Smith, of Tennessee, has reported $5,700,000 in State funds were on deposit in the bank of Tennessee, the Liberty Bank & Trust Co., and the Holston Union National Bank.

Mergers Announced.

A merger of the Fourth and First National Bank into the American National Bank has been announced in Nashville, as was the acquisition of the Tennessee-Hermitage National Bank by the Commerce Union Bank. The East Tennessee National Bank, the East Tennessee Savings Bank and the City National Bank, all of Knoxville, have been merged into the East Tennessee National Bank.

Federal Judge John J. Gore in Nashville Monday ordered creditors of Caldwell & Co. to present their claims before next July 1 and enjoined any creditors or claimants from instituting separate suits against Caldwell & Co., and enjoined all parties to any suits now pending from proceeding further, except by consent of the Court.

The Illinois banks which closed Monday were the Bartlett & Wallace State Bank of Clayton and the Timewell State Bank of Timewell. They were correspondent institutions of the State Savings, Loan & Trust Co. of Quincy, which closed Saturday. Two other banks which State Auditor Oscar Nelson said closed in connection with the failure of the State Savings, Loan & Trust Co. of Quincy were the Southside Bank of Quincy and the Payson State Bank of Payson.

Banks Held Sound.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The Little Rock Clearing House Association tonight said association banks in Little Rock and North Little Rock "are in excellent condition."

The statement said all clearing house member banks "have large cash resources and the total bills payable of all Little Rock and North Little Rock banks are less than $300,000.

"They are ready and able to take care of the banking and credit needs of this community," the statement added.

"Naturally the closing of the American-Exchange Trust Co. carries with it the closing of many of the banks in the so-called A. B. banks group. Because of Mr. Banks' official connection with all of them, they were closely associated together in the public mind.

"No other bank in Little Rock or North Little Rock has now or has ever had the slightest connection with either Caldwell & Co., the A. B. Banks group or any of their associated or affiliated companies, or any other banking group."

Iowa Institutions Close.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The Bank of Scranton, a private institution, and the George Savings Bank, of George, were closed today by their directors because of decreased deposits and frozen assets. The Scranton Bank was capitalized at $5,000 and the George Bank at $30,000.

Shifts Changed to Cut Jobless List.

Fairmont, W. Va., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—As a move to prevent further unemployment among its own workers, the Monogah Glass Co. here has announced the inauguration of four six-hour shifts in its plant instead of three eight-hour shifts.

TWO SHIPS ON ROCKS AS FOG GRIPS COAST

Crew Sticks to Freighter at Montauk; 32 Taken From Fishing Boat.

MIST TIES UP AIR LINES

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Stranded on the grounded freighter Harry Bowen in a thick fog, 35 members of the crew prepared to spend several more hours on the vessel, perched on a rocky reef off Montauk Point.

Although the fog made it impossible for Coast Guard men on the shore to see the Harry Bowen, the men on board signalled they intended to man the pumps all night and trust in the prospect for a quiet sea. There was little sea running and Coast Guard men believed the injuries to the freighter were so slight that she probably would weather the night.

Meanwhile, two Coast Guard cutters and a destroyer prepared to tow the freighter off the reef when high water came at 11 p. m.

The crew of 22 on the fishing trawler Petrel were taken from the vessel, aground off Cat Rock Cove, Block Island, just before noon by Coast Guard men in surf boats.

Both vessels had run aground in the fog that has enveloped the Atlantic seaboard from the Canadian border to Florida and as far inland as Pittsburgh, and which has tangled shipping along the coast and land and air traffic for three days. No relief for the next 25 hours was forecast by the Weather Bureau.

Mail and passenger airplane service from airports on Long Island and in New Jersey was at a virtual standstill. Only two planes left the Newark Airport during the day, one mail plane for Cleveland and Chicago, and one transport plane for Jacksonville. No word has been received of the safe arrival of Clarence Hudson, who took off on the mail plane. The transport plane made a successful trip.

Creeping cautiously through the fog-bound harbor, only one large liner, the Minnewaska, ventured to her birth. Several large ships, including the liners Conte Grande and Dresden, canceled their docking permits tonight after waiting all day at the entrance to the harbor.

such meetings and scattering hundreds of individuals who shouted "long live communism" and "long live the Soviets."

Cavalry troops of the regular army were ordered into action and heavy guards and soldiers patrolled the entire city.

The one known death resulted when a thousand demonstrators began breaking street lights in the Ronda San Antonio early tonight and then engaged in a pitched battle with police and troops. More than 100 shots were exchanged.

Near the Plaza Cataluna strikers broke open and burned a saloon which had not closed under the strike edict. Police attempted to prevent the disorder, firing many shots and wounding some of the manifestants.

A little later a great mob swarmed into the same plaza, which is the brightly lighted heart of the city, and piled up park and cafe furniture, setting a huge bonfire and screaming. The police charged, firing shots, but the mob fired in return and also stoned the constabulary.

At another plaza in the downtown section crowds tore up paving blocks and seized boulevard benches, cafe tables and other available articles to construct barricades. From behind these they answered the onslaughts of police and held firmly.

Another battle between police and strikers occurred in the Calle do Conde de Asalto.

Valencia, Spain, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The strike movement in Spain spread to Valencia today. The carpenters and several other groups of workers are out and metal workers and printers threaten strikes. All demanded more money and a reduction in hours.

Madrid, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Heavy patrols of police and civil guards dispersed groups of striking workmen, not yet returned to their posts, with little difficulty today.

Residential district workers paraded shouting, "Down with prohibition; down with the dry law!" because the taverns and drinking resorts were closed.

pair blazed away at each other until their pistols were empty, neither scoring a hit.

After the would-be robber had emptied his gun and found that Mr. Ziegler was still standing his ground, he took to his heels. The grocer pursued a short distance, but soon gave up the chase and reported the affair to police of the Third Precinct.

Given a good description of the man wanted, police started an intensive search for Mr. Ziegler's assailant. A considerable crowd was attracted by the shooting.

His condition is regarded as very satisfactory, in view of these conditions, since the arthritis has been checked from spreading, and now is being confined. There have been no other complications."

QUIZ OF U. S. JUDGE WILL BEGIN TODAY

Tennessean Faces Charge of Using Judicial Post to Profit in Deal.

SECRET HEARING LIKELY

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Charges that Federal Judge Harry B. Anderson, of west Tennessee, misused the services and salary of a district court employe and exerted judicial powers to profit in a business deal were selected for initial investigation today by a committee of the United States House of Representatives.

Judge Anderson has said he is innocent and welcomes the investigation. The committee announced he probably would be granted a secret hearing at his request.

Chairman Hickey, of Indiana, held a preliminary conference today. He said five voluntary witnesses will appear at the first session tomorrow.

Other members are Mr. La Guardia, of New York; Mr. Sumners, of Texas; Mr. Browning, of Tennessee, and Mr. Sparks, of Kansas.

Bart Tully, one of the central figures in the allegation that Judge Anderson utilized his powers as a judge to force a favorable stock sale, was named as one of tomorrow's witnesses by Chairman Hickey.

Mr. Tully is a partner in the Anderson-Tully Lumber Co., a firm which Judge Anderson's father, now dead, retired several years ago. The charge before the committe is that Judge Anderson agreed to drop a Federal case against Bart Tully in order to insure a profitable sale of the Anderson family's lumber company stock. Mr. Tully testified at a House judiciary committee investigation held in Washington.

The other charge alleges that Judge Anderson appropriated part of the salary of James Banks, Negro employe of his court, and required banks to act as his personal servant.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THERE is an awful lot of bunk in this discussion of the desires of the two parties in regard to the control of the House and Senate.

From Democratic sources frequently comes the argument that they are glad, overjoyed, in fact, that they fell just short of capturing control of either the House or the Senate.

In such a situation, they contend, all of the fun is theirs with no responsibility.

And similarly there comes the story now and then from Republican quarters that they wish themselves that the Democrats would organize the two houses.

* * * *

SUCH reasoning must be founded on the assumption that the country is utterly dumb.

Insofar as control of the Senate and House in the Seventy-second Congress is concerned, it will unquestionably lie with the Democrats and Progressives. Theirs will be the responsibility for the legislation.

What hapuens to it when it gets in the hands of Mr. Hoover is another matter. But the shaping of the procedure and policies on Capitol Hill will indisputably be the coalition's and it is impossible that the country will not see it this way.

* * * *

NOW under these circumstances, for the Democrats to put on the bluff that they are glad they will not organize the two houses is ridiculous.

Indeed, there is plenty of proof of this in their persistence in demanding recounts in several of the contested House seats, and the claim of some of their leaders that when all is said and done, by the time the Seventy-second session rolls around, they will have sufficient seats to organize the House. And it may easily be that they will.

The point is that insofar as the country is concerned it makes no difference which party organizes the next House or the next Senate. The coalition will be in control and will undoubtedly be held responsible for the legislative program.

* * * *

INSOFAR as the threat of six or seven Republican senators not to organize the Senate was intended as a threat to the Progressives not to force an extra session, it might be taken seriously. That is, if they are really unselfish enough to go through with it.

But this talk of not caring for the organization because the country will hold the party having its responsible for the legislative conduct, is fantastic. The country will hold the coalition responsible.

And this being the case both sides want the committee chairmanships and the patronage that goes with them. There is no mistaking that.

els of the grain in Kansas City and Chicago markets.

These purchases, according to statements credited to Legge and George S. Milnor, general manager of the Grain Stabilization Corporation, have averted a panic in the wheat market which might have extended to the milling industry and the banks. Yesterday's upturn in the wheat market was pointed to as the first salutary effect of the Government's buying operations.

McNary to Call Session.

Senator Charles L. McNary (Republican), Oregon), is said to have stated in a telegram yesterday that he intends calling a conference next Monday for the purpose of outlining possible future legislation looking toward further efforts to stabilize domestic markets.

"The subject is so important," said Senator McNary's telegram, "it is my opinion that there should be no informal discussion before Congress convenes. It is my desire to hold a conference in my committee room November 24 at which I hope to have present the presidents of the three major farm organizations, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the chairman of the Federal Farm Board. The meeting, not to exceed two days, is called in the confident belief that a conference on this subject will be productive of good to the industry and probably determine whether we should press forward with additional legislation."

It is understood that the Federal Farm Board will require additional appropriations from Congress to carry out its program of grain purchases.

Maryland Man, Found on Road, in Critical State With Fractured Skull.

AUTO TWO MILES AWAY

Believed a victim of foul play, Ernest L. Daymude, 38 years old, a plumber of Kensington, Md., and World War veteran was in a critical condition last night at Walter Reed Hospital suffering from a fracture of the skull inflicted by what authorities believe to be a blunt instrument.

Stumbling dazedly along the highway from Glenmont to Silver Spring, Daymude was found early yesterday morning by a passing motorist, Earl Gooding, of 1307 Grace Church road, Silver Spring, who took him to the Silver Spring substation of Montgomery County police. He was given first aid treatment by Dr. W. R. Haynes, of Silver Spring, and removed to the hospital.

A short time later police located the man's abandoned automobile parked alongside the Glenmont-Silver Spring road about 2 miles from the spot where Daymude was found wandering toward the District. The machine was found parked and undamaged.

Daymude served as a sergeant in Company K, of the 115th Engineers, a Montgomery County outfit which served with valor overseas during the World War, and which recently held a reunion. He is the father of six children, the oldest of which is 9 years old.

CONTEMPT CHARGES THREATENED BY NYE

Witnesses Called in Probe of Campaign Expenses Fail to Appear.

SECOND CHANCE IS GIVEN

Lincoln, Nebr., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Warning that persons evading subpenas may be held in contempt and charges of attempted intimidation of witnesses enlivened the Senate investigation of Nebraska campaign expenditures today.

Six witnesses summoned to testify regarding the recent senatorial campaign failed to respond when their names were called, and Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the investigation committee, suggested that they be ordered to Washington to give their testimony at the conference of the committee, under penalty of being held in contempt.

Give Second Chance.

Senator Porter H. Dale agreed, but it was finally decided to give the missing witnesses another opportunity to make an appearance.

Minor S. Bacon, a Lincoln attorney, was called to testify concerning what Chairman Nye termed an attempt to intimidate Miss Esther Alton, a witness at a previous hearing.

Miss Alton, who formerly was employed in the office of Victor Seymour, an attache of the Republican national senatorial committee, told of the latter's political activities in connection with the filing for senator of George W. Norris, Broken Bow grocer, to oppose the incumbent, Senator George W. Norris. She had also told that the Nebraska secretary of state, Frank Marsh, had been a visitor at the office of Mr. Seymour on several occasions.

Refused to Sign.

Bacon said he called on Miss Alton with Marsh and that she did not recognize the secretary. This prompted him to ask her to sign an affidavit acknowledging her testimony was untrue, he said, but she refused to sign the affidavit. Bacon added that he had told Miss Alton there was a possibility that she would be prosecuted for perjury, if she did not sign the document.

George W. Abel, Lincoln contractor, who admitted contributing $1,000 to the campaign fund of William Stebbins, Norris' opponent for the Republican nomination, told the committee he regarded as a joke reports that $60,000 had been sent into Nebraska to aid Stebbins.

A number of other witnesses also testified regarding contributions in behalf of Stebbins, after which Senator Nye remarked he was confident "there has not been a full accounting of money spent in this campaign."

Rain Aids Vegetation, Fails to End Drought

While rains of the past week were too light to break the drought in Virginia and Maryland, grass and vegetation about the District were helped materially, the Weather Bureau announced yesterday. During the past seven days the bureau recorded a total rainfall of only .38 of an inch, but it was pointed out that such light showers had helped more than one heavy downpour would have done, since the moisture gently settled into the earth and about dry tree roots.

The outlook for the next few days is for mild temperatures and light rains, with cooler and clearer weather toward the end of the week.

automobile. He inquired of Roane whether any shells were available. Young Roane, according to police, produced some shells and the youngsters fired several shots in the air.

Then a shell did not fire. With the gun breech half open, the weapon was left in the machine. The Roane boy, so he told police, went back to the machine upon arrival at the parish hall, to try to fix the gun. He picked it up by the barrel and the action shut the breech and discharged the gun.

The buckshot struck the group standing nearby. Young Lechlider, although wounded in one arm, drove to Silver Spring, Md., with Gordon Dodson, while Leroy Harper, of Fairland, brought in the other wounded.

At the office of Dr. Claude Mitchell in Silver Spring, Dr. Mitchell and Dr. John M. Bankhead, whom he called in, treated the Dodson and Lechlider boys and Dodson was sent to Sibley Hospital. Grace Duvall and Frank Duvall were treated at Montgomery County General Hospital, in Sandy Spring, where the boy was dismissed, but the girl kept overnight.

McMahon Freed In Larceny Case

Sportsman Accepts Trial by Justice; Ruling on Day Is Delayed.

After accepting trial by Court instead of jury, Bryant McMahon, local sportsman, was acquitted yesterday before Justice Oscar R. Luhring in District Supreme Court. Tally Day, who was indicted jointly with McMahon on a charge of housebreaking and larceny, will not know his fate until Thursday, when the trial will be resumed. The justice sustained a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal.

Day, however, was compelled to put on defense testimony in an effort to refute Government testimony that he had been near the home of Charles Lingle, at 1225 Eighteenth street northeast, last June 5 when the house was burglarized and $25 taken. Day was identified as one of three men who registered at a tourist home nearby. He was asked to write his name and the assumed name he is alleged to have written on the register of the tourist house. Handwriting experts will be called Thursday.

The trial by the Court in a criminal case is the second of such nature in the local records. Assistant United States Attorney Irving Goldstein is prosecuting, while Attorney E. Russel Kelly appears for Day.

Early Action Planned Upon Delayed Pensions

The Pension Bureau will soon turn its attention to clearing up claims of retired Government workers whose annuity checks have been held for adjudication, E. W. Morgan, acting commissioner of pensions, announced yesterday.

The large number of claims has caused the delay and aroused protests from the Federation of Federal Employes, he said. The claims will be considered, he added, just as soon as the increases under the new pension law are out of the way, probably the end of this month.

VIRGINIA ZEPPELIN SITE HELD FAVORED

Emig Declares Dr. Eckener Seriously Considers Valley as Base.

AIRPORT REPORT MADE

Serious consideration of Virginia as a possible site of the American base for the proposed transatlantic Zeppelin line is being given at the present time by Dr. Hugo Eckener, Maj. Clayton E. Emig declared in speaking before a meeting of the Interfederation Conference last night at the United States Chamber of Commerce Building.

Maj. Emig substantiated his remark in declaring that he received the information "on good authority." He made the reference in submitting a verbal report on municipal airport sites in the Washington area, on which no action was taken by the conference, when its attention was called to a resolution adopted in March favoring establishment of a municipal airport recommended in the Bingham bill.

Various members discussed at length the advisability of amending the resolution, specifically the proposed municipal site between the Highway Bridge and the new Memorial Bridge, to commit the association on the proportion of funds to be paid by the District government and the Federal Government, but the matter was held in abeyance.

A detailed statement of the attitude of the District of Columbia Federation of Citizens' Association, one of the three-member groups of the Interfederation Conference, was requestion for submittal at its next meeting. With the retirement of Col. Emig as a representative of the federation to the conference, this latter body requested that a report be submitted on the question by Maj. A. M. Holcombe, the new representative.

Col. A. B. Barber, president of the conference, filed a report advocating adoption of a law to require certificates of motor title i nthe District; adoption of a driver's license law in Virginia; and drastic recordification of motor vehicle laws in Virginia.

Tentative reports were submitted by James G. Yaden, on a fiscal commission for the District; by Frank G. Campbell, on signboard restriction; and by Edwin S. Hedge on cooperation with the planning commissions.

French Minister Quits Under Savage Attack

Paris, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The savage attack for which he was the target in the Chamber of Deputies last Friday resulted today in the resignation of Raoul Peret, minister of justice in the Tardieu cabinet. Spokesmen for the opposition made a direct charge of malfeasance in office Friday accusing the minister of accepting appointment as legal adviser to certain interests of the Oustric Bank, which recently failed.

Through the week-end the premier had been urged to revamp his cabinet to get out from under a burden which might become overwhelming, but Tardieu, whose clever management of Friday's debate won a vote of confidence for his minister of justice, was reluctant to remove him. Pressure became so strong upon him today, however, that he accepted Peret's resignation when it was offered this evening.

Central Management Planned for Societies

Representatives of eight local State societies, the Society of Natives of the District of Columbia, and the Southern Society, will meet at the Willard Hotel on December 6, to discuss plans for the formation of a central committee, which will handle all details connected with the meetings of the various organizations.

Difficulties have been experienced in the past, it was stated, when two or more of the associations would meet on the same date, making hotel space, desirable orchestras and other services necessary for the meetings scarce and expensive for the rest of the societies. The new committe, it was declared, would prevent this, by arranging the meeting dates and places for each organization.

MANNING SUPPORTS CHURCH STATEMENT

Seconds Declaration That Episcopal Denomination Is Catholic, Protestant.

WOULD HAVE SIGNED IT

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Bishop William T. Manning said today he was thoroughly in accord with a statement issued to eleven Episcopal congregations here yesterday. The statement expressed the belief that the Protestant Episcopal Church called itself both Catholic and Protestant. It was interpreted as a reply to a recent sermon in which Bishop Manning said that the church "is fundamentally and definitely Catholic."

Bishop Manning, in today's statement, cited another portion of his sermon, in which he said:

"But while the Episcopal Church bears witness to the great fact of apostolic order, she stands also, and with her whole soul, for evangelical truth. As one of our greatest bishops in this church, John Henry Hobart, so clearly proclaimed, she is as truly evangelical as she is truly Catholic, both of these truly and both equally."

The statement issued to the congregations yesterday was signed by eleven rectors and two former rectors and set forth that the name of the Communion was the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, and that every candidate for ministry in the Communion must take an ordination vow of conformity to the doctrine, discipline and worship of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

"I have noticed in the papers this morning a statement signed by several of our clergy of the Diocese of New York," read the statement from Bishop Manning today.

"To avoid all possibility of misunderstanding in this matter, may I say that, if this statement had been brought to me, I should have been quite willing to add my signature to it."

Troops Are Withdrawn From Cuban Police Duty

Havana, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Havana had so quieted today under martial law, decreed last Thursday, that troops doing police duty were ordered withdrawn. Their commanders, however, were advised to be prepared for instant duty. Meanwhile the government continued its drive against Communism, sentencing many persons to short terms in prison and threatening others with deportation.

One hundred and fifty persons who had been arrested in riots in the last four days were taken to court this morning and sentenced to jail terms of a month each. "Take a vacation to cool off," the judge admonished them.

Plans Completed For Yule Shopping

Merchants Are Ready for All Christmas Shoppers.

All arrangements are now completed for the 1930 Christmas shopping season, it was announced yesterday by Edward D. Shaw, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

"Washington merchants," Mr. Shaw said, "are prepared to meet the growing demand of the public for Christmas goods six weeks in advance of the usual Yuletide shopping period. Christmas displays will be put on view this week instead of the first week of December."

Many stores, at the close of the day's business yesterday, reported a decided impetus in Christmas buying. Predictions are being made by merchants that a great bulk of the Christmas shopping will be disposed of by December 15. This date represents the deadline for mailing to the West for Christmas. Posters, bearing the shop early slogans and pictures of Santa Claus, appeared on the front of street cars yesterday.

British Railways Propose Wage Cut

Mine Owners Also Hold Conference on Slash in Men's Pay.

London, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Britain's railway and mining industries entered a critical week today as conferences opened between employers and union officials over proposed wage cuts.

Railway operators seek to cut a million and a half pounds a year from their shop pay rolls in addition to reductions of nine and a half millions previously demanded in traffic personnel pay. They propose to reduce the shopman's bonus established during the World War, which provides payment of six shillings sixpence (about $1.60) for piece workers, and brings the "war wage" to ten shillings (about $2.50) a week. The union spokesmen said they would think that over, but some of them said privately that any wage cuts would be bitterly opposed.

Mine owners conferred with union officials at Cardiff regarding a new wage and time agreement to replace one which expires on November 31.

Prince Will Combine Business With Pleasure

London, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—When the Prince of Wales visits South America next year he plans to combine pleasure with business. Except for opening the British trade exhibition at Buenos Aires his trip will be an unofficial one, and few definite engagements are being arranged.

It was learned today that while in Argentina he will be the guest of some of the large private estates and may visit Mar Del Plate, the seaside resort near Buenos Aires. In Peru and Chile he will spend some time sightseeing.

Second East-West Air Line to Open

N. A. T. and Boeing Will Use Northern Route to Coast.

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The final link in a second transcontinental air passenger line will be opened Monday, December 1, when National Air Transport, Inc., begins carrying passengers over its New York-Cleveland route.

The line will connect at Chicago with Boeing Air Transport, which operated a passenger and mail service from there to San Francisco. The elapsed time from New York to San Francisco, including an overnight stop in Chicago, will be around 46 hours. The air distance over the two lines is 2,659 miles.

The N. A. T.-Boeing line will parallel the Southern route of T. A. T.-Western Air, which operates passenger and mail service between New York and Los Angeles, by way of Indianapolis, St. Louis and Amarillo, Tex. The flying time over this route is 36 hours. N. A. T. has been carrying mail between New York and Chicago for several years.

PAY-ROLL EXPANSION WILL BE URGED HERE

City Relief Body to Canvass Employers; Garges Named Liaison Officer.

REGISTRATION IS ASKED

While the tabulation of unemployment statistics received in Saturday's census continued yesterday, Chairman Frederic A. Delano's city-wide committee was preparing to canvass local employers, with a view to bringing all pay rolls up to maximum.

Meanwhile registration of the unemployed will continue with the cooperation of the press and the fourteen police precinct stations, which will distribute application cards upon request. Reports from the 98 schools that opened registration offices last Saturday will not be completely tabulated before tonight or tomorrow, but Mr. Delano believes that they will show approximately 7,000 persons out of work in the District.

The District Commissioners, who are sponsoring the work of the committee, yesterday appointed Daniel E. Garges, secretary of the board, as a liaison officer to represent them in negotiations between the committee an dthe District government. Yesterday also saw the opening of an independent unemployment relief campaign by the Federation of Citizens Associations, which authorized the move at a special meeting Saturday night.

Seek to Create Work.

A committee of the federation headed by William A. Roberts will circulate through neighborhood organizations a plea for home owners to create as much work as possible.

Mr. Delano explained that immediately upon the completion of the employers' census, the committee will attempt to place the jobless without red tape or delay. Employers who have reduced their staffs below the 1929 level will be asked to put on extra workers, while those who have made no curtailment will be urged to enlarge their personnel wherever possible. Efforts will also be made to expedite construction jobs that have already been planned.

Registration Is Urged.

If the final tabulation of applications bears out Mr. Delano's estimate of 7,000, the unemployment percentage in the District will be approximately 1.8, as compared with New York's 2.9 per cent, and the 3 per cent figure reported in a number of other cities.

Believing that many jobless persons failed to register last Saturday, Mr. Delano yesterday emphasized his plea for the enrollment of all the unemployed, either through the precinct stations or by filling out the blanks appearing today in The Post and mailing them to the committee's headquarters in Room 507, of the District Building.

Europe Post, No. 3, American Legion, announced last night that today from 4 until 10 o'clock it will receive donations of clothing for the unemployed. Headquarters will be in the Twelfth street Y. M. C. A. at 1816 Twelfth street northwest. Clothing for men, women and children will be accepted, the post's auxiliary to handle contributions for women. The post will call for clothing if notified at the Y. M. C. A.

ROCK PENETRATED IN GROTTO SEARCH

Large Numbers Expected in Excavations Being Made in Italy.

HUNT ELUSIVE RIVER

Postoina, Italy, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Soundings, explorations, excavations and curious experiments in tracing the courses of underground streams have started to reveal secrets of the mysterious grottos of Postoina.

Two miles of weird caverns, with bottomless lakes and ice-cold subterranean falls and rivers, remain to be explored. They are hidden behind a wall of rock which Italian engineers are now penetrating.

Four and a half miles in a straight line from the principal entrance of the grottos begins an abyss, the Delia Piuca, where the new work is going on. Tourists have been able to work their way, always with trained guides, to this point, but never beyond.

A thousand feet across the abyss, the Piuca stream, already 260 feet below the roof of the cavern, plunges under a rock wall and is lost to view. From the churning and roar of the water it is called here "the siphon."

Hope for More Grottoes.

It is this rock wall that engineers under Cavaliere Perco, director of the grottos, are seeking to pierce. Beyond, they believe, they will find scores of grottos as big and beautiful as those already in view. And they think they will learn something more of the mystical meanderings of one of the strangest rivers in the world.

Near this town are four rivers without beginning or end. For a while they flow like other streams, and then, tired of the sunlight and the open, plunge into the lower regions.

By putting coloring materials in the Piuca River, engineers have learned that the river which disappears under the wall of rock at the foot of the abyss emerges seven and a half miles away. It crosses the Jugoslavian frontier under the name of the Uncia River, and once more dives below ground in the Planina caverns.

This should be enough for any bad river, but not for the Piuca. It comes to light again at Ljubljana, under the name of Ljubljanica, and empties into the Sava, the great tributary of the Danube. Thus the coloring material thrown into the Piuca in the grottos of Postoina crosses Jugoslavia, Bulgaria and Roumania and finally empties into the Black Sea.

Held Elusive River.

Cavaliere Perco believes the present excavations will reveal what happens to the elusive river in its seven and a half miles wandering through the unexplored caverns.

The river renders the excavations most dangerous. As the drilling of the siphon wall goes on a sentinel is constantly on duty at the top of the abyss to give instant alarm if the volume of the river increases. For the river, fed by unknown underground streams, capriciously rises without warning.

Work will continue for at least a year. But then Cavaliere Perco is certain he will have a natural monument to show to tourists that they could not duplicate anywhere else in the world. Already the grottos are so enormous that thousands of persons have gathered within them to hear an orchestra concert directed by Mascagni.

Low-Priced Autos Appeal to French

Trade in American Cars Is Feeling the Effect of Draft.

Paris, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Trade in American automobiles has felt severely the Frenchman's drift toward low-priced cars and his temporary tighter grasp on the family pocketbook.

The higher tariff on cars has made but little difference, because American agents are still selling machines brought in before the increase took effect. Business depression, however, has made some difference in sales, as France seems to be following the American public in paying less for cars.

Only one-fifth as many American cars were sold here in the first half of 1930 as were marketed a year ago. Ford, who would profit by a drift to lower priced cars, is reported to have bettered slightly last year's 1,000-a-month quota at his French assembling plant.

Proof that times are difficult along automobile row is afforded by reduced production of some of the largest makers despite a recent halving of the 12 per cent tax de luxe.

YOUTH BRINGS HOME ALONG TO COLLEGE

Student in Columbia, Mo., Has House Built Near Campus.

WAGES GO TO TUITION

Special to The Washington Post.

Columbus, Mo., Nov. 17.—John Davenport, son of a section foreman at Mercer, Mo., came to the State University here as a student, bringing his home with him. Rather, it was trucked here by his father and his brother. He is 19 and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Obie Davenport.

The Davenports had to exercise much self-denial to provide funds for the education of their children. To eke out the family income the mother teaches school. The father also has been employed for a number of years as rural free delivery carrier.

Family Council Held.

When John learned all that the grade schools of Mercer and the prep school at Trenton could teach him there was a family council on the subject of a course in college. It was decided to build a small cottage in which he could sleep, study and prepare his meals and which would answer for his home during the four-year term.

John worked on the section as laborer through the vacation. He was able to save practically all of his wages, more than $200, and this sum was applied upon his tuition and other expenses.

House Cost $250.

When school opened this fall the house was hauled here, 212 miles from home, and set upon a lot near the campus, which was rented for $1 a month. John's mother and sister canned fruit and vegetables to supply his table during the winter. The cost of the house was $250. It is constructed in sections held together by 25 bolts. Only the essentials are provided because of the limited space. One stove serves for heating and cooking.

The windows have curtains, the work of John's mother and sister, and there are rugs on the floor. There is wiring for electricity and a connection has been made with a nearby electric line. In warm weather an oil stove is utilized for cooking. John is a first-class cook. His mother saw to that.

COLOMBIA WILL TAX RICH EXPATRIATES

Persons Living in Foreign Lands Must Pay Income Levy Under New Plan.

LAW FOR IMPECUNIOUS

Bogota, Colombia, Nov. 17.—Colombia wants her wealthy sons to spend their money where they make it and keep the home fires burning. For several decades rich Colombian families have been making a practice of visiting New York and the larger European capitals, and once there forgetting to come back.

As a result the nation doesn't get much profit out of them. Many well-to-do families are now hibernating in New York, Paris, London and other European capitals. They draw their incomes from the mother country and send home letters of what a fine time they're having.

Persuasion of No Effect.

Since persuasion has had little effect on these expatriates the government has decided to change tactics and use pressure where it will be more effective, according to El Tiempo.

President Olaya Herrera has sent a bill to congress by which all incomes of persons living in foreign lands, with the exception of government officials and students, will be liable to a tax. In this way the government hopes that it not only will add substantially to the treasury, but will induce its wandering sons and daughters to come home.

Bar on Impecunious.

The Bogota government has also taken steps to protect itself against impecunious nationals abroad. In future, according to a recent presidential decree, all persons leaving the country, no matter what their social or business standing, must deposit a guarantee.

In case the citizen gets stranded in foreign lands the Colombian authorities can bring him or her home without dipping into its own pocket. In the past a good many Colombians had to be brought home at the expense of the government, and in very few cases has the latter been reimbursed.

PUBLIC DEBT CAN WAIT.

Sentiment in favor of suspending payments on the public debt during the period of depression is steadily gathering momentum. It is reported that the Treasury will not oppose such a program, and even Senator Smoot, chairman of the Senate finance committee, is willing that debt reduction be postponed this year to avoid a deficit. It is apparent that Congress can not in any other way speed up the Federal building program for relief of unemployment without increasing the tax burden.

While the country was prosperous and tax receipts were increasing in spite of a gradual reduction of rates the administration took the attitude that the national debt ought to be wiped out as soon as possible. Economy demanded that the staggering total indebtedness, amounting to $26,596,000,000, be reduced in order to cut down the interest payments. In 1920 Congress adopted a program calling for a sinking fund sufficient to retire 2½ per cent of the outstanding debt, plus certain interest requirements, each year. Under this arrangement $3,178,468,000 has been paid on the principal. But the administration was not satisfied with that. It has applied surplus funds, amounting to $7,223,884,000, to debt retirement, with the result that the people have been paying nearly $1,000,000,000 per year on the public debt. The principal has been cut down from more than $26,000,000,000 to $16,185,309,000 in ten years.

This is an excellent record. Debt retirement has proceeded nearly three times as fast as is provided by law, and the Government has saved an enormous sum that otherwise would have been paid in interest.

Prosperity throughout the country made this achievement possible. Taxes did not burden the people unreasonably. Now prosperity has temporarily disappeared. An increase in taxation—even failure to maintain the temporary tax reduction granted last year—would be a burden to the country. Recovery from the depression with its unemployment, its want and suffering, would be indefinitely delayed by a stiffening of tax rates. It would be nothing short of absurd to attempt to maintain the pace of debt reduction that was set during the heights of prosperity.

The Treasury is committed by law to retire approximately $400,000,000 of the outstanding debt this year, and $415,000,000 next year. During 1930 the Treasury has used only $65,000,000 for this purpose, which means that about $335,000,000 would be available to balance the budget and provide tax relief, if Congress should suspend payments on the national debt. This sum may be augmented by nearly $200,000,000 which is due from the war debts owed the United States by European countries. Should the public be given the benefit of this entire amount through a building program and reduced taxes for the next five or six years the Government would still be ahead of its debt retirement schedule. It is probable, however, that economic conditions will be so improved within a year, or two years, that reasonable payments on the national debt can be resumed without retarding industrial and commercial development.

It is timely, regardless of economic circumstances, for Congress to consider a revision of the debt retirement program. That portion of the debt which is represented by loans to foreign governments ought to be left for those governments to pay. Should this obligation be wiped out by taxing the American people the chances of European countries continuing their payments would be remote indeed.

It is plainly evident that Congress can avoid a deficit and provide the country with a two-edged sword for use against the depression at the same time. House leaders are arranging to keep expenditures, except those for construction of buildings and highways, at a minimum. The administration is shaving budget requests to the bone. If the raids on the Treasury that have been proposed from various sources can be held in check, and if tax money that has been going into the public debt sinking fund can be diverted to constructive purposes, the Government will make a great contribution to the return of prosperity.

FARM BOARD BUYS WHEAT.

The mystery as to what outside force was at work in the Chicago wheat pit last week is cleared away by a statement of Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board. "Demoralization in world grain markets," he says, "has made it necessary for the Grain Stabilization Corporation again to enter the wheat market in order to stop panicky selling and to prevent further unwarranted declines in prices. Comparatively, wheat is lower in price than agricultural commodities. * * * Further price declines would be in sympathy with foreign markets and not justified by domestic conditions."

While Mr. Legge carefully avoids disclosing the extent of the corporation's operations, his statement clears away the mystery as to why Saturday's trading in December contracts was in such great volume in Chicago despite the fact that in other markets wheat of the same class was available at discounts from the Chicago price ranging from 8 to 14 cents.

Early in the year the Stabilization Corporation, in an effort to "peg" prices, entered the open market and bought wheat at prices ranging from $1.12 to $1.25 a bushel. It has never been revealed how much wheat was purchased in these operations, nor what average price was paid, but it is believed that the Government has a paper loss of at least $50,000,000 at the present time on its holdings of wheat. At the time these purchases were made the corporation also bought cotton. It is estimated that the corporation now holds some 1,300,000 bales of cotton, and it was admitted officially when the 1930 wheat crop came on the market that the corporation held in warehouses scattered around the country some 60,000,000 bushels of 1929 wheat.

It may be that the Farm Board has reentered the wheat market as a purchaser for the purpose of averaging down the price of its holdings. Certainly there appears to be no immediate prospect of prices that would enable the corporation to dispose of its holdings without suffering large losses. But if, as Chairman Legge says, the price of wheat has been depressed to a level economically unjustified, the Government may eventually get out of the market if it averages up its costs. The corporation's holdings are so extensive, however, that the first motion toward unloading might knock the bottom out of prices.

The Farm Board's entry into the commodity markets as a purchaser is almost sure to end in loss. Where is it to find a market for the store of wheat it holds? So long as production exceeds or even keeps pace with demand, Government wheat can not be let loose in any considerable volume on the domestic market without carrying prices down and injuring the farmers. There is little probability of selling wheat abroad at higher prices. When does the Farm Board hope to dispose of its increasing holdings of wheat?

BOBBY JONES RETIRES.

The golfing world learns with regret that Bobby Jones has retired from competition. Holder of all the major golf titles of the United States and Great Britain, this young Alexander of the niblick has no more worlds to conquer. He has reached pinnacles of fame and achievement that no other golfer has ever reached and by retiring before he begins to slip, as all champions sooner or later must, he makes certain that the tales of his prowess will go down as legends in the saga of the royal and ancient sport.

The question that has agitated the golfing world more than any other of recent years is: Who is the man who can beat Jones? That question will never be answered unless at some future date Bobby reconsiders his decision to avoid competitive play. Through the years champions will be compared with the Bobby Jones of 1930. For the next few years, at least, the holding of a golf title will not be as full an honor as it would be if the champion of champions were not in retirement. The situation in golf will be somewhat similar to that in the heavyweight division of professional boxing. To the great majority of fight fans, Gene Tunney, the undefeated, is still the champion. To most golfers, Bobby Jones, the undefeated, will continue to be a better golfer than any mere title holder.

Bobby Jones' retirement will lift a load from the shoulders of other outstanding golfers. Bobby's invincibility beat many a good tournament golfer before he started play. With the psychological menace of Bobby Jones out of the way it may be that some of the younger players will prove to be stars of the first magnitude. But even so, it is doubtful if there ever will be another to fill the shoes of Bobby Jones.

JOBS FOR AMERICAN SAILORS.

Andrew Furuseth, president of the International Seamen's Union, calls attention to a point of glaring inconsistency in the laws designed to bring about development of the American Merchant Marine. Foreigners hold thousands of jobs on American ships while American seamen are without employment. Crews are hired in foreign ports and remain with their jobs to the exclusion of Americans.

Congress has appropriated millions of dollars for development of a fleet of American merchant vessels. The people are in favor of building up a strong merchant marine to carry American commerce overseas and to supplement the strength of the Navy. It is obvious that this can not be accomplished, however, if American ships are to be manned by foreigners. Since Congress is subsidizing these shipping lines with long term loans at low interest and valuable mail contracts, it should insist that crews be made up of American seamen.

Licensed officers on these vessels are Americans and mail ships are required to employ 50 per cent American crews. Obviously these provisions are too weak. Americans will not work for the wages that are customarily paid to foreigners. The Government has recognized the disparity of wages here and abroad in nearly every field. High tariff laws and strict immigration regulations protect workmen of this country against competition of foreigners. American seamen can not consistently be asked to accept a lower standard of living in order to get work on ships under the American flag.

Other nations protect their seamen. Why does the United States fail to protect its seamen, especially in times of unemployment? Training of American seamen is an important function of the merchant fleet under any circumstances, but just now it is urgent that American shipping lines reserve their jobs for American seamen. Several bills on the subject are pending before Congress. They ought to be given attention.

Movie attendance and gasoline sales are up to normal; the people always cut down on the essentials last.

If the Republican party is smart, it will recruit its next national chairman from the senior class of Gallaudet.

"NO DEFICIT NECESSARY"

By Hon. ROBERT L. OWEN,
Former Senator From Oklahoma.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I congratulate you on your editorial of November 15, entitled "No Deficit Necessary."

Raising the taxes on the American people at this time, when the purchasing power of the dollar has been greatly increased by the artificial means of a major bear movement, will be little short of an economic crime. Instead of raising the taxes on the people they should be lowered, and the deficit avoided by increasing prosperity on the one hand, which will increase incomes and taxes, and by withholding any payments whatever on the principal of the national debt for two or three years until the people can recover from the violent shock given to them by the panic of 1929.

To restore prosperity the reserve banks should be required to buy at least $500,000,000 of United States bonds and to extend credits more freely in buying domestic acceptances. Buying these bonds would immediately give credits in the reserve banks to the member banks who sold the bonds, or would make available such credits to the member banks. The advice to the banks of the country to refuse loans on stock market collaterals was one of the contributing causes to the major bear movement of 1929. This policy should be reversed, all the more so because now stocks are below their actual earning value in very many issues.

The reserve banks should be required to change the Federal Reserve notes for gold certificates passing over their counters so that their gold supply will be increased by hundreds of millions, and in that way their power of emitting reserve notes would be expanded two-and-one-half times the gold certificates thus taken up. The reserve banks in ten different ways contracted credit and currency and laid the foundations for the major bear movement that brought on the great industrial depression which followed the stock market collapse of November, 1929.

The Washington Post is right in its demand that the taxes shall not be increased, and that the immediate payments on the principal of the national debt should be moderated until this depression is over. The taxes should be reduced instead of increased. Every energy should be exerted to end unemployment, not by words only, but by acts appropriating money for public improvements of all kinds, for putting the railroads in better condition, for improving industrial plants and getting ready for the restoration that will ensue under intelligent management.

It is unintelligent to talk about deficits when the American people are in such present distress and when their productive powers are so vast. There is no occasion for recklessness in expenditure; there is occasion for the energetic employment of men in works that have known value for the future. You justly say that the present generation is being made to pay more than its just proportion of the cost of the war, and this has been done by those who consciously or unconsciously favor the policy of making the dollar buy more and making the dollar more valuable in terms of commodities, stocks and bonds, and as cash or cash credits.

If a deficit should occur the Government can get the money at a very low rate of interest in this depression, and can easily pay it back when prosperous times are created by intelligent action. Between January and June, 1929, in the public press—the Manufacturers Record, the New York Times, the New York World, the Wall Street Journal and the Wall Street Magazine—I pointed out the danger of interfering with the credit structure and contracting credits. I warned the administration of the danger of permitting the Federal Reserve Banks to contract credit and currency, and pointed out that it was laying the foundations of a major bear movement which would necessarily result in a stock market crash, industrial depression, unemployment and political injury to the administration itself. Since the accuracy of these observations has been proved by the event, it is to be hoped that the administration will review the causes which produced the panic and the present depression, and will take steps both to correct the harm done and to prevent their being brought into effect at any future time. JUST FOLKS

MILLIONAIRES DISCUSS GIVING.

Two millionaires were talking in a friendly sort of way,
Just as plumbers talk of plumbing, or as youngsters talk of play,
Or as beggars chat of begging, airing notions, whims, and views,
And advancing bits of wisdom which the other one might use.
So I lingered near to get it, as I heard one rich man say:
"The trouble with you, Joseph, is you give too much away!

"You mustn't be so lavish in your charity affairs,
You make it very difficult for other millionaires.
Now, I give when I'm compelled to, but I never run about Seeking every opportunity to hand my money out.
Giving's very serious business and I want to make you see
That you're harming other rich men by your generosity."

Joseph looked at him a moment, and he said: "When first you spoke
I'd have thought that you were jesting, but I know you never joke;
So just listen to me, Oscar, while I tell my point of view
And exactly my position and just what I think of you.
As a millionaire you're rated—so am I—and I would say
You're a mighty poor example! You don't give enough away

"You can't take the stuff to Heaven or wherever you will go;
You will leave it all behind you when Death strikes that final blow.
It's good sport to gather money, but when once you have enough
The only fun that's left you is to give away the stuff.
Hang to yours if so you're minded, hold it fast till life is done.
You will always be a rich man, but you won't have any fun."

The Temple Soon Crumbles When Rats Gnaw Through the Foundation Timbers.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

STRANGE picture writings on clay tablets dug up by archeologists reveal the effort made by long forgotten men to protect their property from knaves.

The story of civilization is a story of alliances and battles and walls and weapons designed to protect property.

Today nine-tenths of the laws in civilized lands are concerned with the safeguarding of property and the control of those who threaten it.

Ten thousand years of teaching morality and ethics and culture, and still the chief task of civilization is to protect itself from thieves!

Schools and temples on every corner in Christendom and one man in every score a preacher of righteousness, yet millions are employed in the manufacture of padlocks and safes and other devices to protect property from the unscrupulous.

And today, in the greatest and most modern of nations, thieves prosper as never before in history and nobody's property is safe.

How shall you judge this civilization?

If the first concern of man's government is the protection of property, and property is less secure than ever before, it should be clear to the most casual observer that organized society has almost hit bottom.

Pick up a newspaper any day in the week and you find stories of secret theft and daylight robbery. Bandits are everywhere. They ply their trade as openly and as safely as other men labor for bread. They have but to show a gun and fill their pockets. The few who resist are shot down; and when at last the alarm is given, the thieves are miles away or lost in neighboring crowds.

The business is so simple and the rewards so great that every man hard-pressed by fate is tempted to quit his unprofitable virtue and fatten with the thieves.

That is modernism! That is Americanism! A land overrun with bandits! No unguarded collection of wealth safe for an hour! And all the forces of law as helpless as a lamb among wolves!

Why doesn't the land awake? This is a scourge—an ever-growing pestilence that threatens our whole civilization. Does nobody realize how fast it is growing—how inevitably it leads to anarchy?

When fruit flies and corn borers threaten the farmers' crops, thinking men become alarmed and Congress appropriates money to exterminate the pests.

The thieves that now infest the land are pests a thousand times more dangerous than insects that destroy plants, for these threaten the fabric of civilization.

If present laws and methods are ineffectual, men with brains and courage can make tools to do the work that is necessary. At any cost of blood or treasure, America must be purged of thieves.

Dry vs. Wet Democrats.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

There has recently been talk among the dry Democrats of calling a conference to determine their attitude, in view of the increasingly wet grip on the party. They recognize that the party as a whole is distinctly wet. It has been figured that the wets control the Democratic organization in 33 States. Of the 15 where the Democratic drys are still on top, 12 are in the South. The requirement of a two-thirds vote for nomination retains a powerful weapon in the hands of the diminishing drys. But there have been intimations that they might not use it to block the nomination of a wet, because they realize that their party would have no chance of winning with a dry. It remains to be seen how many of them will make this surrender.

Democrats Sitting Pretty.

New York World.

This filibuster threat endangering discipline within the G. O. P. should be viewed by the Democrats in Congress in the detached and impartial spirit of the frontier wife in the "Go it, husband; go it, b'ar!" story. It would not be good politics, because it would not be good citizenship, to aid the Brookharters in these anxious and troubled times in holding up supply bills and forcing an extra session. On the other hand, the Democrats have no mandate to aid in the disciplining of a small minority within the Republican delegations.

The signs point to stormy times in the coming short session. It will be well for Democrats in Congress to aid in needed legislation, to refrain from time-wasting filibusters and to seek in all ways to promote the general welfare. It is the good fortune of the party that it is not obliged to interfere in any way with the family quarrel that promises to enliven the sessions for the G. O. P.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Beauty of Washington Woods in Autumn Inspires Delight.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have lived in Washington a good many years, and I do not believe there is a spot on earth where a more enjoyable season regularly occurs than our fall of the year. Our September, October, and November, each with captivating characteristics of its own, form a trinity dear to the hearts of all resident nature worshipers.

On the mountain sides and farther north the coloring of the fall landscape may for a short time be more vivid. The frost wine of the north wind may have a more exhilarating tang, although that is doubtful. But for arboreal street pageantry and subdued color effects in mass, such as artists like to paint, the autumn scenery hereabouts is unexcelled.

This year, notwithstanding last summer's extraordinary heat and dryness, the leafage of the parks has been marked as usual by a diversified and exquisite show of colors. It is a gray day, an artist's day, as I write. Nearby, seen from the corner of Nineteenth and Newton streets, the massed splendor of the trees in Piney Branch Parkway is wonderful. There is lack of bright red, but a touch of clear maroon; various shades of bronze are blended with dashes of green, yellow, yellowish green, and brown. And this display will linger, fading by degrees into December.

Truly the trees of the City Beautiful are its crowning glory, and I suppose I am not the only one who has ever been tempted to employ superlatives in describing the prolonged enchantment of our Maryland-Virginia autumnal season. H. P. A.

Better School Housing Due Largely to Supt. Ballou—Board of Education Should Be Abolished.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A District official, who deserves the thanks of our citizens, is School Superintendent Frank W. Ballou. As an outcome of the building policy inaugurated early in his administration, the school housing which ten years ago was lamentably crowded is nearing the point where it will be entirely satisfactory. This result was accomplished, he states in his annual report to the Board of Education, "through the united efforts of the community and those Government agencies having to do with legislation and appropriations." There can be no doubt that Dr. Ballou's vigorous personality had much to do in forwarding this school development, and I would like to suggest that he would probably find his work more satisfactory if he were directly responsible to the District Commissioners, like the health officer, the fire chief or the chief of police.

It should be remembered that he is not just a backwoods schoolmaster, and I would think that there might be danger of his being annoyed, if not hampered, by an occasional excess of antiquated officialism on the part of the Board of Education.

The unsalaried School Board, which suited the modest needs of our pioneer forefathers, is a misfit in the well-developed modern school system of a big city. TAXPAYER.

Taxes Should Not Be Increased—Payments on Public Debt Should Be Curtailed Just Now.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial regarding the reduction of the Nation's indebtedness strikes me as 100 per cent sound. I question very much the advisability of increasing taxation at this time. I am particularly impressed with the thought that the administration might well afford to change its attitude toward debt reduction in days when conditions are throughout the Republic such as we know them to be.

Of course, there are certain moneys received by us that should continue to apply on the national debt, but surplus receipts and such other funds as must not necessarily, because of legislation, be applied to the national debt should, and it seems to me could quite properly be used in these days far more impressively for the welfare of the people of the country by being directed toward such programs as would result in the increasing of labor and all associated therewith.

I am wondering if a pronouncement of such a policy from the White House or the Secretary of the Treasury would not go a long way toward bolstering up public confidence in the restoration of things generally to normal conditions. J. H. H.

Raskob Did His Best to Shake Public Confidence, and Now Cashes In on His Bear Operation, Says a Reader.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: John J. Raskob, of Raskob & Smith, political brokers, has demonstrated that he is one of the shrewdest operators the country has yet produced, not only on the stock exchange, but on the political exchange as well. Mr. Raskob was a bear of bears previous to the last election, adopting every tactic of the Wall street bruins and hammering "national stock" constantly. Unemployment was magnified; every failure of any sort in the business field was exaggerated; nothing was left undone to shake the confidence of the people; every effort was put forth to pound down "national stock."

Then came the election, when it was seen that his calamity campaign had been more successful than he himself even dared to dream. He immediately "about-faced," however, and is now a "bull of bulls"—hoping to cash in big in '32.

Wall street tactics in politics appear to be to ruin the "other fellow" and build up your own fortune out of the wreckage. J. H. J. B.

Eighteenth Amendment Is a Moral Law, Says a Constant Reader.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The adoption of the eighteenth amendment is one of the greatest events in American history. The church should indorse it as a sacred statute to save humanity. Every Christian and law-abiding citizen should stand by it as a moral law for the protection of the home and society. I. W. MAXSON.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"SCORPIO."

IF November 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m., and from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 a. m. to 8 a. m. and from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m.

There will be little to break the ordinary routine of life on this date—a quiet and peaceful time is indicated. The development of good will in the right direction; words of wisdom will be dropped on fertile soil. An extremely good time for tired nerves.

Children born on this November 18 will have too little independence of spirit for sufficient protection against selfishness in others, from which they will suffer great injustices. They will have unselfish and gentle natures, and will be honest and sincere. They seek considerable affection.

You have a very patient, plodding nature, and one which proves that persistency alone is better than brilliancy alone. You are not given to brainstorms, but in a slow, deliberate way, you are able to do some very clear, sane reasoning. You do not have a whit more than the average amount of intelligence, energy or courage, but you are an ordinary man or woman, who can achieve extraordinary things, because you stick to your job until it is finished.

You have a very calm temperament, and are seldom given to emotional storms. You seldom speak or act when in a temper, and in this respect you are at an advantage over those who have less self-control. You consider your words, and you measure your steps. You are very careful not to get mixed up with what you consider other people's affairs. Your own troubles you keep pretty well to yourself, and there are very few who have your complete confidence. You are widely sympathetic, although not in the least demonstrative. You are a person of few words, and you do not require constant companionship for happiness. You are an intelligent reader, and will always be a students.

You do not look upon love and marriage in a light way, and you will give a constant and sincere love to your wife or husband, as the case may be. You are passionately fond of children, and in a home and family you will find your greatest happiness.

Successful people born November 18:

Eliza Leslie, author.

Jonathan Worth, U. S. senator.

John A. J. Cerswell, lawyer and senator.

Elizabeth M. Gilmer ("Dorothy Dix"), author.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Bands of strass and dull beads, and a most unusual decolletage distinguish this charming gown. (Courtesy of The Maison Heim, Paris.)

Paris, Nov. 17.

SIMPLICITY is not rusticity.

How is that for a bon mot with which to start this lovely day?

Actually it is more than a bon mot—it is a calory-infested one. Rich, juicy, infested with food for thought and material for futile discussion—the futile discussion being on the part of the person who doesn't agree with me, of course.

All inspired by an unexpected outburst from an imminent as well as eminent playwright, who just burst forth in tirades against the, as he expressed it, so-called "sickening modern affectation of simplicity."

True, the modern affectation of the simplicity which craves to make its own furniture and weave its own materials on a handloom, is sickening. But there is so much difference between this and the true simplicity that is only possible with sophistication.

The simplicity of this age is not rusticity.

It is a directness of purpose that is expressed in action, speech and line, which is the result of a development of intelligence which can afford to be simple because of its assurance that this simplicity is not crudeness.

After that Mamzelle's brain is in sterile bandages and mine is on crutches, so you must forgive us if we react frivolously for the rest of the day.

The very most charming bedroom often lacks some tiny touch of individuality to make it memorable—something to give it character—something to bring to mind its owner's charm. And I have found that one of the loveliest ways to do all these things is to have a boudoir doll or several of them, scattered around in gay informality. If it doesn't take a fortune, either, even though you may have priced some of them and found them more expensive than you possibly imagined. Because, I designed a boudoir doll that is twice as adorable as any you've ever seen, and Mamzelle followed out my instructions—and the result is a leaflet that tells all about how to make it, which you may have, by simply sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of the Washington Post.

It spoke of ancient beauty, this evening pump, with its black crepe heel and semitoe. The unusual thing about it was the fact that silver lame (lah-may) was softly draped and tied to make the rest of the toe and the body of the shoe—see what I mean by the sketch?

From its odd and attractive decolletage right down to its long and even hemline, the dull white crepe gown from the Maison Heim that I show you today, is indeed a thing of beauty and a joy forever. Beading is new for this winter, and when done as discreetly as this, its elegance is "sans question."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

TREATMENT OF WORMS.

DR. M. C. HALL knows more about worms than any one else around this part of the world, and he tells us that what he knows about pinworms is not worth while. Nevertheless, he supplies an explanation of the repeated failures of common methods of curing pinworm infestation. The worms hatch in the small intestine, they mature in the large, and they wander outside the digestive tube to lay their eggs in the clothing and on the skin. Efforts at cure of the infestation are usually limited to the use of salt solution or quassia tea as enemas.

These efforts generally remove all adults, and especially all families ready to lay eggs. Sometimes a single such treatment will cure. Usually treatments are given at intervals of one week for three repetitions. This is a more successful method. But failures are frequent because the treatment does not take into consideration the hatching of the eggs and the earlier life of the parasite higher up in the tube and the laying of eggs outside the body.

The treatment he proposes is the continuance of enemas as in the present practice, with two additional measures. To meet the egg-laying phase greater cleanliness of the body, of the hands, of the underwear is advised. It is possible that naphthalene ointments used locally may be of service—for instance, the ointments used by soldiers in the World War.

The wearing of gloves, especially by children, tends to prevent the eggs from being carried to the mouth.

To kill the eggs and young worms in the upper part of the digestive tract ordinary worm medicines are used. Some physicians give methylene blue to meet this need.

Dr. Hall thinks we will find some better worm medicines for this worm when we know more about its peculiarities. For ordinary round worms he advises oil of chenopodium, followed immediately by a dose of castor oil. If necessary, a dose of salts follows this. Ascaridol is the active principle of this medicine and has some advantages over it.

For hookworm he advises carbon tetrachloride or, possibly, carbon tetrachlorethylene. This should be followed immediately by salts.

Worm medicines should not be given to drunkards. They should not be given with alcohol or with any kind of fat or grease. It is not permissible to use castor oil with any worm medicine except cenopodium.

JUST A LITTLE SIDE ROOM.

A. R. writes: A doctor tells me I have a diverticulum. What is that?

REPLY.

An alcove bedroom is diverticulum. So is a closet. It is a room opening off another room.

A diverticulum of the stomach is a little pouch of the stomach wall with something of an open doorway into the stomach cavity.

Any hollow organ can have one or more diverticufums, but they occur rarely in some organs and often in others.

VIOLIN MAKES NECK SORE.

P. L. writes: I am a professional violinist and have been troubled by a sort of rash on the left side of my neck, where the violin comes in contact with the skin. I have used many remedies to no avail, and the sore has proved to be a constant impediment to my playing. Could you suggest anything that would remedy this?

REPLY.

The probability is that the varnish poisons your skin. If you stop the exposure, the eruption will disappear. Protect your skin against the varnish by means of a pad or cloth. Or have your violin revarnished, if you can find a varnish to which your skin is not sensitive.

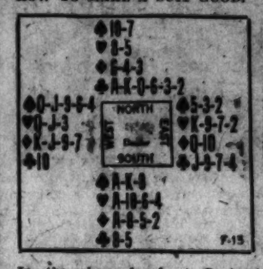
WORK ON BRIDGE

HOW TO MAKE A SUIT GOOD.



In the above hand at Contract Bridge, South bid one No Trump. While he had a worthless doubleton which is a danger signal for No Trump, the hand had no sound suit-bid and was too strong to pass. After West's pass, North bid three Clubs, showing enough strength to force South to choose between five Clubs and three No Trumps. South, of course, chose three No Trumps.

At auction the bidding would be exactly the same, although North's three-Club bid in that game would not be a forcing bid.

West led the Queen of Spades, South won with the Ace—a false card. Note the difference if West had led his fourth best Spade originally. North then would have won with the Ten and Declarer would have taken three Spade tricks.

After South won the first trick, he led a Club. Dummy won with the Queen and led the King. When West refused, a third Club was led and then an effort to make up a long Diamond in the South hand failed and all that the Declarer made was three Clubs, one Diamond, one Heart and two Spades.

Could the Declarer have made more?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

This hand is of a type that turns up so often that it is really remarkable that there should be any doubt about the way to handle it. When the Declarer saw his dummy he should have noted that his hope for game depended upon the Club suit. With eight Clubs in his two hands, it was highly probable that the adverse five were divided 3-2; if so, he could take six Club tricks in addition to the four sure tricks he had in the other three suits. However, the five adverse Clubs might be divided 4-1; and by surrending a Club trick possibly unnecessarily, game is assured even with the 4-1 distribution.

Making a trick more than contract produces a pleasing addition to the score, but should not be considered when trying for it jeopardizes game. If six Club tricks had been needed for game, trying for them would have been sound; but as it was, Declarer should have made sure of the needed five Club tricks by permitting the adversaries to win the first.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled the PLAYING PROBLEMS. Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

PLAYING PROBLEMS present eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

PLAYING PROBLEMS which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of The Washington Post by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed, stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored. Address: Milton C. Work, care Washington Post.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Believing in Fate.

BETH wants to know whether to believe in fate. And how! Not that we believe fate is standing around the corner with arms full of this and that, flowers for one and bricks for another; not at all. But we do truly believe that certain things are ordained, and the simplest way of designating that belief is to say that you believe in "Fate." Such belief does not cover the failure of people who fail to exert effort in their own behalf, except insofar as such people are doomed before they start. It has nothing to do with the story book sort of fate that allots only one little girl to one little boy and vice versa. It just means that just as we found ourselves here on earth without violation on our own part, just so we find our affairs more or less arranged through some equally unexplained provision.

Beth's second question is not so simple to answer, for she asks, "If so, why?" Why do we? Well, perhaps, to be frank, it may be that we find it such a comforting thing to believe. For instance, great disappointment comes. It is devastating taken in itself. But when one can say, "I have not courted this; it has simply come; and the reason will also be made plain," then one begins at once to be consoled. And eventually things do right themselves. And believing that things right themselves actually helps along the business of righting. Convinced that a situation is beyond righting, action is paralyzed. Convinced that all will be well in time, sets us to work again, and it is work that counts.

Beth has some work ahead—like many other women who read these lines:

Dear Frances McDonald: Do you believe in fate? I wish I could. I have, all my life, been doing for others, hoping against hope that some day somehow a little personal happiness might stray my way. Things went from bad to worse. The man I loved for years grew tired waiting for me and went away. Not two months after he married I was free. Was that fate? My father had been helpless for ten years, and I would not leave him. I lost my lover, then immediately my father. What do you call a thing like that?

Father left insurance which, with our home, makes me well off. My former lover, I heard, has had no work in seven months and his wife has left him. They could not even pay their rent. He took her to Europe on a honeymoon. The trip we had planned for ten years. Returning, he meets misfortune at every turn. Is that fate? The girl does not even love him. Yet I would not have him now. And if he ever did return to me it would be said that it was because I had a home and some money. His wife is only 21 and wants a divorce. I am miserably lonely and for ten years he was a part of my life. Will I get over these tricks of fate?

Our home being large, I rented part of it to a widower with three children and a housekeeper. We had known them for years. He is lonely and has asked me out several times. But he is not very old and is very attractive, and I do not want people to talk about us. Yet I do feel that I am silly and that it is the old habit of effacing myself for some reason or other all the time, a sort of fate again hounding me. His home and mine are entirely separate, and his housekeeper is a relative of mine by marriage. So everything is right enough, and yet I hold back. Has fate just doomed me to misery? Also how can I forget the lover who is so present in my memory?

If you believe in fate, why do you?

BETH.

There you have Beth, and whether or not we believe in fate we do believe in widowers and dates for girls who want to forget. It may take quite a few dates, but in the end the result is equanimity. Beth will profit by believing that the opportunity of the present is the solution of the future. Fate or no fate, action is the answer to most questions and inaction is the curse of mankind—although fate gets the blame.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Teaching Tolerance.

Tolerance of people representing different races, faiths, standards and cultural backgrounds is one of the virtues which we as a nation like to think we practcie and which consciously, at least, we try to inspire in our children.

Actually, however, just what does this tolerance mean to us in practice?

Does it not usually signify an attitude which while it grants to others the right to live according to their lights (within limits) yet assumes smugly that our own ways, our own beliefs, our own heritage are overwhelmingly superior to those of people who have had the misfortune to differ from us in these reapects?

If this is in fact our attitude, no amount of preachment will teach our children that genuine tolerance which is really a kind of sympathetic appreciation of peoples and ideas different from our own.

If we really wish our children to acquire true tolerance, we must in the first place cultivate it within ourselves. Fine attitudes which we do not really feel and practice we may as well save ourselves the energy of preaching.

Words do not deceive children generally, least of all our own who know us so well.

Next we must be sure to handle in a manner consistent with our true ideals all those small practical situations which arise in the child's daily life.

This will require courage since often we cannot help but fear that certain contacts with persons or ideas may cause him to take on manners and beliefs other than those which we are trying to inculcate.

In such matters we must carefully weigh the values involved, make our decisions, and then above all else, act and speak sincerely.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me the name of the tree from which this leaf was taken. A. E. T.

Leaf from a weed.

Last fall we gathered all the leaves from a maple tree, buried them and were surprised to find them in a matted mass instead of decayed into a good rich soil (leafmold) when we uncovered them in the spring. Now the time has come to gather them again. Please tell us the name of the material to add which will cause them to deteriorate into good compost. Please tell me of a good fertilizer to use about evergreens. Also send me the leaflet on roses.

LOUISE E. E.

If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, we shall be glad to send you the name of a proprietary preparation that will convert leaves into fertilizer in about six months. Bonemeal is a good fertilizer for dwarf evergreens. You neglected to inclose a stamped envelope for the circular on roses.

Please tell me of a plant that will grow in a corner of a room where there is not much light. I am fond of growing green things and never look at this table without wishing for a plant for it. JENNIE I. W.

An aspidistra or an English ivy will grow with little light. Some of the nonblooming begonias will also do well in such a location.

Please tell me why the leaves persist in turning yellow on the plant of which I am inclosing a leaf.

MRS. F. C.

Your aspidistra is evidently suffering from lack of water, fresh air or light, or it may be potbound. The aspidistra will do well without sun, but it must have some light and should be watered thoroughly three times a week. This is a good time to transplant it into a size larger pot.

We have a small garden about 25 feet by 25 feet, grass in the center and flowers around the sides. Last spring the center was dug up and several pounds of good grass seed were sown. When it came up, to our disgust it was nothing but ugly crab grass. It is now exceedingly unsightly. Is there any way to destroy crab grass? We also have an althea that blooms profusely, but the flowers last only two days. Is there any way to improve the lasting quality of these blossoms? Then we have a lilac bush that was set out this summer that hasn't blossomed nor grown an inch all summer. Our lily of the valley isn't doing well, though we have it in the shade and keep it well watered.

SALLIA B. McC.

Better plow under the crab grass and reseed the entire area. Sow the seed in the spring and after planting give the plot a generous application of bonemeal. As a rule, althea flowers last longer than two days. Your bush may be an inferior variety. Lilacs are sometimes rather slow in getting started; your bush will probably grow more next season. I would suggest giving your lily of the valley some bonemeal at this time and transplanting the bulbs next spring after they have finished blooming. Do not move them until June.

Please tell me how to manage my gladiolis next season so that the flowers will not get smaller as the season progresses. MRS. H. F.

Cultivate them constantly, keep them well watered and feed them liquid manure in July, August and September.

Jean's Santa Claus

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Jean Mathe, 19, with yellow hair and great blue eyes, an upturned nose and small red mouth, is the office force for the Red Diamond Novelty Co. Phillip Baldwin, the foreman of the garage across the street, proposes to Jean on an average of once a day. He's a clean-cut, likable young chap, but Jean doesn't love him. He takes her to a football game and proposes again on the way home. Jean, cheered down in the seat of the shabby little roadster, peers in the sky the first star of the evening and makes a wish that Santa Claus will visit her at Christmas and bring the rarest of all gifts—Adventure. Phil asks if she expects to get her wish and she sadly shakes her head. Then he says, "and suppose you awake on Christmas morning to find me waiting on the doorstep with a marriage license?" Jean says she'll marry him, in that event.

A letter arrives from Mollie Wilder, a girl friend, who had gone to New York. Mollie invites Jean to come and share her apartment. That night, a shipment of fireworks explodes and the Red Diamond Novelty Co. goes up in smoke and Jean realizes she is out of a job.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER II.

Fortunately, the Red Diamond conflagration, as it was described in the Kelsey Progress next morning, was checked before it spread to the neighboring houses. There was a momentary scare once when a shower of sparks came down on the roof of the Harrison Avenue Garage, across the street, but the ever-vigilant Phillip was waiting there for just such an emergency and promptly removed the danger with a bucket of water.

With practically the entire population of Kelsey, Jean had dressed and gone downtown to the fire line, which was drawn at a point about half way between Mrs. Pritchard's and the burning plant. One of the volunteer firemen explained that they were afraid of other explosions, and thought it wisest to keep the crowds well back.

In consequence, Jean did not see either Manley or Phillip until next morning when she returned to view the ruins by daylight.

The little plant was completely wiped out. Only the old safe, imbedded in ashes, marked the spot where Jean had worked.

She found Manley at his home, suffering chiefly from nerves, but from a few minor burns as well.

"I tried to get to the safe," he told her gravely, "but the fireman brought me out. I guess it's a good thing." And suddenly turning upon her: "Remember what I said about throwing a cigarette in that stuff last night? . . . Well, I did it. . . ."

"What! Why, you couldn't have!"

"If the insurance agents knew it, they'd crucify me," he said sadly, "but it's the truth. The minute I heard the explosion I remembered. It was just a small bust. I'd been sitting there thinking after you left and absently I thumped it off into the air. I didn't even realize I'd done it until the big blast. Then . . ."

Jean put a slim hand on his arm. "Forget it. The Red Diamond Novelty Co. is history. Collect your insurance and go into something else."

She was starting out when he called her name and followed her to the door. "About your pay . . . you're entitled to two weeks' salary at least, but . . ."

"Forget that along with the rest," she told him carelessly. "I'll have to take my loss, too."

"Oh, no, you won't. I'll be on my feet in a day or two. In the meantime . . ." he shoved a hand into a trouser pocket and produced a bill . . . "in the meantime, take this on account."

She tried to get out without taking it, but he finally opened her purse and dropped the bill into it.

"I'll do everything possible to help you get another place," he called after her as she hurried down the steps. "And when I get going again, I'll make you a good offer . . ."

She waved her thanks to him and made her way toward Harrison avenue again. When she had turned the corner she opened her purse to examine the bill he had given her. But the first thing that met her eye was Mollie Wilder's letter.

The decision to go to New York came in a flash. One moment she stood there in the street staring at the letter, telling herself that it was impossible. The next moment her mind was made as definitely and finally as if she had been considering it all along.

Mollie hadn't actually said there was a job in the store for her, but she had suggested it quite plainly. Besides, in a city like New York there must always be work, she told herself; if one would go looking for it. For a week or two she could live with Mollie. After that . . . she would cross all bridges as she came to them.

Ultimately she thought of Manley's bill again and fished it from the bottom of her purse. Ten dollars! Again her fingers groped about in the purse, and this time came up with two thin, shiny 10-cent pieces and two pennies.

"I'd have been in a fine mess if Mr. Manley hadn't made me take this ten dollars," she told herself. She let the four coins slide from the palm of her hand into the side pocket of the purse. "For luck," she thought, smiling. "When I'm the socially prominent Mrs. Vanderfeller, I'll take you out and frame you."

Phillip was not at the garage. With a last look at the smoldering ruins of the Red Diamond plant across the street, she returned to the boarding house. To her surprise, Phillip was sitting on the top step, waiting for her.

"I go to the garage and you come to Mrs. Pritchard's," she laughted. "Fine cooperation. . . . Why the heavy expression?"

"I've been looking all over for you, Jean. Can we walk somewhere?"

"Sure. Around the block. But we'll have to hurry."

"Hair dressing appointment?"

"Train." She evaded his eyes. "I'm going to New York at 1 o'clock. Or is it 1:10?"

"You're not, really?"

"I'm telling you, Phil. I'm going to New York this afternoon."

"Have you found a job in New York?"

She hesitated. "Well, no. But I had a letter from Mollie Wilder yesterday and she talked as if she could get me a job if I wanted it."

"So you were going anyway."

"No, I wasn't. For my own good reasons I wasn't going until the novelty plant went up in bits. I have to do something, Phil. My job's gone and I've got to live."

"Yes, I know," Phillip said simply. "That's what I came to see you about. You know what you said coming home from the game last night? About . . . marrying me . . ."

Jean nodded said nothing.

"Well I thought since things had worked out as they have you might be willing. . . . I mean, we might just as well get married now. . . ."

Again she nodded. "Being out of a job, out of money and out of prospects . . ." with an odd little gesture —"I could just get married and not have to worry about such details. . . . Oh, Phil! You're such a good sort, and yet you make it terribly hard for me to be nice to you. You're always saying things like that. . . . Don't you know me well enough, Phil, to realize that I wouldn't grab at marriage as . . . as a life-saver?"

"I'm not asking you to do that." Phillip replied quietly. "I've begged you to marry me for months. Now I'm asking you again. It just happens that you're out of a job and I can't see where it's an argument against marriage, if you ask me."

"On the one hand, Phil," she told him, "it's pride. When and if I marry you, it will be a time when, economically, I can just as well go on without you. But that's an argument for principle. The most honest and adequate answer I can give you now is the same I gave you last night."

"You mean about . . . Christmas morning?"

She looked up at him curiously. The prospect of New York had somehow altered her feelings concerning her promise. But she said evenly: "Well, yes, I gave you my word . . . But I had reference to what I said about wanting to see something of life before I settled down. This looks like an opportunity, Phil. By Christmas, I may be in a fever to get back to Kelsey and . . . you. However, there's a possibility that . . ."

But Phillip's one-track mind was dealing with what he saw as most important. "The agreement was that if I was waiting at your door on Christmas morning . . . Do I understand that you will keep me advised as to your address? I can't be at your door unless I know where your door is."

Jean laughed, though she tried not to. "Old man 'practical,' she teased. "Why so all-fired serious about it, Phil? Of course, you'll know where I am."

He caught her arm, almost fiercely. "Why shouldn't I be serious? You're everything in the world to me, Jean. If you only knew how . . . how much I love you . . ."

Jean looked up at him, and there were tears in her eyes. His simple appeal had touched her more deeply than had all his persistent pleadings since he had first asked her to marry him. Gently she put an arm about him and leaned her head against his shoulder.

At that moment, had Phillip sensed his opportunity, he might have taken her in his arms and made New York, with its promise of adventure, seem a cheap and paltry thing. But Phillip, wholly ignorant of the ways of a girl's heart, was content to put his arm about her shoulders and continue their leisurely walk.

Back in her room, Jean gathered together her few simple clothes and packed the old suitcase that had long reposed under her bed.

Mrs. Pritchard, desiring to help, but finding nothing to do, sat on the bed and watched the proceedings. When Jean at last shut the suitcase and sat on the bed beside her, purse in hand, Mrs. Pritchard protested.

"Never mind about paying me anything now, Jean," she told her. "When you get a job and can spare it . . ."

"But Mr. Manley paid me," Jean declared. "Besides, I'll be with Mollie Wilder tonight, and tomorrow . . . I hope . . . I'll be working."

But an hour later, when she handed the conductor her ticket and thought to take inventory, she regretted that she had not taken advantage of Mrs. Pritchard's generous offer. She took out a little pencil and a piece of paper and drew up her accounts. The finished statement read as follows:

Cash on hand	$1.23
From Mr. Manley	10.00
Total	$11.23
Board	$6.00
Railroad ticket	3.90
Magazine	.10
Total	$10.00
Cash on hand	$1.23

She was amused at her own audacity. "Going to New York with a dollar and twenty-two cents," she mused. "Thank heaven, Mollie will be there to save me from the poorhouse."

Mollie, she knew, would be no more surprised than pleased to see her. They had been close friends in high school days, and Jean had missed her keenly when Mollie had gone from Kelsey.

It was not until the train was pulling into the Grand Central Terminal that Jean thought of Mollie's address. Hurriedly she referred to the letter again.

"If you ever get down this way, honey," she read in the last paragraph, "you'll find me daytimes in the men's wear department of Simmon's Department Store. It's one of the big places, right on Broadway. You can't miss it. . . .

Nevertheless, she suspected that the taxi driver had missed it before they finally came to a stop before the enormous building. The meter read "$0.80."

Jean produced her dollar bill, passed it to the driver with a careless flourish, caught up her suitcase and walked into the main entrance of the Simmon's Department Store with the air of a duchess.

The 20 cents tip worried her not at all now. She was not only in New York, but in a matter of minutes would be embraced by the invariably cordial Mollie. The big adventure was just beginning.

A floorwalker directed her to the men's wear department, in the back on the first floor. She walked on air. She hardly knew she had the suitcase in her hand. Dear old Mollie.

She saw the sign and spoke to the girl behind the counter near it.

"Mollie?" the girl repeated. "Why . . ."

"I'm a friend of her's, from Connecticut," Jean explained eagerly. "We were . . ."

Something in the girl's amused expression checked her words.

"Didn't you know?" the girl behind the counter asked, smiling. "Mollie was married . . . this morning. . . . They're on their way to Missouri. . . . They say he has barrels and . . ."

Somehow Jean found her way to the street and stood where the fringe of the milling Broadway crowds brushed rudely against her. A sense of complete desolation swept over her and a solitary tear rolled down her cheek and fell to the suddenly heavy suitcase.

CHOWDERS.

Fish chowders are also an appetizing way of serving milk. The proportions are two cups of milk and water, one cup of potatoes cut into small pieces, one pound of fish and four large crackers. Onions and fat from salt pork are usually added for the flavor. These proportions make a rich dish, and good chowder can be made with less fish.

Other dishes that resemble chowders can be made by substituting for the fresh fish small portions of left-over fish, salt cod fish or dried beef. The so-called vegetable chowders have corn, lima beans, sliced carrots or other vegetables in place of fish.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood.—Otto Brower is one of the few Hollywood understudies to make good. As a rule understudies in the movies never get a break, but Brower was fortunate because he was behind the cameras instead of in front of them.

OTTO BROWER.

More briefly, he was an assistant director and had been for seven years.

Assistant directors, and even chief directors, are not regarded as very good copy, but the stories of their struggles to get ahead often are more interesting than those of stars.

Brower's big opportunity came, after seven years, when the director of a company on location became too ill to continue. Brower jumped into the breach and piloted the picture through to a successful completion.

At about this time came talking pictures. They had not been sufficiently developed to allow outdoor recording and three Western films were to be made, as silents.

Took a Chance.

Brower's possibilities had been recognized and he was asked to direct all three. He decided to gamble. He made the three and all were successful.

In the meantime sound had made great advances and Brower was faced with finding out what it was all about. To do so he went back to assistant directing for one picture.

Then he was intrusted with "The Light of Western Stars" and when it was completed he was given a contract by Paramount. He since has been the head man on three more Westerns, the last being "Fighting Caravans."

Back Again.

Although an actor many years ago, originally in his home of Grand Rapids, Mich., Brower learned about the West on a ranch in Montana.

In 1920, after six years, he gave up the idea of trying to make a million dollars in cattle and so came to Hollywood to be an actor again.

Strangely enough, no one would hire him as a Western actor. Instead he was put in a dress suit. He gave up acting after three years as an extra and bit player to become a third assistant director. Soon he became a first assistant.

Brower is practical minded, but he says he has one superstition:

He insists on having three elderly men, character players, work at least a few days in each of his pictures. He feels more certain of the success of his efforts if this trio is with him. They were extras 10 years ago with him.

YOUR NAME WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Aldrich" (also spelled "Alrich" and "Aldridge") is found in English records even before the time of the Hundred Rolls. Some of its earliest spellings are "Ailrich," "Aldrech" and "Aldryche." In most cases it is a variation of the Old Teutonic personal name "Alderich," meaning "old ruler." In a few cases it is a modern form of the Anglo-Saxon "Aetheiric," which means "noble ruler."

The family name of "Patterson" (also spelled "Paterson," "Pattison" and "Patteson") means "the son of Patrick." "Patrick" is an English variation of the old Irish "Patrice," which is derived ultimately from the Latin "Patricius," meaning "the patrician" and "the nobleman." However, in a few cases the spelling "Paterson" represents "the son of Pater."

The family name "Pater" is generally a contraction of "Paternoster," "Paternoster," which really means "our father," was sometimes given as a nickname to persons who made "paternosters" (rosaries). In a few cases "Pater" is merely a variation of the personal name "Peter."

The family name "Brenner" is of German origin. It means "the one who burns," and was generally first applied to persons who cleared land by burning trees and bushes. It appears to be first recorded in a German document of the year 1219. It is sometimes found in early records with the Latinized form "incendiarius." However, not infrequently "Brenner" is a shortened form of any one of that large group of compound family names such as "Weinbrenner" (brandy-maker) and "Steinbrenner" (brick-maker).

HOOVER'S ILL SON GAINING IN BATTLE

Has Added Four Pounds in Weight Since Arriving in Asheville.

RADIO ONE OF DIVERSIONS

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Herbert Hoover, jr., is finding the health he came to Asheville to seek.

Since his arrival November 1, he gained 4 pounds and his physicians describe his progress in his fight against incipient tuberculosis as "unusually satisfactory."

He spends most of his time resting in his quarters at Blue Briar cottage which he has leased for the winter. He reads, listens to the radio and studies during the hours when he is not required to observe absolute quiet and rest.

Sightseers and visitors are forbidden entrance to the cottage grounds, but persons having business there have no difficulty gaining admittance.

None of the members of the Hoover family is now with him. During his first weeks at Blue Briar, Mrs. Hoover was here, but she has gone to California and later will bring their three children here to see their father.

Missionaries Refuse To Leave Danger Zone

(Associated Press.)

American Consul General Frank P. Lockart, at Hankow, reported to the State Department yesterday that a group of American missionaries at Kanchow—a danger area for many months—had again declined to leave for a place of safety.

Lockhart's report was based on a dispatch from Gen. Tai Min Chuan, Chinese commander in the Kanchow district, who said that since the Communist brigands had left the vicinity the missionaries did not wish to proceed to Sinyang, where they had been urged to go.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL.

WITH the average quality of this week's screen entertainment as high as it is and next week's promising to be even higher, it would be interesting to hear what the crepe hangers who profess to have perceived only retrogression since the advent of sound have to say for themselves.

Any week that can afford two such pictures as "The Big Trail" and "Min and Bill" is worthy of note—but not any more so than a succeeding week that can promise two such superlative pictures as "Outward Bound" and "Feet First" are heralded as being.

While it seems a surety that "Outward Bound" will make its appearance on schedule, to reopen the Metropolitan under a new policy of two performances a day with all seats reserved, on Thanksgiving Eve, the prompt arrival of the Harold Lloyd vehicle is not so certain. The opening date of "Feet First," coming to the Columbia, necessarily will be contingent upon the closing date of "Min and Bill." From the present outlook, "Min and Bill" may continue to panic the cash customers for weeks to come. It is that sort of picture.

However, when it does finally get here, "Feet First" will probably settle down for an extended run on its own account, so everything is even.

Only one complaint has reached these shell-like but flapping ears since "Feet First" was released, and that is that it is a trifle too suggestive of that earlier Lloyd triumph, "Safety Last," to strike the casual eye as wholly original. Since "Safety Last" occasioned more hysteria and produced bigger and better shrieks from the audience than any other film ever thrown upon a screen, I can think of no higher praise for "Feet First" than that it is something like its predecessor in comic and exciting content.

And speaking of Harold Lloyd, the little girl who was so fortunate as to be chosen as a sister to Gloria Lloyd has a home that millions of other little girls might dream about, but usually never see.

Harold Lloyd's 16-acre estate in Beverly Hills is a playground that would suit a princess. No fairy wand could make the setting more complete.

And here was little Peggy, five years old, an orphan. She may have wished for a real home and a real father and mother, but she never could have imagined a home like the one she has now, or a father and a mother who have everything to give her.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd wanted a child who would be a companion for Gloria, and they adopted Peggy.

First of all there is a doll house with real rooms, completely furnished from a miniature shower bath to a tiny gas stove. There are real chairs and curtains and beds and almost life-sized dolls to occupy them.

Gloria, who is 6, has her own swimming pool, and her new sister will share that, too. When they get older they can play golf and tennis in their own backyard.

And not miniature golf or tea-table tennis, either.

Reverting momentarily to the two-hit shows of the week, I am reliably informed that "Min and Bill" missed the week-end record at the Columbia by scarcely more than a thin dime, and that at the Fox on Saturday "The Big Trail" was viewed by a total of approximately 13,000 people, more than 4,000 of whom were children.

The actual number of juvenile attendants, I believe, was 4,098, which I am sure sets a record for one-day junior patronage that will stand for some time upon the theatrical annals of the Capital.

It is not within the scope of my information whether Charles Chase is being groomed for feature productions or not, but he and the other three members of the male quartet that comprises the plot basis of "High C's," the Hal Roach comedy at the Columbia, do some surprisingly good harmonizing, in a strictly barbershop way.

It being a wartime comedy, they also have a few close shaves!

It seems that Charles "Buddy" Rogers had to go to London to unburden himself of his innermost heart secrets. While Little Lord Fauntleroying about the British capital, he confided to an interviewer that he hasn't married because "women in general frighten me."

However, Buddy intimated that Greta Garbo is a wonderful creature.

I'll bet Mitzi Green is just crazy about Wallace Beery, too!

Just by way of demonstrating with what completeness color photography is becoming passe—meaning, of course, that it is no such thing—Technicolor has developed a new three-color process that will be as easily within the reach of the average producer as the two-color process heretofore in use has been.

Plans for its marketing are said to be under way and are expected to be announced about January 1.

There go those solid color masses you have objected to, right there.

Those who have thought the shift from silent to sound pictures was an easy one for the industry may be interested to know that the turnover entailed the expenditure of close to $500,000,000. This is the figure that was disclosed to the M. P. T. O. A. convention in Philadelphia recently by C. C. Pettijohn.

"But what is not generally understood," he continued, "is that the amortization is not a matter of one year. The period ranges from ten to twenty years on some companies' books."

No wonder there has been some hesitancy about rushing into the further matter of saddling the industry with the additional cost of wide-angle photography and projection.

On the theory that you will be called upon to look at them eventually, you might as well know now that scheduled for early production at First National are "You and I," by Phillip Barry, Lorretta Young to star; "Fellow Prisoners," from the Philip Gibbs novel which John Monk Saunders, author of "Wings," is adapting; "I Spy," by Barson S. Carla Jenisen; "The Night Watch," a remake of "His Wife's Affair," and "Rival Wives," by Ann Austin, Dorothy Mackaill in the stellar role.

The first Warner wide-film release will not, after all, be Harry Langdon's "Soldier's Plaything," but the next picture starring Richard Barthelmess, instead. "Adios" is the title. This subject will be released to ten key cities in the wide form, the Langdon vehicle having been the first one shot by the new method and not entirely perfect photographically on that account.

The wide film should be a big aid to Joe E. Brown, permitting him to have that grin of his pictured in its entirety!

How are you standing the bitter winter?

FATHER GIVEN LIFE AS KILLER OF THREE

Few See West Virginian Who Slew Young Offspring Arraigned in Court.

MERCY PLEA IS LACKING

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 17.—Taylor W. Hott, 35, this city, was sentenced to life imprisonment in the State Penitentiary by Judge D. H. Rodgers in circuit court here today for the slaying of each of his three children. Hott, who pleaded guilty to the slayings three weeks ago, was arraigned this morning and formally charged with first degree murder in each case and immediately reentered the plea of guilty. The rearraignment was necessary to conform to the law, court officials explained.

Hott was not offered the opportunity to make any statement and requested none. No recommendation for clemency was made to the Court. Hott with fourteen other Berkeley County prisoners, who had either been convicted or pleaded guilty to offenses involving penitentiary sentences, was started by train for the State prison at Moundsville at noon.

Few Are In Court.

There were only 30 persons in the courtroom when sentence was pronounced on Hott this morning. The Court had purposely tried to avoid undue publicity. The children killed were Gertrude, 7; Calvin, 6, and Floyd 5, whose stiffened bodies were discovered in a large pool of water in one of the abandoned quarry holes near the southern edge of this city on the morning of July 21.

The children were not immediately identified when found by boy bathers, but later were shown to be the children of Mr. and Mrs. Hott. When questioned, Hott said at first he had given the children to a Kidwell family living west of here, but when visits with police failed to disclose the family, Hott confessed to having drowned the children. His only explanation, given in oral and written confessions to police, was that he must have been temporarily insane. Hott did not involve his wife in the killings, although he told police he blamed her indifferent attitude toward him.

Unable to Get Work.

He said his wife's attitude and his inability to find work had worried him for a week before the crimes were committed.

Hott came to Martinsburg from Hampshire County, W. Va., some years ago. He was a friend and schoolmate of Walter Crabtree, of Hampshire County, who killed three Romney (W. Va.) citizens last December and was hanged at the State Penitentiary.

247 OF 444 SEATS WON BY PILSUDSKI

Big Victory Fails to Give Needed Two-Thirds to Amend Charter.

RACIAL MINORITIES HIT

Warsaw, Poland, Nov. 17. (A.P.).—Marshal Pilsudski, the "Iron Man" of Poland, who had only 116 votes in the parliament last August, came out of the elections with 247 out of the 444 seats and today was in control of the house.

But big as his gain was he did not get the two-thirds majority he wanted to insure amendment of the constitution. His supporters were confident, however, that he would get enough votes from the other camps, to make up the majority he needs.

The racial minorities—the Ukrainians, white Russians, German and Jews—took a beating in the elections. When the parliament was dissolved in August they had a total of 83 seats. Now they have only 35.

The Polish opposition also suffered. They used to have 216 deputies. The elections left them with only 157, not including five Communists.

The National Democrats had their greatest victory in the West, the Central Democrats in the Southwest and Pilsudski's party in central and eastern Poland.

The Pilsudski supporters characterized the victory as an indorsement of the marshal's four years of rule, pointing out that there actually were only two parties in the field—pro-Pilsudski and anti-Pilsudski.

The marshal, his adherents said, presented a concrete program for stabilization of the nation; his opponents confined themselves to criticizing the government.

The victorious party leaders professed to see a new possibility of cooperation between the Parliament and the Pilsudski government as concerns constitutional reform. The marshal's victory, his supporters said, is an assurance that Poland's foreign policies will remain unchanged.

Store Worker Asks Bankruptcy.

Frank E. Wood, of 3500 Fourteenth street northwest, an employe of a local department store, filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy yesterday in District Supreme Court. He lists liabilities of $1,618.23 and assets of $42.76. He is represented by Attorney J. Edward Burroughs, jr.

The CRITICS Raved NEVER SUCH A PICTURE
READ WHAT THE CRITICS SAY ABOUT METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER'S great hit!
The narrative is simple, as most great stories are . . . The whole setting of the story is sordid, vicious and unclean, yet by the sheer power of her art Marie Dressler imbues it with a stern tenderness, a wholesomeness and a beauty that no other actress in America could impart to it in equal measure—Nelson Bell, Post.
—as fine a film as Washington has seen in many a day . . . hilariously funny and then again pathetically sad, Marie Dressler dominates the story throughout—Washington Times.
The authorities that pronounced "Min and Bill" a picture not to be missed were right . . . it is hereby elected the most prodigious acting feat of the year—E. de. S. M., Washington Star.

BRITAIN TO AID JEWS BUILD UP PALESTINE

Loan of $12,500,000 Will Be Used to Settle 10,000 Families on Land.

PREMIER BACKS PLEDGE

London, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Administration of the British mandate in Palestine was vigorously attacked in the House of Commons today by David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, and as vigorously defended by the Laborite government.

At the conclusion of the debate between the former premier and Drummond Shields, undersecretary of State for the colonies, Prime Minister MacDonald reaffirmed the government's intention to carry out the mandate terms in full.

Lloyd George, in an attack on the government's recent white paper on its policy in Palestine, declared he could understand only on the supposition it was written by anti-Semitic officials.

He contended the Jews were made responsible for Palestine's unemployment troubles and even held to blame when they were murdered. He asserted the white paper has been generally regarded as a practical revocation of the mandate and he declared "If the government can not work the mandate, it should be handed back to the League of Nations."

New Plans Disclosed.

Quoting the text of the Balfour declaration, he said the idea was not only to give an opportunity to the Jews for colonization and settlement, but the dominant idea was the establishment of a Jewish national home in Palestine.

"It was an idea accepted at a critical moment in our fate," he said. "It was a pledge of honor by some of the greatest nations of earth, including the British empire, which we are called upon to honor."

Mr. Shields, replying for the government, insisted the mandate would be carried out and disclosed a new government development scheme by which it is proposed to settle approximately 10,000 families on the land at an expenditure of $12,500,000. The scheme would be supported by the governments, assisted by a loan.

He contended there was an Arab as well as a Jewish viewpoint and the former had not been reflected in Parliament as much as the Jewish.

Going into details of the government's new land project, he said the government intends in the first place to provide for the landless Arabs, who, he said, have been dispossessed as a result of the land's passing to the Jews. The balance, he said, would be available for the settlement of both Arabs and Jews.

Premier Pledges Word.

He denied that the White paper meant to say that as long as Arabs were unemployed, Jews should not be admitted. The immigration regulations, he said, will be carried out with common sense as the government fully recognizes that a good deal of Jewish capital is brought into Palestine with a view of providing employment for Jews which otherwise would not have been invested at all.

Premier MacDonald did not make a detailed speech, but declared he stood by every word Shiels had uttered. A solemn pledge that the British government will carry out the terms of its Palestine mandate was given by the prime minister.

"The government will carry out the mandate in both its aspects," said Mr. MacDonald. "Spending every energy to enable development of the policy to continue under conditions which will make the harmony between Jew and Arab closer so that the Arab may continue to enjoy the benefits he has already received from Jewish immigration and capital, while the Jew may see Palestine becoming more and more the project of his ideal as a Jewish national home."

Hungarians Fight Duel With Fists and Swords

Budapest, Hungary, Nov. 17 (A.P.). Count Hermann Salm and Count Ludwig Wentheim fought a duel today which was said to have involved the mingled use of swords and fisticuffs.

One version of the incident said that after the principals had clashed with steel for two bouts they dropped the weapons and began wielding their fists until separated by seconds. They then resumed sword play until a surgeon examined Wentheim's pulse. He declared it was beating too fast, with the man near exhaustion, and ordered the fight discontinued.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

Public Utilities Holding and Others.

S. B.—Will you please let me have your advice as to the purchase of Public Utility Holding Corporation, Central States Electric and American Cities Power & Light B stocks?

Answer—American Cities Power & Light B is not receiving any cash dividends, all payments being made in stock. The shares therefore can hardly be regarded in the light of an investment, inasmuch as no income yield is derived therefrom, other than that which may be obtained through the sale of stock paid out in dividends.

Public Utility & Holding has just declared an an initial quarterly dividend of 13¾ cents, payable November 30, 1930. Central States Electric has been receiving 10 cents in cash dividends and 2½ per cent in stock per quarter. Notwithstanding these facts, these two stocks are to be regarded more in the nature of speculations rather than as investments.

Air Reduction.

O. B. L.—What can you tell me about Air Reduction?

Answer—Expansion of pipe line construction has been a stabilizing factor in the company's business this year. Net income for the first nine months totaled $4,148,202, or almost as great as the showing for the same 1929 period. Business for October exceeded that of September and it is estimated that earnings for November will show greater improvement. Prospects are that income for 1930 will aggregate about $7 a share. Dividends now paid are $3 regular plus extras. The company has no bonds or preferred stock. Dividends distributed have increased from $611,999 in 1920 to more than $3,000,000 last year. The stock is classed as an attractive speculative-investment holding.

Railroad Stock Earnings.

V. C. T.—I am a large individual stockholder of a number of railroad stocks. Is it possible for you to give me an estimate of earnings for the current year on Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul, Rock Island, Chicago & Northwestern, Delaware & Hudson, Lackawanna, Erie, Illinois Central, Louisville & Nashville, New York Central, New Haven, Norfolk & Western, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Pere Marquette, Reading Co., St. Louis-San Francisco, Southern Railway, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific?

Answer—Conservative estimates have been made as to the year's earnings on the stocks you mention as follows:

Stock.	Estimated Earnings.
Atchison	$15.40
Chesapeake & Ohio	4.80
Rock Island	7.00
Delaware & Hudson	13.50
Erie	3.00
Louisville & Nashville	6.10
New Haven	8.40
Northern Pacific	5.00
Pere Marquette	3.60
St. Louis & San Francisco	4.70
Southern Pacific	10.00
Baltimore & Ohio	6.70
St. Paul	Nil
Chicago & Northwestern	7.00
Lackawanna	7.80
Illinois Central	4.80
New York Central	7.00
Norfolk & Western	22.50
Pennsylvania	4.00
Reading Co.	6.60
Southern Railway	5.00
Union Pacific	17.30

In some cases, the estimates do not cover the current dividends at the annual rate, as in the case of the Atlantic Coast Line, which pays $10 and is estimated to earn only $7.80 this year. Lackawanna pays $7 and is expected to earn $4.20, while Illinois Central pays $7 and is calculated to earn only $4.90. The above estimates are based on earnings for the first nine months.

Bendix Aviation.

F. K.—What is the outlook for Bendix Aviation?

Answer—Third quarter profits equaled only 7 cents a share. The annual dividend payment has been cut from $2 to $1. For the first nine months the company earned 79 cents on its outstanding stock, and it is doubtful whether fourth quarter business will add much to this showing. Next year is expected to prove a more profitable period for the company because of larger automobile business, particularly in carburetor and brake orders.

The company is in a strong cash position and has no preferred stock or bonds outstanding. The stock, while paying a dividend, however, must be considered rather speculative.

PARK COMMISSION TO STUDY CENTERS

Landscape Architect Will Describe Recreation Spots Elsewhere.

HAS COMPLETED TOUR

Operation of recreation centers in other cities will be described to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission by its landscape architect, C. L. Wirth, at a two-day session Friday and Saturday. Mr. Wirth has just returned after an extended tour, during which he studied the situation at first hand in various cities.

Revised plans for the proposed Masonic Temple on the Dean tract, at Connecticut and Florida avenues, will be studied at the meeting. Previous plans met objection on the grounds that they were too similar to those of the Lincoln Memorial.

A list of proposed names for various park and recreation areas, now known by unofficial names acquired only through general usage, will be presented for consideration by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, vice chairman and executive officer of the commission.

Results of a survey of population trends in Washington will be presented by Charles W. Eliot, director of planning for the commission. The report will show a decided movement toward Arlington County, Va., in the northwest section of the city along Rhode Island and New Hampshire avenues, it is understood.

Proposals by the Garden Club of America for utilization of columns from the State, War and Navy Building as landmarks at the entrances to the Capital also will be given further study by the commission, and the proposed circle at Wisconsin and Western avenues at the District line will likewise receive additional consideration.

Maj. John C. Gotwals, engineer commissioner of the District, will report on progress of the new Municipal Center plans which are now completed, and Mr. Eliot will review recent studies of the proposed Avenue of the States, which is to be built along the present East Capitol street to the Anacostia river, and along which each state would erect a public building.

Robber Suspect Slays Detective and Is Shot

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Detective Sergt. Frank Krueger was shot to death today when he attempted to arrest Fletcher Moore, wanted by Kansas authorities for bank bank robberies at Hiawatha and Netawaka.

After killing the officer, Moore was shot and probably fatally wounded by Detective Ray Long. An unidentified man and a woman, companions of Moore, escaped after exchanging shots with the police. Krueger was well-known in national bowling circles.

Fog on Chesapeake Bay Paralyzes Ship Traffic

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—A three-day fog over Chesapeake Bay showed signs of lifting today, and then settled down with greater intensity, with the result that the freight steamer Mangore went aground and 14 other ocean-going craft remained at anchor, their captains afraid to proceed. Mail and passenger airplane service remained suspended.

The Weather Bureau predicted a continuation of overcast skies and occasional light rains, with mild temperatures, and southerly winds tonight and tomorrow.

Tax Collections In Quarter Drop

Fall of $354,813 Shown for Three Months Ending Oct. 31.

Tax collections fell off $354,813.05 during the three months ended October 31, as compared with the same period last year, according to figures made public yesterday by W. D. Clark, jr., deputy collector of taxes.

Mr. Clark summarized the collections as follows: For 1929 and 1930, respectively, real estate, $8,794,768.20, against $8,907,294.90; tangible personal property, $1,817,816.12, against $1,394,941.61; intangible personalty, $1,379,772.52, against $1,394,002.61; gasoline tax, $561,898.14, against $626,093.73, and water fund, $617,724.07, against $597,529.33.

These figures do not include all items of collection, it was explained, but include the most subetantial from which the bulk of the District's revenue is obtained. The decline was recorded in face of substantial increases in levies for real and personal taxes.

Proposals to Amend Constitution Fail; Peace Reigns.

By JACK ESPEY.

EXTENSION of the territory of the District of Columbia Association to cover an area within a 15-mile radius of Washington, was approved yesterday by the Amateur Athletic Union in forty-second annual convention in the Hamilton Hotel.

This extension was one of several sought by District associations, a majority of which were approved. The towns of Marlboro and Beltsville in Maryland and Vienna and Fairfax in Virginia are taken in by the local association through the extension.

Increased activity in boxing, track and field and basket ball are anticipated by leaders of the District of Columbia Association during the next twelve months as a result of the enlargement. While no definite plans for the holding of boxing championships have been made as yet, it is considered probable that the scene of the 1931 championships will be in Maryland, where the law permits the charging of nominal admissions and award of prizes such as are thought necessary to successful conduct of the bouts.

Local Men on Board Of Governors.

Among important matters to be taken up by the convention today are the awarding of the championship events for 1931, the election of next year's officers, and the selection of the 1931 convention city. The names of the ten most worthy candidates for the James E. Sullivan Memorial Trophy, to be awarded this year for the first time and annually hereafter to the most outstanding amateur athlete of America.

A board of governors of 130 men was elected today, with the following representatives of the District association named: President John D. O'Reilly, Secretary-Treasurer Winfree Johnson and Edward Rosenblum.

President Brundage announced today that the International Amateur Athletic Federation at Paris last month rejected the proposal of certain foreign countries whereby athletes participating in the Olympics would be allowed a sum of money equal to what they would have earned in regular employment during the period covering their participation in the olympics.

Peace and harmony reigned throughout yesterday's two sessions of the convention presided over by Avery Brundage, president, of Chicago. Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, District Commissioner, made a speech of welcome at the opening of the morning session. Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and parks, addressed the delegates at luncheon

Wykoff's Century Mark Accepted.

As previously indicated, the convention accepted the record of Frank Wykoff, University of Southern California sprinter, who ran 100 yards in 9 2-5 seconds last May in Los Angeles. Wykoff's mark will be recommended to the International Amateur Athletic Federation for international recognition as a world's standard.

Also approved and also to be recommended for international acceptance was the 169-foot 8¾-inch discus throw of Paul Jessup, of the Washington A. C., Seattle, who performed this marvelous feat in the national championships last August 29 at Pittsburgh.

The claim of Ralph A. Hill, of the University of Oregon for an American mile record—4 minutes 12 2-5 seconds—was another claim to pass the convention. The marks of Stella Walsh, Cleveland sprinter, and of Helene Madison, Seattle swimmer, outstanding among the women athletes, also were approved.

Three new associations were voted into the union, bringing the membership up to 29, an unprecedented figure. The Gulf Coast Association, in Texas, with headquarters at Houston; the Northeastern Ohio Association, with headquarters in Cleveland, and the Missouri Valley Association, with headquarters in Kansas City, Mo.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

THE moral of the Red Grange picture is this: Don't turn around to buy a hot-dog. Grange returned Michigan's first kick-off and within twelve minutes had crossed the goal line four times.

The statement that an ordinary needle can be driven through a nickel or a penny with a hammer has all the earmarks of a prevarication, but try it yourself. Here's the way it's done: Select a fine needle and stick it through a cork of the same length as the needle. Place the coin on two blocks of wood with a space between them, then set the cork on the coin. A sharp blow with the hammer will do the trick.

The lobster swims better backward than forward although it's pretty good in either direction. With a single stroke of its tail, which is used as an oar, it can dart backward a distance of 20 feet. The lobster swims forward by means of five pairs of little "swimmerets" located under its tail and manages to travel at a fair rate of speed but not so fast as by its backward motion.

Tomorrow the answer to the word question will be given.

ARMY-NAVY TICKETS AT $5 TO $50

Salvation Army Plans for Ten Million Free Meals.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Tickets for the Army-Navy football game for unemployment relief to be played on December 13 at the Yankee Stadium will cost from $5 to $50. It was announced today, when final plans for the great match were completed, some choice seats at midfield will be auctioned off and are expected to bring much higher prices, Grover A. Whalen, chairman of the Salvation Army's citizen committee, stated.

There will be no free tickets. A "million-dollar gate" is expected, Whalen declared. Col. Edward Anderson, of the Salvation Army, translated that sum into foodstuffs and pledged 10,000,000 free meals for the unemployed needy.

Concessions to Swell Proceeds.

Broadcasting rights and other concessions are expected to swell the total to unprecedented proportions, it was announced. Salvation lassies in uniform will take the places of the regular concessionaires' employes and sell programs, refreshments and souvenirs.

It was stated by the committee that under the sales direction of the citizens' committee 38,000 of the 76,000 stadium seats would be bought by

Bowie Runs Extra Day; Profits Go to Charity

The Southern Maryland Agricultural Association race meeting at Bowie will be extended one day through Monday, December 1, with the proceeds of the day's receipts to be devoted to Maryland charities, it was announced yesterday at the track.

The association will provide the purses. The charities will be given the admission fees to the track and the percentage of the mutual betting that reverts to the association.

Decision to donate an extra day's racing to charity extends to thirteen days the Bowie meeting, which was scheduled to close on November 29. The plan to run an extra day was approved by the Maryland Racing Commission, governing body of the sport in Maryland.

ARMY SPLIT URGED FOR HARVARD

Rep. Fish Proposes That Alma Mater Shun Cadets.

(Associated Press.)

REMOVAL of West Point from Harvard's football schedule after next year because of the Army's refusal to adhere to the three-year eligibility rule, was proposed yesterday by Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., of New York.

The proposal was made in a letter to Bill Bingham, athletic director at Harvard, Fish's alma mater. The New Yorker, in whose district West Point is located, was named all-American tackle when captain of Harvard's team two decades ago.

Fish wrote that since Harvard initiated the three-year eligibility rule for football players in 1906 it should not encourage university and colleges to play West Point by continuing its contract after 1931.

Army Has Advantage, Says Congressman.

Although he said he was sympathetic with West Point's football problems, he pointed out that the Army had not defeated Harvard until three years ago when players already

Savoldi Ends Notre Dame Grid Career in Divorce Snarl

SOUTH BEND, IND., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Matrimony has accomplished what a score of good football teams attempted and failed to do. It has forever halted "Galloping Joe" Savoldi from ripping off touchdowns for Notre Dame.

The big Italian from Three Oaks, Mich., hailed as one of the greatest of Knute Rockne's football great, today was forced to withdraw from Notre Dame because he married and then started divorce proceedings. The withdrawal ended his college football career, which had but three more games ahead of it, and removed him from the great Rambler back field.

Savoldi secretly married Miss Audrey Koehler, of South Bend, April 3, 1929, before he had gained the football fame that now goes with his name. The secret held until November 1, when his attorney, the same justice of peace who had married him, filed suit on Savoldi's behalf for a divorce.

Friends Spread "Secret."

The football star's friends immediately urged him to reconsider his suit, fearing his expulsion from Notre Dame, and he withdrew the suit.

Tech Favored In Eastern Contest

Series Title at Stake in Charity Game at Central Today.

Hardell Seeking 3d Straight Crown; Start at 3:15.

TECH and Eastern meet today in a game, the component parts of which stamp it as one of the most important tilts of the local grid season. Scheduled at 3:15 at Central High School Stadium, the entire proceeds of the game will be handed over to the District Commissioners for relief of the city's unemployed; the game will also ring down the annual high school series and will decide which team will wear the crown for the ensuing year.

Central's 8,000 capacity bowl is expected to be jammed today as the first local charity game gets under way. A straight 50 cent admission will be charged. Tickets have been sold to high school students for 10 cents.

Tech has triumphed in three series tests this year, beating Business, 39-0, Central, 18-0, and Western, 33-0. Eastern, also undefeated, has beaten Business, 7-0, tied Western at 0-0, and trounced Central by an 18-0 score.

Despite the strong showing of Eastern against Central the followers of high school football have not lost sight of their original selection of Tech as the year's champion. Eastern is a greatly improved team, no doubt, but Tech is expected to exhibit the fact that it is a better one, and by at least a two touchdown margin.

Tech Seeks Third Straight Title.

Tech is at the tape for the final heat of a game which can give Coach Hardell a record of having been successful in every series game played in the last three years. Tech again, is in quest of its third consecutive series title, and is expected to produce a brand of football today capable of disrupting Eastern's forces.

The legend of Coach Hardell's "masterminding" has grown in solidarity this year. With no great athletes on his squad he has developed a team rarely reached in smoothness in high school grid history. Assistant Coach Warren Spencer says it is the greatest outfit Hardell has turned out.

Tech is a team without a star. No one wearer of the Maroon and Gray has been singled out this year as deserving of more praise than the man to the left or right of him. The squad, like all of Hardell's teams, is fundamentally a unity.

Tech May Show Its Passes.

Hardell may shoot the works today for the first time of the series. All season his team has been under instructions to exhibit about half its plays, a half which has proven of sufficient stuff to swamp their series foes. One department of Tech's game totally neglected in the series has been the forward pass. Patrons today will see plenty aerial pyrotechnics if Tech's notorious assortment of spinner plays are stopped.

Eastern's rise in caliber since the start of the season has been a tribute to Coach Mike Kelley and his staunch sophomores. Rated as barely above the grade of Business High even after its first appearance in the series, Eastern first gained notice when it held Western scoreless, and burst into full view by beating Central by a decisive margin.

Kelley boasts of one of the best lines he has ever coached. Eastern's ends, Davis and McAboy, are a fine pair of wingsters, while his backfield men, if they can duplicate their Central performances, will stage fireworks today at Central Stadium.

D. C. Amateur Boxing Bill to Be Introduced

Reintroduction of the District amateur boxing bill by Representative Fred Hartley, jr., of New Jersey in the forthcoming session of Congress is believed to be a certainty in local amateur sports circles.

The bill, which failed of passage in the last session through the objection of Representative Patman of Texas, will be amended so that all possible objections will be removed, according to persons in close touch with the situation.

Representative Hartley, recently reelected from the Eighth Congressional District of New Jersey, told his campaign manager, Edward Rosenblum, a New Jerseyite, living in Washington, that he would make every effort to aid passage of the bill in the next session.

Bobby Jones' retirement from golf relinquishes his claim to the four major trophies he now holds, the first time in history any one golfer ever boasted the quartet in any given year. He won them all in 1930. Left to right are the silver vase of the British Open, the gold cup of the National Amateur, the British Amateur Silver Trophy and the American Open Cup.

violation of the amateur rule. I think a lot might be said on either side, but I am so far convinced that it is contrary to the spirit of amateurism that I am prepared to accept and even indorse a ruling that it is an infringement.

"I have chosen to play as an amateur not because I have regarded an honest professionalism as discreditable, but simply because I have had other ambitions in life. So long as I played as an amateur there could be no question of subterfuge or concealment. The rules of the game, whatever they were, I have respected, sometimes even beyond the limit. I certainly shall never become a professional golfer. But since I am no longer a competitor, I feel free to act entirely outside the amateur rule, as my judgment and conscience may decide.

"When these pictures have been made I expect to return to the practice of my profession unhampered by the necessity of keeping my golf up to championship requirements."

The financial side of the motion picture contract was not disclosed, either by Jones or Warner Brothers. It was understood the champion will receive a flat guarantee as well as a percentage of the profits. The estimates of what the return may mean to the Georgian range as high as $250,000.

To Make 12 "Talkies" on "How I Play Golf."

The twelve "one-reelers" will be talking pictures entitled "How I Play Golf." They will demonstrate all the shots in the famous Jones repertoire, from his powerful driving swing to the delicately accurate putting touch that has been so conspicuous in the Georgian's march to a grand total of thirteen national championships over a period of eight years. This will perpetuate the ability of "Calamity Jane," the champion's internationally famous putting blade.

Bobby will discuss the shots as he makes them for the screen. Slow motion will be used to accentuate features of his shotmaking ability. The champion will be the only character in the films, unless his caddy figures in the background, in which event he may take with him to Hollywood, Calif., his favorite club carrier at his home course of Eastlake, Atlanta.

Jones is expected to go to California in March to begin the motion picture work. Warner Bros. announced the films will be released at two-week intervals after April 15, 1931.

"These pictures," Jones explained in his statement, "are to be purely educational in character, and it is the ardent hope of both parties that they will be of some value, first by improving the play and thereby increasing the enjoyment of the vast number of people already interested in the game, and, second, by creating an interest where none exists now among the many who may find enjoyment and beneficial exercise on the golf course."

President-Elect of U. S. G. A. Pays Tribute.

Jones, who for years has been known as "interview shy," was not on hand personally when his detailed statement of retirement was made public by Herbert H. Ramsay, president-elect of the United States Golf Association and a long-time friend of the world's champion. The Georgian, after witnessing the Georgia Tech-Pennsylvania football game Saturday at Philadelphia, left for his home in Atlanta.

Mr. Ramsay, however, paid him this tribute:

"He has unquestionably during his career made the greatest competitive record in the history of the game. Aside from that, though, his charac-

Rhymed Tributes to Jones

(The following verses are reprinted from past "Tee to Green" columns of Henry Litchfield West, Post staff golf writer.)

I think I'd like to stage an exhibition
Between two famous golfers I have met;
I'd make a fortune charging an admission
To see a golf match no one would forget.

Jones vs. Jones! 'Twould be a wondrous battle!
Nor could I prophesy which one would beat.
'Twould make the bones of old Tom Morris rattle
Down in his grave, should these two golfers meet.

The greatest golfers of our generation,
They have an international renown;
They're Bobby Jones, the champion of our Nation,
And Bobby Jones, who won the British crown.

When but a youngster in my 'teens,
I worshipped all the heroes bold,
Who, 'mid the most tempestuous scenes,
Were famous in the days of old.

The warriors in old Homer's Troy,
King Alfred and the ancient clan—
I read their stories with great joy,
And longed to be a superman.

In later years I bowed my head
In reverence to heroes great;
The men who for their country bled,
Or safely steered the Ship of State.

But now, when golf is all the rage,
I state in most emphatic tones
That I'm in keeping with the age—
My hero now is Bobby Jones.

When Bobby plays in perfect style,
With drives that seem to go a mile,
He mashies surely to the green,
And then holes out with air serene,
With pars and birdies all the while.

I like to see his happy smile,
As all his shots go down the aisle,
It is like watching some machine,
When Bobby plays.

I'd like to find some far-off isle
Where I can go in sweet exile
And learn, amid a sylvan scene,
The game that is so free from guile,
When Bobby plays.

MOKATAM TAKES FEATURE AS BOWIE MEET OPENS

Victory Gives Rancocas Double

Grattan, 25-1, Scores for Same Stable in Fourth.

Con Amore, Ned O Second and Third in Feature.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Nov. 17.—The Rancocas Stable, which has been winning few races this season, broke out with a rash of winners today, its second victory being with the 3-year-old Mokatam, which won the eighth Prince Georges Handicap, $10,000 added, featuring the opening of the fall Bowie meeting here today. This followed the victory of Grattan in the Burch Memorial, the secondary feature.

J. W. Y. Martin's filly Con Amore, which had set the pace to the eighth pole, was second in the feature, a length behind the winner, and a half length further back was G. W. Foreman's Ned O. Valenciennes was fourth and Spinach, the favorite, was last. The winner paid $12.30 and Con Amore was $13.50 a place. The sum of $8,600 went to the winner, which was ridden by E. Kummer, and the time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:46 4-5.

10,000 Crowd Sees Opening.

Upward of 10,000 turned out for the opening, in spite of the threat of rain that hung overhead all day. The track was technically good. This is the first meeting at which the Rancocas has had a leading jockey other than L. Fator in several years, that rider having left the employment of F. M. Taylor, Rancocas trainer, last week. E. Kummer, on Mokatam, and L. Pichon, on Grattan, both rode perfectly.

Con Amore set a fast pace, with Mokatam and Ned O. close up. Kummer did not press Mokatam until he reached the eighth pole, when the Martin filly was compelled to yield the pace. On the back stretch, Spinach, heavily weighted, attempted to challenge the leaders, and Valenciennes moved up at the same time, but neither could reach the three front horses, and Spinach tired badly in the stretch.

Huntingdon Wins First Race.

Fourteen maiden 2-year-olds answered the bugle in the first race. A Morris Herkness colt, Huntingdon, won by a head from Ultra Marine, a filly, and Mrs. E. Trueman's Earfull, coupled with the winner, was third and Friar Bacon fourth. Ultra Marine, by By Hisself, one of the first of the Man o' War horses to be sent to the races, was a field horse. The time was fast, 1:13 for six furlongs, which surprised everyone, who believed the track slow and illustrates the deceptive Bowie course. Rain seems to make it faster. The winner, marked 8-to-1 in the approximate board, paid only $6.70 and the field, marked 25-to-1, paid only $6.30.

Winner Goes Into Van Near End.

The start was good, Friar Bacon leaving the gate in front, pursued by Earfull and Glenside. Friar Bacon lasted to the eighth, when he faltered. Then the winner got in the van, but had a close call.

J. J. Moran's Aurica led all the way in the second, winning by a half-length. W. E. Caskey's My Scoop was second, three lengths in front of Cabellsdale, third. Torch, the favorite, was fourth. Adams had the mount on Torch and his ride was bungling from start to finish. It took the field 1:56 to run the mile and a furlong. Cabellsdale was closest to the pace at the first turn.

W. Carroll, on the ultimate winner, had no trouble keeping the filly in front, but she was tiring at the end, when My Scoop came fast. More pooling was engaged in by the crowd when the price went up on Aurica. The last betting line on the approximator was 8 to 1, but she paid only $11.80.

Admiral Grayson's Happy Scot paraded home first in the Promenade Purse, third race, pursued at a respectful distance by C. V. Whitney's Rideaway, and a margin of a length and a half separated the two at the finish. A length and a half further back, Opponent was third, beating Sunny Lassie, the only other starter.

There was not much to the race except giving the crowd a look at a fine colt, for Happy Scot is a good one. With only four starters and no real opposition, Happy Scot, at 1 to 5, had little competition for the betters. He ran the 6 furlongs in 1:13 1-5 and was under a pull all the way, with Coltlietti up. He is by Scotch Broom—Felicitation and was bred by the late Samuel Ross.

Grattan Pays Backers $53.50 for $2.

The W. P. Burch Memorial Handicap, secondary feature and fourth on the program, brought eight good sprinters to the post. The Rancocas Stables' Grattan was the surprise winner. Belair Stud's Peto closed fast to get the place by a head from the Sagamore Stable filly, The Spare, which had made all the pace. Jock, the favorite, closing very fast, could only get fourth. The winner paid $53.50, the first long-odds of the day, and long-odds have made Bowie famous.

First Lady, coupled with Polydor, was the challenger on the back stretch, but Polydor never figured in the race. Jock was away poorly and never had a chance. L. Pichon, always in striking distance with Grattan, came to the front at the sixteenth. The time was fast, 1:12. Peto paid $10.50 for place, while the place price on the winner was $29.00.

Flying Max, finding the track to his liking, overhauled Aziz in the sixth race to win by a head, with Wrackell third. Star Crest led from the barrier, but Aziz soon was in front winging. First Mission was forcing the pace when Catrone began working on Flying Max, and after a hard stretch duel got his mount across. Nine horses started. Flying Max, Aziz and Syriac were the favorites. The winner paid $12.70.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AURICA, $11.80, $6.30, $4.10; MY SCOOP, $6.10, $5.40; CABELLSDALE, $5.60.

AURICA rushed into the lead directly after the start, was steadied in front, shook off CABELLSDALE and, holding on gamely, outstayed MY SCOOP. Latter entered contention approaching the far turn, but appeared to falter after setting to the winner. CABELLSDALE made repeated efforts in the early running, but weakened in the final stages. TORCH, bumped at the break, overcame this misfortune, but could not menace the leaders. WAYFARER had good speed for seven furlongs and may have been short.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,500. The Promenade. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:03½. Off at 2:04¼. Winner, Carr T. Grayson's b. c., by Scotch Broom—Felicitation. Trained by P. M. Burch. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAPPY SCOT, $3.40, $2.30, out; RIDE AWAY, $3.50, out; OPPONENT, out.

HAPPY SCOT broke fast and took an easy lead at once, was taken under stiff restraint and just galloped along in advance of his field. RIDE AWAY hard ridden throughout, was easily held safe. OPPONENT had no excuse. SUNNY LASSIE was outrun.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,500. The W. P. Burch Memorial Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:29½. Off at 2:32. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GRATTAN, $53.50, $29.00, $10.80; PETO, $10.50, $5.60; THE SPARE, $3.00.

GRATTAN, in the first flight from the start, responded stoutly when put to a drive, wore THE SPARE down in the final sixteenth. PETO, outrun for the first half mile, came to the outside to finish strong. THE SPARE disposed of FIRST LADY when rounding turn, saved ground, but weakened at the end. JOCK broke very slow, was rushed into contention and had nothing left for the final drive. POLYDOR raced wide. FIRST LADY quit.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $10,000. The Prince George Autumn Handicap. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:02½. Off at 3:03½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOKATAM, $12.30, $6.90, $4.50; CON AMORE, $13.50, $8.20; NED O., $4.20.

MOKATAM, hurried along into a contending position, was kept on the outside of CON AMORE when making his final effort, finished well with bold outrage and was up in last sixteenth. CON AMORE broke fast, assumed command at once, raced under steadying restraint while saving ground and held on stoutly for the final test. NED O. secured racing room on the inside when challenging the leaders, but could not make up any ground in the final issue. VALENCIENNES, poorly handled, was messed about for six furlongs, then came to the outside to close resolutely. ROCKET GLARE raced well. JIM DANDY was outrun. SPINACH performed poorly under his weight.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:36. Off at 3:36½. Winner, Mrs. S. Bennett's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYING MAX, $12.70, $6.10, $4.10; AZIZ, $6.50, $3.90; WRACKELL, $6.30.

FLYING MAX, restrained until well settled in his stride, reached the leaders steadily, came stoutly under strong urging, and got up in the concluding strides. AZIZ displayed good speed while setting the pace, saved ground all the way and continued courageously to the end. WRACKELL finished willingly when placed to punishment. FIRST MISSION tired from racing with AZIZ. SYRIAC was never a factor. REPLEVIN showed a very dull effort and can do better. STAR CREST did not appear to favor the footing.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:07. Off at 4:08. Winner, P. B. Codd's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NIGHT SIGNAL, $7.00, $4.50, $3.80; BOB SHANNON, $8.60, $4.50; STERN CHASER, $3.40.

NIGHT SIGNAL, reserved for the first six furlongs, worked her way to the leaders gradually and, closing with good courage to wear BOB SHANNON down inside the final furlong. Latter raced ELEUSAGON into defeat, saved ground, but faltered and was tiring out at the end. STERN CHASER was always well up and closed willingly. PRINCELY ATTENTION closed a big gap. CORNISH LAD may improve off this race.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Bowie Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Nov. 17.—The Glenburnie Purse, at a mile and a sixteenth, will feature the second day of racing at Bowie. The track may be heavy in spots, but much improved. This seems the best chance for MOLASSES JANE that the filly has had during the Maryland racing. She has the weakest opposition that she has been confronted by. She takes off weight, starting in this with 101 pounds, and the Brann Castle young mare should take the purse. She has been running against horses like Valenciennes, Petee-Wrack and Maya, and with 120 pounds ran third to Her Grace. She is bred for a heavy track, being by Ballot and Julia N., she by Peter Quince.

The Wheatley Stable's ADEQUATE, which forced the pace of Hat Broom at Pimlico, should take care of the others. ADEQUATE takes off 20 pounds from that race. PORPHYRY has aspired to stake engagements and drops 24 pounds off his race against Aziz and should get third money.

FIRST RACE—Two-year-old maidens open the card. SPANISH BONERO ran two smashing races on a heavy track at Empire City, finishing second by a head to Billour in one of them, and it appears that race repeated should win this. TRICE, beaten by a nose by Traufey at Pimlico, is a dangerous contender. His best race was on a fast track, hence the selection of SPANISH BONERO. CARNIVAL, from the Rancocas Stable, third to Francock on a heavy track at Empire City, is dangerous. It will not be safe to overlook Rancocas horses after the sweep they made on opening day.

SECOND RACE—ST. AGNES, which will carry the colors of Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords in the second race, for 2-year-olds, will only have to repeat her last race, when she beat RUNNING GIRL and FERVID at Laurel to win the second race, which also is for 2-year-olds. BELGIAN LASS is rated the contender. She ran away from High Go and others at Laurel. GAY BIRD'S last race was so good that he probably will be in the money. JOHN F. won his last race, at Empire City, and may be close. GARLIC will like the track.

THIRD RACE—Some top-notch sprinters, 3 years old and up, here. FRENCH LASS has been in the money in her last six starts, two of which she won, and was third to Jock, then second to Maya. No such horses will be against her in this race, but PROMETHEUS, which raced for C. V. Whitney's stable until a few days ago, now owned by W. R. Padgett, is regarded as the most dangerous of the field against her. IRISH POLLY showed improvement in her last start, and should be in the money. BETTY BEAU is fast, but seems to have had too much rough-track racing.

FIFTH RACE—VOLTEAR takes off much weight, dropping from 123 to 108, and this should revive his racing form sufficiently to win the Bay Ridge. He was running close up with horses like Sunvir at Laurel, but the increases in weight got him anchored. He beat Frumper with 126 pounds, and on that effort must be favored for this race, in which the filly NICOTINE seems to be the most rugged contender. FLECHE D'ARGENT ran a good race in Kentucky and may be dangerous here. This French-bred filly won in Chicago and at Saratoga. ANGRY also has a money chance.

SIXTH RACE—Bowie gives plenty of distance racing. The sixth also is over a route. RUANE has been improving and was third at Pimlico to Billie Leonard. He has aspired to run against stake horses, and tackled Ned O. not so long ago. If he can not beat this field, he should stay away from stake horses in the future. He has speed when he gets in form. Change of track may help. CLEAR SKY won his last over VIMONT, and if this race was longer he would have a better chance. VIMONT should take the show money.

SEVENTH RACE—FAIR BILL'S last three races have been good and he should take the purse in the seventh. He was third to Punishment and third to Baritone. He has been closing fast and this race is longer, a mile and a furlong. He might have a hard time making bond that would win, but he looks best on past performances. SOMETIME, on his race behind Fair Folly, should be the contender. ARTIE KAY is another that is ready for brackets.

BUCHANAN VS. CRITTENDEN.

The Buchanan Street Cardinals will meet the Crittenden Street Bears Saturday morning in one of the major midget games of the week.

After a lapse of three years from the basket ball court the Clovers, of Southeast, have reorganized. Many of the players, who were affiliated with the club before, have signified their intention of playing, and a good team is in prospect. A practice session is listed for Eastern High gym at 7 o'clock tonight.

Wiler, Adkins, Smith, Lilly, Aman, Robey, Timmons, Canavin and any candidates wishing to try for the team are requested to report.

Bob Lilly, at Lincoln 5845, is arranging the Clovers' schedule.

Maj. P. B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at West Point, was asked if the negotiations had opened the way to resumption of regular games between the institutions.

"This is just a ball game—for unemployment relief," was his reply.

Similarly Capt. H. C. Cooks, Naval Academy director of athletics, declined to forecast future contests.

It was announced tonight that mail applications for seats should be addressed to the citizens' committee at the Biltmore Hotel.

FISH URGES HARVARD TO SPLIT WITH ARMY

famous on other college teams had entered the Military Academy.

"With the present practice at West Point, he added, the idea of players for six years—three at the academy and three at other schools—would make it difficult for Harvard and other universities to compete with the cadets.

The New Yorker said he was glad the Naval and Military Academy teams were to meet in New York in December for the benefit of the unemployed.

"It is to be hoped that the game will result in the resumption of football relations between the two academies," he said. "However, I also hope that the Naval Academy will not make any concessions to its three-year eligibility rule for the future. If the academy's athletic association insists on disregarding the eligibility standards as approved by all first-class universities and colleges throughout the country, I don't believe the Naval Academy should resume negotiations."

Harvard-Army Games Are Assured Until 1935

Hamilton, Mass., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—William J. Bingham, director of Harvard athletics, interrupted the Crimson football team's annual relaxation party here at the Myopia Hunt Club tonight to announce that the West Point Cadets would be on Harvard's schedule every year until 1935 at least. Bingham had not yet received the proposal of Representative Hamilton Fish that Harvard sever relations with the Army.

"The committee on the regulation of Harvard athletics," Bingham said, "arranges all schedules. Harvard is under contract to play the Army at West Point next fall, at Cambridge in 1932, 1933 and 1934 and at West Point the following year.

"Harvard never goes back on its agreements and will play each of the games in the contract with the Army and will observe every detail of its football agreement with the Army. Harvard has never questioned the eligibility of any of its rivals and has only asked that opposing players be eligible according to the requirements of their colleges. Harvard has never demanded that its opponents observe the three-year eligibility rule which governs all Harvard sports teams."

Bowie Notes

Special to The Washington Post.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Nov. 17.—The niftiest timing poles possessed by any State-mile track now grace the Bowie course. Superintendent Pending has made the sixteenth poles white, the eighth poles white with inlaid diamonds of red, and the quarter poles white, with black inlaid diamonds. They stand out like beacons in a fog and add to the attractiveness of this plant.

Shrubbery has been planted in profusion throughout the track. Hedges have been planted along the railings, and in another six months this plant will be one of the nattiest in the East.

Despite the heavy rains of the past few days, the racing strip was in good condition. Horses worked better than 1:15 for three-quarters this morning and it should be lightning fast by tomorrow.

The Southern Maryland Sales Co. will hold a sale of horses in training in the paddock on Wednesday, November 26, at 10 a. m. Dr. Henry McCarthy will act as auctioneer. Consignments can be made to William Jennings.

Elmer Trueman reports Ral Parr's Her Grace suffered a leg injury in her last start, which accounts for her being scratched from today's feature.

Rogers Caldwell's Lady Broadcast, one of the best mares ever to come out of the West, is here. She is being made ready for the $30,000 feature event on Saturday.

Augustus P. Goodwin's Land Boy, winner of the Master of Fox Hounds Steeplechase at Pimlico, was shipped from Jennings Farm to Belmont Park, N. Y.

R. P. Watts claimed Fair Beth out of Saturday's sixth race at Pimlico for $2,000, while G. Alexander took Bright Day, the winner of the event, for $1,500.

NAVY FEARS MARYLAND ON GRIDIRON SATURDAY

Rivalry Dates Back to 1888

"Agricultural" Team Won First Game With Middies.

Old Liners and Tars Now Meet in 7 Sports.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 17.—Navy's athletic relations with University of Maryland cover a wide range of sports and of late years have been as keen as any on the Midshipmen's schedules. Only two years ago Maryland beat Navy in the Olympic lacrosse finals, 6 to 2, in a remarkably hot game. Even in such a military sport as small bore rifle, Maryland has tipped Navy back to the small end of final scores.

In 1926 Maryland registered 1,905 points to Navy's 1,894. In 1927 and again in 1928 Maryland won by a few points in spite of the fact that Navy finished second in the intercollegiates in 1928 against eight teams.

Basket Ball Series Started in 1917.

In the basket ball series between the two institutions which started in 1917, Navy lists four victories and Maryland three, the first game being 58 to 1 in favor of Navy and last season's result 43 to 39, with Maryland the victor.

It is now 22 years since Navy and Maryland began stealing bases from each other, the series standing about fourteen games for Navy and four for Maryland. In 1910 the two schools played fifteen innings trying to break a 1 to 1 tie, but gave it up when it became so dark that lanterns were needed to find second base.

Many old-timers will remember the tough spring of 1914. In that year on March 21 the annual baseball game was called off on account of snow. The 1930 baseball game ended Navy, 6; Maryland, 5, but "Kid" Mohler, Navy's Pacific League coach, chewed up half a slab of "Player's cut plug" before the game was in his bag.

In track, Maryland has been a colorful performer on Navy's cinder path. This coming spring Navy is scheduled to visit the Old Liners on their own grounds for the first time in their track competitions.

Football, if Maryland Agricultural College is considered, goes back to a game in 1889 which Maryland won. The last football game between Navy and Maryland was in 1917, when most of Navy's scores were strengthened by the war. Maryland was defeated, 62 to 0, but other teams in the same year fell under scores of 95 to 0 or 89 to 0, no team being able to make more than one touchdown in any game during the season.

In summing up: Maryland meets Navy in football, baseball and track, three of Navy's four major sports, and in four of eleven minor sports, basket ball, lacrosse, rifle and tennis

Old Liners Coming to Fore In Athletics.

Only a brief survey of Maryland's progressive scoring is necessary to show that the Old Liners are becoming increasingly stronger in all branches of competition in which the two institutions meet.

From all indications, the football game on Saturday, November 22, will prove a very convincing demonstration of Maryland's new-found strength. Navy has no illusions regarding Maryland's football ability this season.

But it has been the particular job of B squad coach, Frank Foster, to keep an eye on the Maryland games each Saturday and his reports leave nothing to the imagination. One of the most convincing points brought out so far is that Maryland made 14 consecutive downs against Yale, interrupted more by fumbles along the way than by a checking of the Old Liners' offense.

If Maryland proves as lively and versatile as scouts report, Navy will have to be stronger than Yale to hold.

Byrd Concentrating On Reserve Strength

Bent on annexing their sixth consecutive victory of the current season at the expense of the Naval Academy eleven, whom they play next Saturday afternoon on Farragut Field, Annapolis, the Maryland gridders yesterday afternoon inaugurated five days of preparation for the battle with an intensive workout at the Byrd Stadium.

While the regulars ran through a long signal drill, Coach Byrd as usual spent most of his time with the reserves. Byrd is attempting to develop the strongest possible second team to take some of the burden off the shoulders of the first-stringers in the ensuing games with Navy, Johns Hopkins, Vanderbilt and Western Maryland which occur in the next three weeks. Lack of suitable reserve strength has been a great handicap to the Terrapins all season.

No Scrimmage Likely for Fear of Injuries.

The rest of the practices before Saturday's battle undoubtedly will be spent by the College Parkers in polishing up both offense and defense and familiarizing themselves with Navy formations. It is held very unlikely that Byrd will scrimmage his regulars, as he has been very careful to avoid subjecting his first-string players to any possible chances of injury. In fact, the first-stringers have not been put through a rough practice scrimmage since early in October.

Reports emanating from Annapolis have it that the Middy Team next Saturday will be much stronger offensively than the one which absorbed a 20-7 whipping at the hands of Southern Methodist last week. Tschirgi and Campbell, injured back who did not face the Methodists, will be available to play against Maryland. Hagebergm, hard-plunging full back, who was inserted in the Mustang clash only a few minutes, also will be ready to go the route then.

These three men, together with Kiro, Middy ball carrier, who alone picked up 118 yards in 24 tries against Southern Methodist, constitute a back field which should cause plenty of trouble to Coach Byrd's forwards.

SWEENEY COACHES.

The Stanton A. C. grid team is looking for a Sunday game against a strong 150-pound eleven. The Stantons received a boost last night when Joe Sweeney, Mohawk grid satellite who was once a Stanton, agreed to coach the team for the rest of the season.

The Stantons will practice tomorrow night at 6 o'clock. Dutch Martz, Atlantic 0400, is in charge of booking games.

HARD DRILLS START AT VIRGINIA

Cavaliers, Following Rest, Prep for Tarheels.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 17.—Virginia varsity begins intensive training for North Carolina tomorrow afternoon. Since Saturday the Cavaliers have been enjoying the rest Coach Earl Abell gave them as a reward for their 21-to-7 victory over Washington and Lee.

Relaxation from the long period of training is expected to benefit the boys on the squad. Virginia has played nine games, and the last seven have all been strenuous, nerve-wracking struggles. The coaches think that the Cavaliers will be better mentally and physically on Thanksgiving because of the brief vacation.

Davidson's Victory Gives Virginia Hope.

Davidson's victory over North Carolina has pointed the way for the Virginians. The reverse of the Tarheels by the Wildcats was their first loss this season to a South Atlantic team. Now the Cavaliers hope to add another.

But Coach Abell and all his charges know that the Carolinians will be all the more difficult to defeat because they will be on their mettle in an effort to make up for the reverse of last Saturday. The Virginians know they'll have to play their best game of the season in order to win. This is what they hope to do.

Bill Thomas and Frank Sippley will be the chief back-field threats Virginia will put forward in an effort to defeat North Carolina.

Thomas averaged a gain of 6 yards each time he took the ball against Washington and Lee. He ran with it seventeen times for total gains of 102 yards. Twice he took it over the goal line, once after a 25-yard dash around end.

Thomas, Sippley Anxious To Play Tarheels.

Sippley, who called signals through most of the game, didn't give himself the ball but twelve times. He gained 52 yards, an average of something better than four yards each time he stuck it under his arm. He scored a touchdown on a 14-yard gain through the middle of the W. and L. line.

Neither Thomas nor Sippley started the game last fall against North Carolina. They are both very anxious to pit their skill against the Tarheels. With the rest of the squad they've been taking it easy since Saturday and they'll be on their toes ready to go when practice is resumed tomorrow.

Hack Wilson to Lead Martinsburg Courtmen

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 17.—Announcement was made here today by Hack Wilson, the National League's most valuable player, as well as the home run king of the majors in 1930, that he had taken over the active management of the basket ball team of Hose Company No. 5, which organization has an enviable reputation in the tristate district in several branches of sport.

Wilson stated that he had been asked to assume charge of the locals and had consented to do so. He will call for practice in the very near future, whip a team into shape and be ready to schedule games early in December.

"I plan to take my boys through the tristate district soon after I get them organized," said Hack, "and will then get games with fast teams in Baltimore, Washington and Philadelphia. Later on it is quite possible that I will take them to Chicago. It is my intention to coach the team, as well as manage it, and also to take part in many of the games. I have played quite a bit of basket ball and shall try to hold down one of the guard positions."

Hack Wilson on Stage In Home Town Benefit

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 17.—Hack Wilson, who was given a monster demonstration upon his return home a few days ago after his most successful season in the major leagues, and a brief but successful stage career, is going back to the footlights, it became known here today.

The most valuable player in the National League does not intend to return at this time to Chicago or other cities on the big time, but has consented to appear in a Thanksgiving theatrical production for charity. The production is to be held in the Apollo Theater here and is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club. Wilson is to do a vaudeville sketch with Bill Fiery, a well-known local entertainer.

Wilson, with Kiki Cuyler, Cliff Heathcote and Gabby Hartnett appeared in the Loop theaters in Chicago for several weeks after the end of the National League season. Martinsburg people are looking forward with eagerness to his appearance here, his home town.

C. U. AND G. W. DRILL FOR BATTLE

Colonials Are Likely Choices for Friday Night Contest.

THE most spirited football feud in District collegiate circles will raise its head again next Friday night at Griffith Stadium when George Washington and Catholic University meet on the gridiron for the eleventh consecutive year. This will be the first time the two teams have played each other under the floodlights.

Back in 1920, a strong Cardinal eleven triumphed over a fighting G. W. outfit, 15-0. The rivalry engendered in this contest has continued unabated through the years, even growing in intensity, until now it is productive of more color and bitterly-played football than any other local game.

Colonials Have Won But Twice In Series.

In this ten-year stretch, the Colonials have won only twice, beating C. U. in 1922 and 1924. Last fall a powerful Cardinal team walked roughshod over George Washington, winning, 48-6.

Irrespective of the seasonal records of both teams, District fans always turn out in large numbers to see the tussle, which by now has become traditional. Certainly partisans of each team have had little to crow over this campaign as both George Washington and Catholic University have experienced only mediocre success so far.

The Colonials have been victorious in only three of their seven games, losing to Rutgers, 6 to 20, Tulsa, 6 to 14, and Albright, 0 to 33; tying South Dakota, 0-0, and beating Delaware, 9 to 6; Dickinson, 27 to 6, and New York Aggies, 86 to 0.

Catholic University has experienced the worst season in its history. Seven teams have trounced the Maroons, including Boston College, 7 to 54; Franklin-Marshall, 7 to 22; Holy Cross, 6 to 27; Loyola (Md.), 6 to 20; Duquesne, 0 to 13; New River State, 6 to 20, and Manhattan, 6 to 7. One triumph has been registered, American University being walloped by the tune of 60 to 0.

G. W. Slight Favorite to Win This Year.

Because of the respective showings made by both outfits, George Washington enters Friday's fray a slight favorite to win. Coach Pixie's play, on the whole, have failed fully to display the great promise which was theirs before the 1930 campaign got under way. Potentially, the Colonials have one of the finest teams in this section. But overconfidence, vulnerability to forward-pass attacks, and lack of a scoring punch when one was needed have handicapped G. W. to a surprisingly large extent.

Catholic University is determined to close its season in a blaze of glory by whipping its dearest rivals. Cardinal followers are encouraged greatly by the wonderful improvement which gradually has been shown by the C. U. players under Coach Bergman's tireless attention. Another cheerful note to gladden the Cards is the fact that Bergman will be able to start his regular line-up against G. W. for perhaps the second time this season without suffering from the injury bugaboo which has been an unrelenting jinx to most of his dependables at one time or other all year.

St. Mary's Gridmen Greeted by Hoover

(Associated Press.)

Members of the St. Mary's College Football team, of California, en route home after their sensational victory over Fordham University Saturday in New York, yesterday were greeted by President Hoover and were photographed with him on the south lawn of the White House.

Harry Ebding, captain of the team, sought to have the football used in the game autographed by President Hoover, but the Chief Executive was busy with a lengthy list of callers and was unable to do so.

BUSINESS 27-0 VICTIM OF WESTERN

Passes Aid Winners as Stenogs Are Trounced.

GAME TODAY.

Tech vs. Eastern at Central Stadium, 3:15.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

AN alert Western High Team passed and intercepted its way out of a tie with Business High for last place in the high school series yesterday at Central Stadium when eleven air-minded young Georgetowners soared over the Stenogs by a 27-0 count. Less than 1,000 fans witnessed the curtain game for each team.

Western won in even fashion, scoring a touchdown in each of the four periods and exhibiting an aerial defense quite the equal of its aerial attack. Two of the touchdowns were scored after interceptions had been effected, the final 6-pointer being contributed by Stan Amidon at the end of a 55-yard run after snagging a pass on his 45-yard line.

Because of the slippery field both teams deserted all semblance of a rushing game and confined their attack to the air, which, added to the quantity of kicking, gave the ball little chance to become mud encrusted.

Amidon and Beers Make Scores.

Amidon and Beers scored all of Western's points, turning in their best performances of the year in doing so.

Everett Buscher's recovery of a Business fumble saw Western camped on Business' 35-yard line shortly after the kick-off. On the first play Amidon tossed sharply to Beers who was tackled just as he cleared the last line. Amidon missed the placement.

The rest of the period developed into a kicking duel, with Amidon getting the better of Cavanaugh and Plant. The second quarter was not old, however, before Tom Webb, outstanding high school passer, hurled as fiery a pass as the series has seen into the flying arms of Beers, who eluded Business' assailants to the 15-yard line, for a ground gain of 45 yards. Western capitalized on their own mistake on the following play when Amidon's poor lateral pass slithered away from Beers. Business hesitated, but Beers wasted no time in scooping up the ball and running unmolested to the goal. Amidon kicked the placement.

Whistle Ends Chance for Score.

Business nearly scored toward the close of the half when passes and a first down by Vernon Johnson, diminutive tyro of the Stenogs, put the ball on Western's 9-yard line, but the dreary sound of the half whistle spelled the doom of Business' hopes of scoring its first touchdown of the series.

Amidon intercepted two of the many passes which flew about the field in the last half, scoring the first time after a 30-yard run and just before the game ended carrying another interception 55 yards to Business' well-worn last white line. He added both extra points.

Intersectional Game Profits Voted Charity

Pullman, Wash., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The Washington State College-Villanova football game at Philadelphia, November 29, will be played for charity, Earl V. Foster, graduate manager of the Pacific Coast champions, said today.

With 35,000 customers expected to click the turnstiles, Washington State agreed to accept $6,000 for charity at Pullman, the balance to go for charity at Philadelphia. The game will be sponsored by the City of Philadelphia under the new agreement, he said.

The game was scheduled previously but financial arrangements were changed today.

Tunney Will Defend Hoff Suit Next Week

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Suit of Max "Boo Hoo" Hoff, Philadelphia sporting figure, for 20 per cent of former Champion Gene Tunney's ring earnings of $1,700,000 is expected to reach trial sometime next week in the New York Supreme Court.

The case was called today and counsel were ready, but 100 other cases on the calendar are ahead of it.

Tunney will be represented by George D. Whiteside. He was successfully defended in a recent similar suit of Timothy J. Mara, New York promoter, by Emory R. Buckner. Mara sought $626,812.43 of Tunney's earnings for helping bring about the Dempsey-Tunney championship match.

Zbyszko Faces Brown On Strand Mat Tonight

Wladek Zbyszko, who has held practically every title at both the Greco-Roman and catch-as-catch-can style of wrestling from sectional to world champion, will make his initial appearance in the Strand's round robin tournament tonight. Opposing the gigantic Pole will be Anthony Brown, one of the most promising prospects of the heavyweight division.

In the secondary feature Matchmaker Parker is bringing together Joe Hackenschmidt, a nephew of the famous "Russian Lion"—of a decade ago, and Joe Montano, whose greatest claim to fame right now is that he is a brother to the redoubtable "Bull," and considered by many as being just as good a mat artist as his movie star-wrestling kinaman.

Two preliminaries that should provide plenty of action will find Jack Morrow, the blond and stocky Italian, taking on Pete Dallas, the rough and ready Greek, while Mario Gigilo, well known to local mat fans, is to meet George Larson, regarded as being another George Akkerman.

"Goldie" Ahearn has been selected to referee the two main bouts, while Kid Sullivan will work the two curtain-raisers. "Jimmie" Lake will, as usual, be master of ceremonies, and music will be furnished by the Boys Independent Band. Ladies accompanied by escorts are to be admitted free.

All-Southern Conference Team Presents Problem

Dodd, Tennessee, Virtually Assured Berth; Berger, Md., Among Backs to Be Considered; Suther, Ala., Strong Candidate.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—With the season near at hand for the selection of mythical honor teams from players on Southern gridiron elevens, observers find a galaxy of good half backs with a fair number of exceptional quarter backs and full backs.

Conference stars have but one or two games in which to add to their laurels before the pluma of the year are handed out.

Sports writers and coaches will have their hands full attempting to pick a back field quartet from the score or more outstanding ball carriers of the 23 conference teams.

Only one back field member of the Associated Press selection of an all-star team of 1929 is participating again this season, Bobby Dodd, Tennessee's brainy quarter back, is playing his final year with the Volunteers and has again shown the excellent field generalship, good punting, passing and all-around ability that ranked him high last year.

McEver Not in Action.

Gene McEver, Tennessee's half back choice on last year's eleven, suffered a recurrence of an old knee injury during early practice and has been out of play all year.

In every game Dodd has demonstrated he must be considered again before the quarter back post is assigned. Some observers say he has no rival in Dixie as a passer and that he can hold his own with any of the kickers. Few will question his ability as a field general.

There are a half dozen other quarter backs who have displayed exceptional talent. In Downes, Georgia has a signal caller who has directed his team well against the best in the South and East. He can pass and run, but is only a fair punter.

Clemson has a flashy quarterback in Maxey Welch, while Parker, of Vanderbilt; Spicer, of Kentucky; Branch, of North Carolina; Campbell, of Alabama, and Dawson, of Tulane, are all above the average.

Perhaps the greatest difficulty will come in the naming of the two half backs. In addition to several of last year's stars who have blossomed forth anew this season, there are fresh sensations as well as a number of outstanding sophomores.

Suther Has Gained 600 Yards.

John Suther of Alabama has gained more than 600 yards thus far this year and has shown his ability at end sweeps, line smashes, broken field runs, pass receiving and blocking.

Almost every conference team boasts at least one potential candidate for a half back post. Duke has a first-class back in Bill Murray; "Shipwreck" Kelly is Kentucky's best bet; Virginia has a fine ball carrier in Bill Thomas, while Don Zimmerman, Tulane sophomore, is going great in his first year.

Other great backs include Chandler, Dickens and Mott, of Georgia; Bethea and Sauls, of Florida; Hackman, of Tennessee; Magner and Slusser, of North Carolina; Boineau, of South Carolina; Leonard, of Vanderbilt; Biggers, of Mississippi; Hitchcock, of Auburn; Berger, of Maryland; Spear and Hooper, of Virginia Polytechnic, and Barron, of Georgia Tech.

Jack Roberts, of Georgia, and Johnny Cain, Alabama's sophomore, stand out as full backs. Phipps, of Kentucky; Felts, of Tulane; Silsby, of Florida, and Almokary, of L. S. U., are all good full backs who have received popular accord.

Maczees Lost to G. U. For Rest of Season

After the terrific mental and physical strain his Georgetown players went through all last week before and during the New York University game, Coach Tommy Mills deemed it best to give his squad a well-deserved rest yesterday.

This afternoon the Hoyas will start intensive preparations for the clash with Villanova next Saturday at the Philadelphia Municipal Stadium. In Villanova, Georgetown will meet one of the strongest teams in the East when it is at its peak, and an outfit which has triumphed over Boston College, Temple and Oglethorpe.

The only serious casualty of last Saturday's scrap with the Violets was Bill Maczees, who suffered a badly bruised hip which will put him on the shelf for the rest of the season. His absence will be felt sorely, as he was one of the best ball-carriers and defensive players on the Hilltop squad. The other Hoyas who participated in the battle came out of the game with the usual minor ailments and hurts, but nothing of a serious character.

BOBBY JONES QUITS COMPETITIVE GOLF

ter and personality are such that he has become a popular world figure. His withdrawal from competition will be greatly regretted by every one."

The golfing world at large, abroad and at home, was not altogether unprepared for some such decision by Jones. It has been known for months that he contemplated retirement, partly at least, following his unprecedented clean sweep of all the available national championships this year. Nevertheless the actual news of the Georgian's retirement, at the very height of his astonishing career, came as a sensation to sportsmen everywhere.

Not since Gene Tunney renounced the world's heavyweight boxing championship in 1928 has the action of any title holder aroused such widespread interest.

Jones the One "Sure Thing" Of Golf.

Seldom, if ever, in the history of any sport and never before in all the annals of golf any one man, such as Jones, held so completely dominating a position. In a game conspicuous for its lack, rather than any abundance of consistency, Bobby has been the one "sure thing," the one outstanding favorite to weather the rigors of the galloping galleries and repeatedly justify the confidence placed in his prowess.

A "child prodigy" from the time he was first able to swing a club under the tutelage of the Scotch pro, Stewart Maiden, in Atlanta, Jones passed successfully through the stages of hot-headed youth, disappointment, then swift success and, finally world recognition as the greatest of all golfers.

From the time he first won national open championship honors in 1923 at the Inwood Club, Long Island, Jones has never been without the possession of at least one of the four major crowns of golf—the American amateur and open, the British amateur and open. This year he capped the climax by winning all four of them, besides leading to victory the American Walker Cup team in the matches with the British.

His achievement in winning 13 national titles in eight years, his scoring records, his coolness under the fiercest competitive fire, stand alone.

Has Won 13 National Tourneys.

He won the British open three times, the British amateur once. He captured the American open four times and the American amateur five times, more than any other man.

Against a background of marvelous mechanical achievement, earning him classification as a "golfing machine," Jones has erected a reputation for modesty and good sportsmanship such as few of America's athletic demigods ever have enjoyed. His competitive fame has been comparable to that of such glamorous figures as Jack Dempsey and Babe Ruth, his position unequaled as an American ambassador of sporting good will on fields of international rivalry.

Great Britain has hailed his accomplishments with as much fervor as his lifelong friends in Georgia. Millionaires have fought their way through the galleries to see him drive, pitch or putt. Royal princes have sought his companionship on the links. New York has welcomed him with an enthusiasm of popular acclaim, following triumphs abroad, such as no other figure in sports has ever enjoyed nor perhaps any other youthful hero, except Col. Lindbergh, been accorded.

The life story and achievements of this young man of 28 still will be bright on the pages of sport history when the youth of today is gray-headed. They may never be equaled.

Hoppe Trails in 18.1 Title Billiard Play

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Welker Cochrane, of Hollywood, won the first block of his match with Willie Hoppe for the world's 18.1 balk line billiards championship today, 300 to 213, at the Strand Academy this afternoon.

Cochran, closing out with an unfinished run of 19, left the balls closely grouped in the center of the table and favorably placed for a continuation of his run when play was resumed tonight.

Cochrane found the balls in excellent position when he went to the table tonight. He clicked off 50 more caroms before missing. After a run of 3 in his second inning, he put together a cluster of 127, highest of the match so far, in his next attempt. Play thereafter dragged along until the Californian ran out with an unfinished cluster of 62 in his twelfth inning, making the score for the two blocks read: Cochrane, 600; Hoppe, 207.

LOCAL A.A.U. EXPANSION GRANTED

ing of the New Jersey and Metropolitan Associations, but the question was tabled for a year. The New Jersey body desires to absorb a part of the powerful Metropolitan Association lying in the State of New Jersey.

President Brundage found opposition on the floor of the convention to two of his proposed amendments to the constitution. One, which would have barred from high offices in the union and member associations any officials receiving remuneration for their work in any sports, was definitely rejected. The other, tabled until today for consideration by the industrial committee, would require commercial organizations sponsoring teams to have had players within their employ at least 90 days prior to entering any competition.

The second amendment is understood to be aimed at conditions existing in basket ball. It would prevent the practice of "loading up" of stars by teams on the eve of important games and championship tournaments.

Relations of the A. A. U. and the National Collegiate Athletic Association were declared by Frederick W. Rubien, past national secretary, to be more harmonious than ever before. Mr. Rubien, who represents the Metropolitan Association and who is chairman of the advisory board of the I. C. 4-A, gave lavish praise to President Brundage, and Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, president of the N. C. A. A., for their "open-minded efforts" and leadership of the last 12 months.

Dunbar 19-0 Victor Over Cardoza High

Dunbar High captured its sixth straight win of the season yesterday when Cardoza High was taken into camp by a 19-0 score. The game was played at Howard Stadium.

Dunbar's fast back field clipped through Cardoza's weak line throughout the first half, and then rested on their laurels until the end.

Apache Eleven Drills For Alexandria Celtics

The Apaches will begin ardent preparation for their battle next Sunday with the St. Mary's Celtics, of Alexandria, with a drill tonight under the lights at Griffith Stadium, starting at 7:30 o'clock. Coach Jerry Carroll, assisted by Ty Rauber, has been smoothing out the offensive of the Apaches since their defeat by the Irvingtons and feels confident that the District champions will hit their true stride against the Alexandrians. The Celtics, who have added strength for their games with the Apaches and Mohawks, are reported to have mustered a combination that will have an even chance in both games.

Washington State Seen Rose Bowl Contender

Pasadena, Calif., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Attention turned today to the annual East-West game New Year's Day in the Pasadena Rose Bowl when C. Hal Reynolds, president of the tournament of Roses committee, expressed the opinion Washington State College, champions of the Pacific Coast Conference, will be invited to represent the West.

Coach Howard Jones, of the University of Southern California, learning of the statement, said his team was interested primarily in its game with Notre Dame December 6, and he believed U. S. C. would decline a bid to the Rose Bowl in favor of Washington State.

The Cougars' opponents, however, Reynolds indicated, will not be so easily selected, but a rumor indicated Alabama's Crimson Tide may be asked to play.

Injuries Handicap Haverford Teams

Special to The Washington Post.

Haverford, Pa., Nov. 17.—Haverford College's football and soccer elevens have been hard hit by injuries all season. Only two football regulars, Fields and Foley, have not been hurt, while Fields and Capt. Hall Conn, playing side by side at left tackle and left end, are the only men who have played every minute of every game. Conn's performance is remarkable in view of the fact that he was handicapped by a bad side in most of the games.

Al Crawford, a wingman, is back in the game after having been unable to play for three weeks because of a dislocated shoulder. Barnhurst, first string guard, and White, a half back, are both out for the rest of the season. Barnhurst's knee was dislocated in the Hopkins game, and White has a bad shoulder. Tripp and Simons, backs, and Masland and Schramm, linemen, have been bothered by bad knees. Logan, varsity quarter, was out for two weeks with a dislocated shoulder. Others who have been kept out of the line-up at different times by injuries are Dothard, Cadbury, Baker, Rice, Bancroft and Pleasants.

The soccer squad has been hampered by a lack of substitutes as well as by injuries. Longaker had a rib cracked in the Penn State game. Bert Wills and Roberts have been handicapped by leg injuries, and Scarborough, who suffered a slight concussion of the brain in the Crescent A. C. contest, broke his leg in the Princeton game and is out for the rest of the season.

SHARE PRICES LOSE AS TURNOVER DROPS

Averages Decline 4.4; Few Volatile Stocks Slump From 5 to 9 Points.

UTILITIES HARDEST HIT

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—After five days of prosperity, share prices withdrew behind minus signs today.

With the short interest reduced by last week's covering and the public previously unwilling to apply the "buy-now" philosophy to the stock market, profit-taking and short selling encountered little resistance.

The averages showed a loss of 4.4 points, which bit a sizeable chunk out of last week's rise of 11.9. Not only were the Friday and Saturday gains erased, but part of Thursday's improvement was also cancelled, many important stocks dropped 3 to 4 points net; a few more volatile issues closed 5 to 9 lower. Sales were small compared with the activity on the recent rally, totaling only 2,137,770 shares.

Wheat and Corn Rally.

In contrast to the weakness of stocks was the strength of wheat, which closed ¾ to 2½ cents higher in response to the Farm Board's program for halting "panicky" conditions in that market. Corn rallied one to 2¾ cents net, but cotton futures here were only steady, 2 points lower to 3 points higher at the close.

Copper shares lost their lustre, doubt was expressed in some quarters as to whether the 12-cent price would hold. A few dealers, in fact, cut to 11⅛ today, although the large producers held at the upper level, and it was said that the cutting had been done chiefly by speculators. Nevertheless, uncertainties in the situation were sufficient to bring in substantial realizing in the red metal stocks which dropped 1 to 4 points. American Smelting was the largest loser.

The strength of the general credit position kept Wall street from being alarmed by the flurry of bank closings in Tennessee, Kentucky and Arkansas. The difficulties of these institutions, it appeared, had been caused by public nervousness that had its origin in the insolvency of a prominent Southern banking house.

Foreign Trade Figures.

The foreign trade figures for October were not particularly stimulating. Exports last month, valued at $328,000,000, were only $10,000,000 above September, whereas the normal seasonal gain is five or six times that amount. Also, the total valuation was the smallest for an October in sixteen years. Imports, up $21,000,000 to $248,000,000, showed the smallest aggregate since 1921. The balance in this country's favor was $80,000,000, but in October, 1929, it was $137,000,000.

All classifications of stocks participated in the day's declines. Utilities comprised the weakest group, although the industrials ran them a close second and the rails slumped rather broadly. Amusements displayed considerable stability and rallied for a time under a continuation of Saturday's covering, but sagged in the late trading and closed slightly off.

Commission houses believed the decline was in order in view of the strength shown last week, and speculative circles generally were more concerned with the market's resistance to further pressure than with the losses of a single session in which normal profit taking largely figured. Statistical organizations pointed out that the market would have to prove itself.

U. S. Steel Loses 3 Points.

The many shares down 3 points or more included U. S. Steel, American Can, North American, Consolidated Gas, New York Central, and Westinghouse Electric. American Telephone, American Water Works, Atchison and Western Union lost 4 while General Electric, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, National Biscuit, and Johns-Manville closed 2 points lower. General Motors was off 1¾.

Larger losers were Case, off 5; Eastman Kodak, 6; Ingersoll Rand, 7; Allied Chemical, 8, and National Lead, 9. Lackawanna and Transamerican were among the few stocks touching new lows.

Foreign exchanges were irregular, featured by a break of about one-third of a cent in the Spanish peseta, which was affected by disturbances in Spain. Sterling was steady, although bankers here were inclined to discount reports that France was prepared to extend a billion-dollar long-term credit to Great Britain.

BOND MARKET RULED BY IRREGULAR TREND

Foreign Section Declines; Offerings for Day Total $43,000,000.

TREASURY GROUP RISES

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.)—The bond market remained under the spell of stocks today. The quiet firmness of last week, which netted the best gains in many weeks gave way to irregularity as stocks turned reactionary, in one of the dullest sessions of autumn.

The volume of trading dwindled to $7,332,000 par value which was a third less than the turnover in the latter part of last week when bonds moved upward. The average for 30 bonds declined 2-10 of a point, after holding an upward trend for three days.

Unsettling reports from both South American and Europe in recent days influenced some selling and gave a heavy tone to the foreign list. The one bright spot in the whole market was the Treasury group. Reflecting the easy tone of the money market, all Liberty and Treasury issues that were active advanced. While on a reduced turnover in contrast with some recent sessions many of the Governments duplicated their peak prices of the year.

Weakness of Stocks Cited.

In view of the weakness of stocks, investors were hesitant toward bonds, and many issues were in supply a small fraction below Saturday's close. The irregular movement was reflected throughout the whole domestic section, and progress of any consequence was confined to a comparatively small list.

American and Foreign Power 5s, Anglo-Chilean Nitrate 7s, Atchison adjustment 5s, International Telephone 5s, McKesson & Robbins 5½s, New York, Boston & Westchester 4½s, Seaboard-All Florida 6s, were among the domestic bonds under pressure.

There was a good inquiry for Armour & Co. 5½s, General Steel Castings 5½s, Kansas City Terminal 4s, Louisville & Arkansas 5s & New York Central 3½s, Pennsylvania 4s, Remington Arms 5s, Shell Pipe Line 5s, Southern Railway 6½s and Wabash 4½s. Generally the small fractional changes reflected the desultory condition of the market.

Changes in Foreign List.

Pressure against German bonds was felt most by the International 5½s, which reacted 1¼ points to 71⅝, a new low. The Dawes 7s held firm but industrials and municipals of Germany generally eased. Polish governments, after earlier weakness, closed about steady. Belgian and British governments yielded small fractions. The Latin-American group was irregularly lower. The 8½ per cent loan of the Cuban Republic, now under martial law, sagged 1 point to its year's low.

Offerings for the day totaled $43,000,000 the largest for a single day in several weeks. Three bond issues were announced for public marketing tomorrow. They are $5,000,000 Province of Saskatchewan 4s, $3,500,000 Central of Ohio Light & Power 5s and $2,585,000 City of Chicago 5s.

PERPETUAL BUILDING ASSETS ARE SHOWN

DIRECTORS ALSO NAMED

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Assets of the Perpetual Building Association are now in excess of $24,000,000, it was announced last night following the annual meeting of shareholders. The association now ranks twelfth among all building associations in the country which are members of the United States Building and Loan League. The closing year was reported one of the most successful in the history of the association from standpoints of increase in surplus and resources.

All officers and directors were reelected as follows: James Berry, president; Arthur G. Bishop, vice president; Edward C. Baltz, secretary; Marvin A. Custis, treasurer; Raymond H. Espey, assistant secretary; John J. Sconfeld, Vernon G. Owen, Franklin W. Harper and Dr. William G. Schaffhirt.

Morris Plan Bank Data.

For the twentieth successive year, Morris Plan banks and companies situated throughout the country report appreciable increases in the volume of Morris Plan thrift certificates held by the public, the aggregate report for the first nine months of this year showing a combined amount of $97,042,000 now invested by the public in these certificates. It is probable that this amount will well exceed $100,000,000 by the end of the year, it was said by Arthur J. Morris, president of the Industrial Finance Corporation and founder of the Morris Plan system of industrial banking.

The present amount of $97,042,000 compares with $89,606,804 for the first nine months of 1929 and does not include Christmas Club thrift accounts operated by many of the 180 Morris Plan banks, companies and branches. It is estimated that more than $5,000,000 will be paid out during December to Morris Plan Christmas Club members. Conversion of a certain proportion of the Christmas Club funds into permanent thrift certificate accounts and the normal increase in the issuance of the thrift certificates should bring the total amount of certificates outstanding well above $100,000,000 by January 1, it was said.

Analysis of Trend.

Commenting on the mounting thrift volume in these banks and companies, Mr. Morris stated that an analysis of this phase of Morris Plan operation revealed that a large percentage originated with patrons who had "graduated" from borrowers into investors.

J. W. Dunegan, president of the First National Bank of Stevens Point, Wis., is visiting Thomas W. Brahany, partner in Grane, Farris & Co.

G. Elmer Flather, assistant treasurer, Union Trust Co., is recovering from a recent severe illness.

Harry W. Finney, of Y. E. Booker & Co., has returned from a hunting trip at The Orchards, Va.

Bank Acceptances Rise $141,509,569

Total at End of October Is $1,508,243,726, U. S. Council Reports.

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The dollar volume of bankers' acceptances increased $141,509,569 in October to a total of $1,508,243,726 at the end of the month, the American Acceptance Council reported today.

The gain brought the total volume to within $32,494,397 of the October record set in 1929 "and is a remarkably high total considering the steady drop in commodity prices during 1930 and the very heavy decline in the country's foreign trade," Robert H. Bean, secretary of the council, said.

The greatest gain in the current survey was shown in domestic warehouse credits, which increased nearly $61,000,000 to $234,989,000, or $15,000,000 more than a year ago. This was described as a natural gain for this type of acceptance business in October. Acceptances based on goods stored in or shipped between foreign countries increased to $332,903,972, a gain for the month of $34,000,000, making the present total the highest on record for this classification.

U. S. Dept. of Agri., Weather Bureau, Washington, Monday, Nov. 17—8 p. m.

Forecast—For the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia—Mostly cloudy with occasional light showers and continued mild temperature Tuesday and Wednesday; gentle winds, mostly southeast and south.

The disturbance that was central north of Minnesota Sunday has moved northward to western Hudson Bay with a further increase in intensity, Churchill, Man., 28.70 inches, and another disturbance that developed over Nevada and Utah Sunday night has moved eastward to Colorado, Pueblo, 29.30 inches. Still another disturbance is approaching southwestern Alaska and the disturbance over the ocean east of Newfoundland has remained almost stationary. Pressure remains high from Labrador and Greenland southward to eastern Hudson Strait and thence southward to the vicinity of Bermuda, Bermuda, 30.10 inches. The low pressure disturbance has been attended by rain in the Pacific States and by snow in the Plateau and Rocky Mountain regions and local rains have again occurred throughout the Atlantic and East Gulf States, the Appalachian region, the upper Ohio Valley and the lower Lake region. The temperature has risen almost generally between the Rocky Mountains and the Mississippi River and the weather is again unseasonably warm almost generally east of the Rockies. The temperature has fallen slightly in the Plateau and northern Rocky Mountain regions and the western Canadian Provinces.

The indications are for considerable cloudiness and occasional showers in the Atlantic States and Appalachian region Tuesday and Wednesday and the easterly gale advance of the Colorado disturbance will cause showers Wednesday in the Ohio Valley, Tennessee and the lower Lake region. The temperature will continue mild throughout the Washington forecast district during Tuesday and Wednesday, followed by colder Wednesday night and Thursday in Tennessee, the Ohio Valley, and the lower Lake region.

COUNTY JURY FINDS MANY INDICTMENTS

Felonious Assault, Larceny and Liquor Charges on Court Docket.

LADIES AID WILL MEET

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The November term of the Fairfax County Circuit Court opened yesterday morning, with Judge Walter T. McCarthy presiding. The grand jury, of which Robert D. Graham is foreman, returned indictments against Robert Higdon, charged with driving while drunk; E. M. Butler, second offense, driving while drunk; L. C. Underwood, issuing bad checks; Max Schaffer, grand larceny; Samuel Kidwell, sale of ardent spirits to a minor; Stanley Ayres, felonious assault and wounding of Clara D. Gheen; C. A. Trammell, possesion of still; Edward C. Barlance and John Press, housebreaking; Stanley Ayres and Edith Wilson, grand larceny of a ring; Alex Porteous, possessoin of still.

Presentments were made by Commonwealth's Attorney Wilson M. Farr against the following persons for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor; Thomas Hitt, L. L. Applegate, Cecil J. Six, Merryman Kenyon, William Dixon, George Sutphin, Charles V. Irby, Ben Yates, Lester C. Barr, Lonnie Troutman and Joseph Nolan.

The following presentments were made to the court by Farr against the following persons for transportation and possession of ardent spirits in violation of the State prohibition law: Raymond B. Dunn, Gus Quayle, Cameron Whitestone, Rose Dudley, Ray Taylor, George Hanna, Harry Alward, James Colbert, Thomas Van Pelt, Ralph McKeever, William McKeever and Roy Sorg.

Edith Wilson, 22, and Stanley Ayres, 20, of Alexandria, were arrested Saturday night on the complaint of Walter P. Lemeshewsky, who claimed that they had stolen a diamond ring valued at $125, while he was in a car with them. Ayres and the girl were indicted jointly yesterday evening and a severance was granted by the Court. The Wilson girl pleaded guilty to the indictment and was sentenced to two years in the State penitentiary.

Practically all of the persons charged with driving while under the influence of ardent spirits pleaded guilty to the charge. Thomas Hitt, L. L. Applegate, Cecil J. Six, Merryman Kenyon, William Dixon, George Sutphin, Charles V. Irby, Joseph Noland, D. E. Bailey, George Bender and Earl L. Lynn pleaded guilty and were fined $100 and costs and 30 days in jail. The jail sentence was suspended in each case during good behavior. Judge McCarthy warned each one that conviction on this charge automatically revoked their drivers' privileges in this state, for a period of one year.

Raymond B. Dunn, Guy Quayle, Cameron Whitestone, Rose Dudley and Ralph McKeever were fined $50 and costs and given one month in jail, the jail sentence being suspended during good behavior. McKeever was placed under a $500 bond not to violate the prohibition law for the period of one year.

Alex Porteous, who was indicted for the possession of a still, pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to six months in jail. Both fine and sentence were suspended by the Court on the condition that he leave this country and return to his former home in Canada.

The Court ordered a capias issued for L. C. Underwood, indicted for issuing bad checks amounting to $377.49 to J. D. Thompson, at Herndon, and Max Schaffer indicted for grand larceny.

Judge McCarthy refused to allow the civil docket to be called on account of the crowded condition of the criminal docket, and the shortness of this term of the court. The only civil cases that will be heard will be those carried over from the December term.

The members will make final plans for the bazaar and food sale which is to be held in the church hall Friday afternoon. Mrs. Henry H. Rogers has been appointed chairman in charge of the fancy work. Mrs. H. H. Anderson will have charge of food tables. Mrs. Guy Ervin, president of the aid, asks that all finished fancy work for the bazaar be turned in at today's meeting.

The Clarendon Community Club will meet this evening at 8 o'clock in the Clarendon schoolhouse. Mrs. Irene Richardson will direct the program of entertainment. The club will vote on an amendment to the by-laws.

George Colleson and Arthur Mayer, giving their address as New York City, were arrested by Fairfax County authorities, after the car they were driving had been completely wrecked on the Washington-Richmond highway near Accotink. They were first charged with having no driver's permit. Their car had a Pennsylvania license, according to Sheriff Kirby. The men are said to have confessed later that they had stolen the car in Pennsylvania. Sheriff Kirby communicated with Pennsylvania authorities who asked him to hold the men until they could come for them.

George Hanna, 37, of Alexandria, and Roy Taylor, 29, of Ashland, Ky., who were indicted yesterday for sale and possession of ardent spirits, were arrested by State Prohibition Inspector Virgil Williams and Sheriff Kirby during a raid at Hanna's home on the Washington-Richmond highway, about 3 miles south of Alexandria. Kirby stated that 24 gallons of alleged liquor and 50 gallons of alleged wine were seized.

A 73-year-old man, Charles Trammell, of Herndon, was arrested at his home Saturday night by the Fairfax County authorities during a raid there. A large copper still and 4 gallons of alleged liquor were seized.

Bullet Takes Life Of Maryland Man

Evidence Points to Suicide by Melvin Dawson, 21, of Cumberland.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 17.—The body of Melvin Dawson, 21, son of Charles and Virgie Dawson, of Berkeley Springs, W. Va., was found in the recesses of Haystack Mountain near the city limits early this evening with a bullet wound in his heart.

He had been missing since Saturday afternoon, when he left the home of his sister, Mrs. William H. Harden, with a single-barrel rifle for the woods. Every evidence points to suicide, the authorities declare. No cause can be assigned.

Mr. Dawson had been hunting Saturday morning. He returned in the early afternoon, took a bath, put on clean clothes and his hunting coat and started for the woods. Since then searching parties have been looking for him. Mr. Dawson was employed by the Buchanan Lumber Co. and he resided with his sister. Besides his parents he leaves one brother, Dwight, and two sisters, Anna Pelle and Ina Marie, at Berkeley Springs.

TRIAL OF WOMAN, 26, IN SLAYING, OPENED

Pennsylvanian Was Shot by Virginian in Jealousy, State Contends.

PAIR HAD LIVED ON FARM

Norristown, Pa., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Testimony that Mrs. Antoinette McCarris, 26, formerly of Portsmouth, Va., was jealous over the attentions paid by Joseph Lee to another woman, was given today at the opening of her trial in Montgomery County Court on the charge of having shot Lee to death July 4.

The commonwealth seeks to prove that Mrs. McCarris killed Lee, with whom she was living on a little farm five miles from here, in a fit of jealous rage. The penalty to be asked will be "such as the evidence warrants," the district attorney declared.

Andrew Hicks, Philadelphia policeman, one of two witnesses heard today, said he had rented his farm to the couple and they apparently got along well until Bernice Doyle, the other woman, and several other persons visited the farm one Sunday.

Hicks testified that while Lee was dancing with Miss Doyle, Lee struck Mrs. McCarris and knocked her down. Lee told Hicks he struck her because she had hit him with a flashlight. Later, Hicks said, Mrs. McCarris told him Lee intended eloping with Miss Doyle and asked that she should never come to the farm again. Miss Doyle was at the place again two weeks before the shooting, Hicks said, and Mrs. McCarris seemed so angry that I took the shells from their shot gun and put them in my pocket for fear she would do something."

Dr. John B Simpson, coroner's physician, the other witness, described how Lee was shot in the back.

The jury, composed of six men and six women, are all married and have children. The defendant's counsel rejected each prospective juror who did not have children.

Mrs. McCarris contends she shot Lee accidentally while firing a shotgun in celebration of Independence Day. Lee's body was found by police the day after the holiday, where he had fallen on the porch of the farm house.

Lee and Mrs. McCarris came to the farm from Portsmouth with the woman's two children. Police said she deserted her husband, Frederick.

GAS RATE REDUCTION HELD DISAPPOINTING

Arlington Utilities Head Says Small Consumer Is Not Aided.

HITS COMPANY TACTICS

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 2099. Clarendon, Va.

The reduction in domestic gas rates for Arlington County, long promised by the Rosslyn Gas Co., filed with with the State Corporation Commission October 27, but not made public until Saturday, provides for no cut fore has not exceeded $3.75 a month, for the consumer whose bill heretoaccording to James W. Head, chairman of the public utilities commission of the county.

"The existing rate of $1.50 per 1,000 cubic feet will remain unchanged for the first 2,500 cubic feet used per month." Mr. Head says. "Consumption above that amount will be charged for at the rate of 90 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, the minimum bill per month to be $1. The household using 3,500 cubic feet per month will be accorded the small average reduction of 17 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, the average charge for that quantity to be $1.38 per 1,000 cubic feet. The present penalty of 10 cents for 1,000 cubic feet for nonpayment of bills within the fifteen-day discount period will be continued.

"The domestic consumers of Arlington County will be greatly disappointed in this apparent lack of good faith of the Rosslyn Gas Co. toward their interests. This commission was led to believe that a much more attractive scale of rates was to be offered to the Virginia consumers The new schedule does not appear to represent good business policy, for it is difficult to see how the continuance of the present high rate will encourage the intsallation of gas ranges and heaters in competition with the more favorable electric light schedule effective for the same uses in the county.

"The apparent reason for the continuance of the existing high rate is that the Rosslyn Gas Co. is making extensions into less densely settled sections of the county and is imposing upon its old consumers the burden of making good to it most of the deficiency from a reasonable return on the investment that may result during the first few years. It means to eat its pie and have it too, since the courts allow a 7 per cent return on utility investments, rather than a lower rate due to the monopolistic nature of the business, for the very purpose of enabling the management subsequently to make up such deficiencies in business from extensions in the early years. The Rosslyn Gas Co. is controlled through the Washington Gas Light Co., by the Seaboard Investment Trust Co., of New York.

"This matter," said Mr. Head, "will be considered by this commission at its meeting to be held Tuesday night, November 25, at the courthouse, and its recommendations to the County Board of Supervisors will doubtless follow shortly afterward."

Meeting in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce at Clarendon tonight, delegates representing the Chamber of Commerce, the Arlington County Civic Federation, the Ladies' Auxiliary to the American Legion, the Arlington County Monarch Club, and Arlington Rotary Club, will perfect an organization in the interest of the Boy Scout movement in the county.

This organization is being sponsored by the Arlington Rotary Club and its purpose will be to provide necessary funds to carry on the work of the Scouts. Heretofore the Scout movement in the county has been under the leadership of Washington.

William P. Leitch, director of Scout work in Northern Virginia, will attend the meeting and explain the work of the Scouts throughout the country.

The Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the Arlington Firemen's Hall near Columbia Pike. Nomination of officers for the new year will be made at this meeting.

Pursuant to the action of the County Board of Supervisors, County Engineer C. L. Kinnier announced last night that there will be no house connections, made to the county water system except on a cash basis. The charge is $40. This does not include the payments on the lateral line which will still be taken on the deferred payment plan.

The fall meeting of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Clarendon Methodist Church. Dean Grace Hayes Riley, of the Washington College of Law, is announced as the principal speaker. The business meeting will be preceded by a luncheon to be served by the ladies of the church promptly at 12:30 o'clock.

The executive committee of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Stonewall Jackson School at Mulhall last night at the home of Mrs. Josephine Peters, at Sunnyside, completed its program for the year's work and tentative plans for an entertainment to be given the night of December 18. The executive committee of the Parent-Teacher Association was authorized to make expenditures not exceeding $5 on any one project, and not more than a total of $15 between meetings of the association, at a meeting held last night.

It was pointed out by Harold M. Brown, who introduced the motion, that too much time was devoted at meetings to the handling of minor details and by turnnig such matters over to the executive committee much time would be saved.

Mrs. O. B. Fitts was unanimously elected secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Fred Dortzback.

Mrs. Richard Yardley, delegate to the recent annual State convention held at Lynchburg, gave a lengthy report on the meeting.

Mrs. Roy Knox, chairman of the membership committee, announced that the total membership is increasing and is now 190. Every effort is being made to reach the 200 mark by the end of the year.

Ban Upon Religion Is Bar to Funeral

Injunction Denies Woman Right to Hold Services in Own Home.

Princess Anne, Md., Nov. 17 (A.P.). An injunction restraining Mrs. Ida White, of Chance, from holding any kind of religious gathering in her home operated to pesvent holding funeral services there for her husband.

Several months ago William Jones, member of the Somerset County board of education, sold Mrs. White a house and lot and inserted in the deed a clause specifying that the property should never be used for "any religious purpose." After acquiring the property Mrs. White did hold some religious gatherings at her home, and Mr. Jones obtained an injunction restraining her.

Following the death of her husband this week Mrs. White sought the advice of her attorney, Gordon Tull, of Princess Anne, who advised holding funeral services would be in contempt of court, and the body was removed from the home for the funeral. According to Mr. Tull, this is the first case of the kind in the history of Maryland.

STRONG BOX DEFIES BURGLARS' EFFORTS

Berwyn Grocery Store Safe Protects Cash Against Sledge Hammers.

DOOR LOCK WAS FORCED

Breaking into the Sanitary Grocery store on Central avenue in Berwyn early yesterday morning, thieves were forced to leave emptyhanded when the safe defied their efforts. Although attacked with crowbars, wrenches and sledge hammers, the strongbox remained intact.

Saturday night receipts of the store were in the safe, State Officer C. W. Cubbage said that the tools used by the marauders, which they left behind them, had evidently been taken from a railroad tool shed. Entrance to the store was gained by forcing the lock on a rear door. There was evidence that an attempt had been made to pick the lock before force was used.

The case against J. H. Fetty, Mayor of Laurel, who was to have been tried in police court yesterday on a charge of parking on the shoulder of the Baltimore boulevard, was continued until next Monday. The continuance was asked by an employe of the State Road Commission, who is understood to have sworn out the warrant against Mayor Fetty.

The offense is alleged to have occurred Saturday night, and the mayor was arrested by Town Constable F. P. Hurd after the mayor is said to have refused to move his car. George P. McCeney appeared for Fetty yesterday when Judge J. Chew Sheriff granted a later trial. Fetty was not in court. The mayor was Republican candidate for clerk of the circuit court in the recent election.

Alleging numerous indiscretions and naming two corespondents, Edward H. Bowers, 29 years old, of Brentwood, yesterday filed suit in Prince Georges County Circuit Court for absolute divorce from his wife, Adelina J. Bowers, of Mount Rainier.

Bowers says that he married the woman in 1924, when she was 18 years old. They have one child, Robert Edward Bowers, 2 years old. In his motion, the man states that he has not lived with his wife since October, 1929.

A newly-widened Defense Highway awaited the crowds which attended the opening of the racing season at Bowie yesterday, but few of the fans knew that work on the road had been continued until late Saturday night in order that the improvement might be completed.

Almost every season at Bowie has been marked by one or more fatalities due to auto accidents, and it was the aim of the State Roads Commission, when the widening was started last summer, to have the job completed by the time racing started. The road is now 20 feet wide throughout its length, and the gravel road between the track and the highway has been reworked.

Concrete shoulders have been added to the road to give it its present width, and later, outer dirt shoulders will be added. Owing to various widths of the original road, the concrete sides range from one to two feet wide.

The Baltimore office of the State Roads Commission is now preparing specifications for two bridges on which bids will be asked shortly. The structures will both be over streams in Zekiah Swamp, on the Waldorf-Bryan Pan road. No estimate of the cost of them could be given, owing to the absence of specifications.

County police are still investigating the latest case of vandalism to be reported in Prince Georges school buildings. The most recent case comes from the graded school at College Park, where ink bottles were thrown at valuable maps and an expensive encyclopedia was torn to pieces. Marauding boys, who broke into the place, are blamed.

THE PROPOSAL.

("Don't marry a girl who can't run 100 yards close to 13 seconds. It is a test for her fitness. Any faster than that may not be desirable. Much slower is not a sign of good health."—Dr. Edward Lyman Cornell, of Northwestern University Medical School.)

* * * *

HE (backwardly)—I've, er, something to say to you, er, dear.

She—All right, Edgar. Go on.

He—I don't know that I've the right to ask it.

She (pretending to be coy)—Well, of course, I don't know what it is but. . . .

He—We've been keeping company a long time now and . . . and . . . and . . .

She—Oh, Edgar, don't stammer so.

He (boldly)—Well, er, I love you.

She—Why, Edgar!

He—I love you deeply.

She—I love you, too, dear.

He—Do you love me enough to be my bride?

She—Of course I do.

He—Well, then, what I want to ask is this. Can you, er, er, er . . .

She (impatiently)—Oh, speak up, dear. I'm waiting.

He—Well, this is what I want to know—how fast can you run 100 yards?

* * * *

SHE (quite amazed) — Run 100 yards! I haven't the slightest idea.

He (sadly)—That's what I was afraid of.

She—But what difference does it make?

He (seriously)—It makes a lot. I couldn't marry you without knowing this. Do you think you could do 100 yards in 13 seconds?

She (very puzzled and annoyed)—I've never even thought of such a thing.

He—Well, we've both got to think of it now. I want to marry you, but I must find out how fast you can run first.

She—You must be crazy.

He—Not at all. It's of the utmost importance to happy wedlock. The professor says so.

She—But in what respect?

He—If a girl can't do one hundred yards in thirteen seconds it is better for a fellow not to marry her.

She—Are we going to be chased by Indians or something?

* * * *

HE—No, it's a proof of health. Health is very important to marriage.

She—Of course.

He—So I guess I'll get a stop-watch and time you for the distance. I wouldn't want to have our marriage turn out like a friend of mine's.

She—What happened.

He—He married a girl without knowing anything about her running ability and they were never happy.

She—How unfortunate!

He—And I know another couple who only lived together three months after the wedding. It seems he discovered she was merely a 100-yards-in-twenty-seconds runner.

She—Why didn't he make her take a sprinting test before they got married?

He—He did, but she fooled him. .

She—How?

He—She did her running down hill!

BUYER ASKS COURT TO CANCEL STOCK

Rockville Man Says Coffee Firm Misrepresented Financial Condition.

SEEKS RETURN OF $500

Alleging that he was misinformed concerning the company when he purchased stock, Clarence H. Hoskinson yesterday filed suit in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville to force the cancellation of a stock purchase contract with the Diplomat Coffee Co., of Silver Spring, Md. He asks that $500 already paid be returned and that the company be enjoined from negotiating a note for $2,500 he had given.

Through Attorney William H. Talbott, of Rockville, Mr. Hoskinson alleges that the agents of the coffee company represented to him that it was in a healthy financial condition and that it owed no debts. He was further told that the business was growing rapidly and that 300 pounds of coffee daily was being sold by its nine truck routes and that the opening of 100 retail stores was projected, he tells the court.

He further was informed that the company would pay dividends of 8 per cent on preferred stock and 12 per cent on common stock as of July 1, 1930, and that he could get his money back at any time if he was not satisfied with the company, Mr. Hoskinson alleges. He paid $500 cash by check and signed a promissory note for $2,500 for 24 shares of preferred and 24 shares of common stock, he tells the court.

Later he became convinced that the prospects of the company were not as rosy as they had been pictured and asked that he be relieved of his stock and his money refunded. The company has refused to do this, he declares.

Judge Robert B. Peter yesterday declined to issue an injunction barring the Philfuels Co., purveyors of cooking gas in tanks, from carrying on its business in a factory at Halpine.

The judge held that the plaintiffs had failed to prove that the gas is explosive and highly inflammable while in storage and pointed out that photographs had been introduced which showed tanks containing the gas being subjected to high degrees of temperature.

The residents of the pike had asked for an injunction following their failure to have the factory site zoned so that the fuel company could not use it.

An audiometer which will be presented to the county Friday by the Silver Spring Woman's Improvement Club was shown last night at a meeting of the East Silver Spring High School Parent-Teacher Association.

The audiometer will be used in a program of correction for deafness in the county school system. By its use 40 children's hearing can be tested at the same time. Those who are found to have deficient hearing will be told and given and opportunity to have their family physician care for them. In case they are unable to afford the cost, it is expected that means will be found of giving the correction at public expense.

This is the first instrument of its kind to be used by Maryland schools. The Maryland Health Department has assured Dr. William T. Pratt, county health officer, that an expert will be furnished to conduct the clinics. The audiometer will be operated by the three county nurses.

The Bethesda Chamber of Commerce will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the County Building at Bethesda. The meeting was postponed from November 3, which was the day before election.

3,300 VOLT SHOCK FATAL TO LINEMAN

Second Worker, in Contact With Same Wire, Is Badly Burned.

STATE IS HELD CRITICAL

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 17.—Harry Frisbie, 32, of Ferndale Park, near Petersburg, lineman for the Virginia Electric & Power Co., was instantly killed yesterday morning at a substation of the Virginia Electric and Power Co. at Tarboro, N. C., and Ellis Benton, of Colonial Heights, another lineman was severely burned when the current of wires carrying 3,300 volts of electricity passed through their bodies.

Frisbie was knocked from the pole upon which he and Benton were working and was dead when men in the substation reached him. The current struck Benton, and set fire to his clothing, but he remained on the pole until other workmen ascended the pole and brought him to the ground. How the two linemen came in contact with the current of the transmission wires was not learned.

Benton, suffering from severe burns and shock, was moved to the Tarboro Hospital and his condition is reported to be critical.

The body of Frisbie, who was unmarried, is expected to reach Petersburg tonight. Benton is married. Both linemen had been in the employ of the Virginia Electric & Power Co. for several years and had been engaged for the last few days in work on the transmission lines in North Carolina.

Frisbie was educated in the Petersburg schools. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Lottie Whitmore; stepfather, J. E. Whitmore, and the following brothers and sisters: Robert Frisbie, of Durham, N. C.; Thomas Frisbie and Sterling Whitmore, of this city, and Mrs. Herbert Rosser and Mrs. E. N. Bass, of Norfolk.

"Watch Thief" Enters Silver Spring Home

Entry of the house formerly occupied by the late James H. Linkins, Clifton avenue, Silver Spring, by the "watch thief" who has been operating in the Silver Spring area, reported yesterday by Mrs. Lillian L. Nuttings, 1351 Newton street northwest, daughter of the former owner, who is in charge of the house. The house had been ransacked but apparently nothing was missing.

The thief used his favorite method of entry. Cutting a small hole in the window pane near the latch, he opened the latch on a side window. A window blind which had been closed was pried open. County Policeman Joseph Nolte of the Silver Spring substation is investigating.

Strikers Denied Credit Extension by Danville

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 17.—The city council has determined that it can not comply with a petition filed with it recently by officers of the local textile union asking for an extension of the city's credit because the strikers can not pay their gas, water and electric bills.

The council took the position that to comply would mean the adoption of class legislation and that it was powerless to suspend ordinances for the benefit of one class of citizens.

Lynchburg Woman Dies While Visiting Nephew

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 17.—Mrs. Mary Layne Griffin, 62, widow of George W. Griffin, for many years chairman of the Campbell County Board of Supervisors, died suddenly of angina pectotis Saturday while she was visiting her nephew, F. H. Hunt, at Alberta, Brunswick County. Her husband died here several months ago while on a visit with a son.

Mrs. Griffin was a member of Ferrows Chapel Methodist Church and is survived by four sons and three daughters. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at Wesleybury Methodist Church, Gladys.

BAD WIRING BLAMED IN ALEXANDRIA FIRE

Tenants Aided From Upper Stories of Craddock Apartment House.

DAMAGE TOLL IS SMALL

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 823.

Fire thought to have been caused by defective wiring caused damage to the Craddock Apartments, 115 South Patrick street, estimated at $4,000, yesterday afternoon. Five persons, one of whom, Mrs. J. W. Stone, was ill in bed, were rescued by firemen from the second and third floors of the building. No one was overcome, and the firemen merely assisted the tenants to climb down the ladder of Truck Company No. 1, to the yard of Lee School building.

Fire Chief James M. Duncan, jr., stated last night that the fire started in the basement of the building, behind an electric switchboard, and probably was caused by a short circuit. The flames went up a dumbwaiter shaft, filling all the small apartments with thick smoke. The fire was confined to the dumbwaiter shaft, the cellar and the roof, and the damage to the apartments was caused by smoke, no water being used except in the basement and on the roof.

The apartment is owned by the estate of Charles Craddock, who, last summer, shot and killed his estranged wife, Mrs. Blanche Craddock, in a Washington apartment and then committed suicide. Two children of the marriage and one son of Mrs. Craddock by a former marriage survive. The Craddock children are with relatives in North Carolina.

The fire attracted a large crowd which packed both sides of the street and hampered the firemen, to some extent, in their work.

Irving C. Root, chief engineer of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, has accepted the post of consultant for the comprehensive zoning and planning survey to be made of Alexandria.

At a recent meeting the city council authorized the employment of an experienced engineer in zoning work, for a period not to exceed six months, at a compensation of $6,500. It is understood Mr. Root's services will be as consultant only, the actual field work and zoning being done separately. Maps in colors will be prepared, showing permanent and future highways, and in addition to surveys and maps the work will include a zone ordinance, to be submitted to the city council for its approval.

Final action on an appropriation of $6,500 for this work will be taken by the city council at its meeting Thursday.

Charged with highway robbery, Edith Wilson, 20 years old, of 616 South Columbus street, and Stanley Ayers, 20, of Accotink, have been turned over to the Fairfax County authorities by the Alexandria police.

Walter P. Lemeshewsky, of Washington, claims that while he and a girl friend, together with Ayers and the Wilson girl, were on an automobile ride Friday night, he became sleepy and Ayers took the wheel of the car. Soon after reaching Alexandria, and after he had parted from the others, Lemeshewsky claims he missed a diamond ring valued at $125, and a fountain pen. He reported to the police and the couple were arrested on warrants issued by the Fairfax County authorities by Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims and Sergt. George Everly, who say that when the girl was searched at police headquarters the ring was found sewed in the lining of her coat.

City Manager Wallace Lawrence, City Attorney Carl Budweasky, and C. S. Taylor Burke, chairman of the local board of assessors, appeared before the State Corporation Commission yesterday in an effort to have an immediate assessment made on the property of the public utilities of Alexandria in connection with the new assessment which has just been completed of other city real property.

Before the city council decides upon the new tax rate, it will be necessary to have this assessment, and the city officials have requested that it be made on the basis of the actual value of the property, as has been done in the case of other property, rather than an arbitrary valuation of approximately one-third the actual value, as has been done heretofore.

The Alexandria Voiture of the 40 and 8 Society has received an invitation from the Petersburg Voiture to attend a wreck to be held this evening. A parade is to be staged at 5 o'clock, with dinner following at 6:30 in the Petersburg Armory, and the wreck to be in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

The Rotary Club will hold a business meeting today in connection with its luncheon session. Henry T. Moncure, program chairman, has concluded plans for meetings for the next two months.

George A. Wood, president of the Washington Gas Light Co., will address the meeting of the Alexandria, Fairfax and Arlington Real Estate Board at a dinner at the Belle Haven Country Club on Friday at 6:30 p. m. George M. Reynolds, of this city, president, will preside.

The Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, will be in charge of the annual Red Cross roll call, with Dan S. Hollenga as chairman. Plans are now being formulated for the drive. The cooperation of all churches and civic organizations has been asked.
